TOMORROW evening, probably, the world will know about the baseball series and begin paying attention to the campaign. You may know that a nation is doing well when half its citizens are more interested in baseball than in a national election.

A MONTH ago Mrs. Annie Newberger lost her son, drowned trying to save a young girl. Yesterday the mother died of grief. She had walked the floor night after night.

In Chicago, Mrs. Clyde Ryker, only 30 years old, killed her three children and herself with gas.

IN Ohio, at Junction City, 17 convicts are dead in a jail fire.

On Saturday 12 men died in New York, five more died early yesterday morning, and three yesterday afternoon, all killed by bootleg whisky, sold in "slum speakeasies."

New York toxicologist says the 20 men in 24 hours were killed by poisonous denaturants, put in the alcohol by the government.

That alcohol was thoroughly denatured, evidently.

PRINCE POTENZIANI, recently governor of Rome, and Prince Lancellotti, fought a duel of 31 rounds, each round of two minutes.

Potenziani won, pricking his adversary's upper arm and wrist a few times. Then honor was satisfied.

The original Launcelot would not have been satisfied so easily.

Duelling is forbidden in Italy, and Mussolini will have something to say about the childish encounter.

TWO American passengers, booked for ocean flight on the German dirigible, have insured their lives for $1,000,000 each. That will seem strange to air travelers a few years hence.

FIVE thousand feet up in the Pyrenees a fine hotel and gambling room will invite visitors to the tiny republic of Andorra. The smuggling business has been bad. Andorra wants automobiles, new furniture and other luxuries and has sold out to the gambling gentlemen.

American visitors to Biarritz will take money to the mountain republic and bring away interesting impressions.

The virtuous will sigh. But the gambling and traveling will open the eyes and ears of Andorrans, forcing thought upon them. Perhaps good will come from evil.

GERMANY is building the two fastest steamships in the world, five days from New York to Southampton. Germany's ocean airship will take you from New York to Berlin in 50 hours, or 80 hours in bad weather. The war did not destroy German enterprise.

"MAKE a crack or a single move and we'll let you have it."

The speaker was one of four young men, masked, carrying automatics, and interrupting the business deal of Solomon B. Stein and Joseph Goldmuntz in Stein's diamond emporium, New York City.

Two hundred thousand dollars worth of diamonds were glittering on soft velvet. More diamonds were in the big safe. Mr. Stein opened it, when the bandits beat his head with the butt of a pistol.

Three hundred thousand dollars was the reward of the four young men with handkerchiefs over their faces.

In these days of crime efficiency, wise diamond dealers lock their doors.

ALAS, poor horse, the automobile crowds him.

In England, Henry Alexander wagered that he could drive his new Ford car up the bridle path of Ben Nevis, highest mountain in Great Britain. The trip was over ruts 12 inches deep and stones 12 inches in diameter, and it took nine hours for the 4,460-foot climb.

THE car would never make it and would probably fall over the edge, said the British, so they sent up a pack horse with lunch strapped to its back.

Britishers dislike to miss their lunch.

The car reached the top. As for the poor horse the London Sphere reports its fate thus:

"A horse carrying provisions for the party slipped over the edge of a steep incline and fell to its death in the glen, hundreds of feet below."

The old cry, "Get a horse," is heard no more.

THIRTEEN thousand tried to hear Aimee Semple McPherson's first sermon in London. Only 10,000 could crowd into Albert Hall. And, according to reporters, "Only a few dozen were converted."

Only a few dozen? How much would those few dozen have suffered during their first ten billion years in hell fire had not Miss Aimee snatched them from the burning?

HEARST WRITER SEIZED

[Harold J. T. Horan, Paris correspondent of Universal Service, whose recent disclosure of a French foreign office letter to French ambassadors giving the first detailed account of the Anglo-French secret naval agreement caused an upheaval in Europe, was arrested yesterday in Rue de la Paix, Paris, and detained for seven hours by the police.]

Three weeks ago Horan cabled to Universal Service the contents of a letter being sent out to French ambassadors. How the copy of that letter was obtained by Horan has remained a puzzle, and Horan's arrest is believed to have been solely for the purpose of compelling him to divulge the source of his information in order to regain his freedom.

After Horan was released, he cabled the following version of his arrest and detention:

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN
(Universal Service Special Cable)

PARIS, Oct. 8.—At 1 o'clock this afternoon I came out of my office in Rue de la Paix and, jumping into my little two-seater car of popular make, I proceeded to join William Bird, president of the Anglo-American Press Association, for lunch.

Gliding along, I reached the corner opposite the offices of the New York Times in Rue de la Paix when, suddenly and without warning, my car was surrounded by a swarm of bicycle police. At the same time a high-powered limousine pulled up alongside my car and a uniformed man jumped out.

He jumped on the sideboard of my car and asked me in French if I were Harold Horan. Upon receiving an affirmative answer he immediately got into my car and ordered me to drive without delay to the prefecture of police.

By this time hundreds of the lunch-hour crowd gathered around the scene and traffic along the street was held up.

Almost speechless at this Wild West manner of being held up on one of the main thoroughfares of Paris I hesitated a moment and required if I could not communicate with my office or home.

ORDERED TO DRIVE ON

This was denied me and in emphatic tones I was again ordered to drive on.

At 1:15, still surrounded by the bicycle police escort, we arrived at the prefecture of police. Here I met police secret detectives and was taken to a private room where I was forced to identify myself. Again I was refused permission to communicate either with the American embassy, my office or my home.

For seven hours, until 8 o'clock at night, I was kept a prisoner. During most of the time I was

"We thought the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph would like to know the quality of one of its 'newsies.'

"We have been reading the story, 'Dancing Daughters,' in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and upon hearing that it was coming to Pittsburgh on the screen, we planned for two weeks to go to town to see it. We live in Greensburg and went to Pittsburgh last Friday evening and had dinner. Then one of us found she had lost her money:

"Well, there we were, the other having just enough money for trainfare home and neither of us knowing anyone in Pittsburgh. Fine prospects of seeing the show! We stood on the corner of Liberty avenue and Sixth street wondering what to do. There was a 'newsie' at his stand there. He didn't know us; we didn't know him—but he had a kind twinkle in his eye. We told him our predicament and he loaned us enough money to see the show—without any security whatsoever.

HARRY A. WRAY DIES IN NORTH SIDE HOME

Harry A. Wray, 63, well known North Side funeral director, died suddenly at 9:30 a. m. today, at his home, 300 East North street. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 8 p. m.

ACQUITTED, MUST PAY COSTS

"Not guilty but pay the costs."

Within an hour and a half a jury in Criminal Court today returned this verdict in the case of Roland A. McCrady, William J. Kelly and J. L. Nelson, officers of the defunct Brotherhood Savings and Trust Company, charged with embezzling $102,500.75 to buy fictitious bonds at 35 to 50 cents on the dollar.

The jury of eight women and four men reached a verdict, it was reported, shortly after retiring, a few minutes before noon. They recessed for lunch and returned their finding at 1:30 p. m., when court reconvened.

MUST PAY BY MONDAY

Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, who tried the case, took the verdict and gave the defendants until Monday to pay the costs.

While waiting for the jury to come in, Frank T. Redman, alleged broker in the bond deal, indicted for larceny in connection with the case, collapsed in a hallway at the courthouse. He was taken to the first aid room where it was said he had suffered a hemorrhage. It is expected the charges against Redman will be nolle prossed.

In his address to the jury Assistant District Attorney Harry R. Phillips virtually exonerated Nelson. "There is no evidence in my mind," he said, "which would warrant a conviction of Nelson, the treasurer."

Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, in charging the jury, stated that if the jury found that "these officers did this in good faith, though with poor judgment, you must acquit them.

"Of course, Knapp had no bonds," declared the court. "He intended to get this money and abscond. Another point is that the bank did not actually lose anything by this transaction, McCrady having made good the amount not recovered on the Goodfellow farm."

MINISTERS TESTIFY

Two ministers, the Rev. Dr. John R. Ewers, of the East End Christian Church, and the Rev. Dr. C. Wallace Petty, of the First Baptist Church, were among an array of character witnesses who testified for McCrady at the windup of the trial. Others were County Court Judges S. J. McKim and T. C. Jones, George S. Davison, Robert Cain, former county commissioner; Robert L. Finley, president of the Wilkinsburg bank, and Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley.

McCrady, who shouldered entire responsibility for the bank's part in the bond pool, was recalled by the commonwealth in the closing moments of the trial. He was asked by Assistant District Attorney Phillips why the Brotherhood bank had borrowed approximately $100,000 on American securities August 21, 1926, about three weeks before the institution was closed.

"We were expecting a run momentarily," McCrady testified. "It was generally known among bank examiners at Harrisburg that we were in bad condition. We needed cash to meet any possible run. We were ad-

Zeppelin to Wireless To The Sun-Telegraph

WHEN the Graf Zeppelin—the largest airship which has yet cruised the skies—roars away from Germany this week, probably Thursday, on its history-making flight to the United States it will have aboard Karl H. von Wiegand, correspondent of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers.

By wireless from the radio room of the giant craft he will talk to you through the Sun-Telegraph columns and tell you the running story of the flight, while the Graf Zeppelin sails majestically over France or fights storms over the Atlantic Ocean.

Exclusive in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

ZEPPELIN'S U. S. FLIGHT DELAYED BY STORM

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Oct. 9.—A storm hovering along the route of the Graf Zeppelin on its flight to America has forced a postponement of the take-off scheduled for tomorrow. This announcement was made late today by the dirigible's officers. The giant airship may take off Thursday.

The silver greyhound of the air had been practically all clear for the American flight. Like a phantom barge laden with treasure, with the future aerial archway between Europe and America spanned and made permanently navigable, the big air liner glided silently into the spectral green lighted big hangar after dusk last night. It was the end of a four and a half-hour cruise—the airship's fifth flight—the final test before leaving for America.

"She is all right for the big flight now," jubilantly remarked Capt. H. C. Flemming as he stepped from the control cabin and the huge doors at both ends of the hangar closed.

"I ran her with two engines and I ran her with three to see what speed she would make in each case.

TEST SATISFACTORY

"The test was satisfactory in every respect."

Big "Hill" Lottery Bared

A Hill district lottery, declared by Police Inspector James N. Hoey to yield receipts of $6,000 a day, was bared in Morals Court today when five Negroes, three of them women, were held for court by Magistrate A. D. Brandon.

"This is only a scratch on the surface," declared Hoey, whose warfare against Alderman John J. Verona is held partly responsible for the latter's charges against the city administration and consequent grand jury probe. "We expect to nail the big fellows in the lottery game before long."

Police confiscated an adding machine and pool equipment when they raided the lottery headquarters at 1539 Wylie avenue, it was testified. Harry Hawkins, a barber, in charge of the pool, was declared by Hoey to be only a sub-agent.

Hawkins, in an alleged statement to Hoey yesterday named a man whom he said was the "big boss" of the lottery. This man was arrested, but was discharged by Magistrate Brandon today when Hawkins repudiated the statement Hoey declared he had made.

Hawkins was held for court, charged with maintaining a lottery, along with Georgia Hall, 1601 Webster avenue; Lena Johnson, 1723 Liberty avenue; Anna Smith, 1547 Webster avenue and Anderson Harbin, Monaco place.

According to Inspector Hoey, the lottery was based on New York clearing house figures. Chances cost from a penny to 15 cents and the winner got $30 for a nickel.

Order Raid On Probe Evidence

The grand jury investigation of alleged graft and collusion in the city and county produced its first tangible results today. After a bartender had testified that booze was being sold in the saloon in which he worked, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner ordered a half dozen sleuths to raid it. They did.

The saloon was that of Matthew Manonich at 730 East Ohio street. He was haled before Alderman George Anderson and held for court on a charge of violating the Snyder Act. The bartender who testified was Matt Maroionick.

Gardner also interrupted a parade of North Side witnesses before the grand jury to send his aide, Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park, before Judge James B. Drew with a request that Thomas Hufnagle, of Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, be declared in contempt of court for ignoring a subpena. The court issued an attachment ordering Hufnagle to explain.

Gardner had 52 witnesses lined up awaiting their turns to take the witness chair before the jury, and 30 of these hailed from Old Allegheny. They either knew that bootleg whisky was being sold under the eyes of North Side police, that slot machines rang a merry tune for the ears of racketeers, that houses of doubtful repute were being operated openly—or they didn't know.

Gardner paused in this investiga-

Hoyt Faces Sherdel Again as Fourth of Series Battle Starts.

By JAMES J. LONG,
Staff Correspondent.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—Freshened to some extent by the one-day rest that came to them through the postponement of the fourth game of the world series with the New York Yankees, but still tottering on the brink of defeat, and with only one more punch required to complete their overthrow, the all-but-crushed St. Louis Cardinals today put everything that they had left into a desperate effort to stave off their threatened downfall.

Upon the failure or success of that effort depended whether the series would end today in an utter rout for the National League champions, or would be carried over until tomorrow or later.

For only one game stood between the Hugmen and their second consecutive world championship. A victory today would not only give them the big title by a clean sweep, but would make them the only club in the history of baseball that ever won the honors two years in succession in eight straight games.

Last year they handed the Pirates four consecutive defeats, and up to date this fall they had floored the Cardinals three times in a row.

As eager to achieve that record as the Redbirds were to prevent them from doing so, the Yankees also were determined to let themselves out to the last notch in an attempt to bag this afternoon's game.

With both teams in that mood, through sheer desperation on the one side and through ambition and confident aggressiveness on the other, the fourth number of the so-called annual diamond classic—a ridiculous misnomer as far as the 1928 affair is concerned—held some promise of being the hardest-fought event of the series.

SHERDEL VS. HOYT

In a pitching sense it shaped up like a repetition of the first game of the series, as both hurlers who started in that contest were scheduled to go to the mound for the second time. Manager McKechnie again delegated Wee Willie Sherdel to do the flinging for the Cardinals, and Skipper Huggins decided to send Waite Hoyt to the knoll for the Yankees in the hope that he would succeed in duplicating his victory of the first day.

Sherdel had never won a World series game. He pitched two creditable engagements in 1926 and another this year, but lost them all, mainly because the Cards failed to hit the proverbial lick behind him. In the three games they scored a total of only four runs for the left-hander.

"He's due to get a break today," said Cardinal rooters, hopefully.

When the same teams met in 1926, the Redbirds lost to Hoyt in the fourth game and beat him in the seventh.

FANS' HOPE ERBS

Enthusiasm and hope among St. Louis fans, which had been strongly in evidence prior to Sunday's game, despite the defeats suffered by the Redbirds in the first two contests, showed a decided ebb. It was evident that Cardinal followers had little hope that McKechnie's men could escape defeat in the series, even though they should succeed in halting the Yankee drive temporarily by winning today's game.

The result was that the speculators, who had acquired possession of large stocks of tickets with the object of selling them singly or in sets at inflated prices, were making frantic efforts to get rid of their remaining stock at face value.

Accordingly it appeared that the

IS FRANCE ASHAMED?—HEARST

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—William Randolph Hearst told the Associated Press last night that he did "not see why the French government should make such a ridiculous fuss" over publication of the Anglo-French naval pact unless there was something in the "agreement which they are ashamed of and do not want the public of the United States to know."

Mr. Hearst's statement was made in answer to a request for his comment on an announcement in Paris yesterday by Har Horan, correspondent of the New York American, that he had been detained for seven hours by French police and was released only after he had signed a report of a cross-examination of how he obtained copies of the agreement which were published through the Hearst newspapers. Horan said that a copy of the agreement was handed to him by Mr. Hearst with a request that it be cabled to the United States.

"I do not see why the French government should make such a ridiculous fuss over the publication of this secret agreement with Great Britain," Mr. Hearst said, "unless there is something in the agreement which they are ashamed of and do not want the people of the United States to know.

"I think the people of the United States are already fully aware of the attitude of France towards this country and the disposition of France to make any combination it can in opposition to the welfare and prosperity of this country.

"In fact, I think the publication of this document in the Hearst papers tended to clear the atmosphere and to relieve France of a suspicion in the minds of the American people that the contents of the document were worse than they actually are.

"The American people are opposed to secret diplomacy. They realize that secret diplomacy was largely responsible for the recent great war and they feel that it will be responsible, if persisted in, for another great war.

"I think it might be wise for France to realize that if her machinations and her secret diplomacy should involve the world in another great war, as they are very likely to do, she need not again count on the assistance of the United States to rescue her from disaster."

STRAW VOTE IN CITY CLOSE

A merry battle of ballots is under way among Pittsburgh voters in the straw vote canvass of Pennsylvania conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Herbert Hoover are running a close race for the favor of the electorate of the city.

In the renewal of the canvass among city wards, the Democratic candidate won by a bare majority in the initial returns. In the returns for the second day, greater in volume, the Republican candidate forges ahead of Smith.

The total of returns from Pittsburgh for the second day gives Hoover 446 votes and Smith 406 votes. This Hoover majority of 40 overcomes the Smith lead of nine in the initial returns. All wards of Pittsburgh, except the Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth, are represented in these ballots.

Women voters are giving proportional support to the candidates. There are 207 women in the Hoover total and 190 women voting for Smith.

These ballots show Smith making heavy inroads among Republican voters. They also show him capturing a large share of the La Follette vote cast in Pittsburgh in 1924. Of this Pittsburgh group, 205 men and 265 women voted for Coolidge in 1924, and 239 men and 207 women now favor Hoover. The Davis vote, 27 men and 33 women, is negligible compared to the number supporting Smith. La Follette was favored by 68 men and 65 women in this group.

Much comfort is given the Hoover cause, however, by his usual large majority in the latest returns from other counties of the state. The Republican candidate is given a substantial lead in the total ballots for the day, increasing his lead in the grand totals to 14,838.

The present standing of the Pennsylvania poll, part of the nation-wide canvass by the Hearst papers, is as follows: Hoover, 43,438, 34,906 men and 8,534 women; Smith 28,600, 22,302 men and 6,298 women.

This vote in 1924 was divided as follows: Coolidge 49,003, 39,382 men and 9,621 women; Davis 8,122, 6,857 men and 1,265 women; La Follette 4,813; not voting 10,902.

32 KILLED BY RUM, U. S. STARTS PROBE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Death toll from alleged poison liquor today stood at 32 lives claimed since Saturday, while police and city officials enlisted government aid to stop the flow of deadly stuff at its source. Autopsies revealed wood alcohol as the cause of death.

Acting under orders from Police Commissioner Warren, police raided 21 alleged speakeasies on the lower East Side where most of the deaths occurred. Samples of the seized liquor were sent to the city toxicologist for analysis and the owner or person in charge of each place arrested.

A specially qualified investigator with a picked squad was sent out by Maj. Maurice Campbell, Federal prohibition administrator for this district, to co-operate with the police.

CHARGES HOMICIDE

Mayor Walker issued orders that those responsible for the poison liquor be apprehended and prosecuted. He declared its distribution is more than a violation of the Volstead act and amounts to homicide.

Meanwhile the bodies continued to pile up at the morgue where autopsies of 10 of the dead had shown that death was caused by drinking wood or denatured alcohol.

Dr. Charles G. Norris, medical examiner, called the deaths suicides.

"Accidental, of course, but the government could do a lot to prevent them by eliminating these poisons from industrial alcohol," said Dr. Norris.

"This is technical homicide," said Dr. Alexander O. Goettler, toxicologist at Bellevue Hospital, "and there is a criminal responsibility for these deaths."

attendance would fall below Sunday's total of 39,602.

WEATHER GOOD

At 11:30 the general admission seats were still far from being filled, and there was no sign of a rush at the gates.

The weather was ideal. The grounds had dried out after the hard rains of Sunday night and yesterday morning, and the sun shone so warmly that the spectators in the open seats shed their coats.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cards, admitted this morning that he was thinking of making a change in his outfield and possibly behind the bat, but said he would not make a definite decision until he had looked over his forces in the clubhouse and learned the condition of the athletes.

Headed by Nick Altrock and Al Schact doing their comedy stunts, the band marched around the field shortly after 11 o'clock and entertained the fans in the bleachers and unreserved pavilion seats with a series of popular airs.

The Cardinals came on the field at 11:35 o'clock and the cage was wheeled out for batting practice. The Redbirds were arrayed in the new white uniforms ordered for the world series. Through some mix-up the suits were not ready for use in the first St. Louis game on Sunday.

Carlisle Littlejohn pitched to McKechnie's men during their preliminary batting drill.

YANKEES LIMBER UP

The Yankees made their appearance at 12 o'clock and limbered up in front of the grandstand while the Cards were using the playing field.

The Yanks took the field for batting practice at 12:26 o'clock. Henry Johnson pitched to the hitters.

Reserved seat holders were filling in slowly and several thousands were scattered through the lower and upper decks of the grandstand. The bleachers in left and center fields were filled, but there still were many empty seats in the right field pavilion.

In his first appearance at the plate in batting practice, Babe Ruth stirred the crowd by hitting a fair ball over the right field stands and two foul drives into the far upper corner of the grandstand second tier.

CARD LINEUP CHANGED

Herb Pennock, though unable to work in the series, came out to pitch to the Yanks in batting practice after Johnson had worked for 15 minutes.

The Cardinals began their fielding practice at 12:55 p. m. The fans were now coming in more rapidly, the grandstands being about half full.

Manager McKechnie of the Cardinals finally decided to make two changes in his lineup. Earl Smith, former Pirate catcher, was sent in to supplant Jimmy Wilson behind the bat and Ernest Orsatti was assigned to Taylor Douthitt's position in center field.

The two men were placed in the batting order in the same positions that had been held by the men they replaced, Orsatti leading off and Smith batting seventh.

McKechnie made these shifts in the hope of strengthening the St. Louis attack. The Yankees followed the Redbirds for fielding practice at 1:09 p. m.

Sherdel started to warm up at 1:15.

BELL CREDITORS TO GET $28,404.60 IN LAND SALE

Creditors of John A. Bell, bankrupt Carnegie banker and coal operator, will collect $28,404.60 additional, the result of a verdict returned by a jury in court today.

James N. Jarvis, trustee in bankruptcy, had brought suit to recover in the transfer of property from Bell to William D. Hill, which was later reconveyed to Mrs. Mary B. Jones, Bell's daughter.

It was brought out that Bell sold land in the Second ward, Carnegie, to Hill for $25,000 taking $5,000 and a purchase money mortgage for the balance. Hill later told Bell he would not take the land and it was deeded to Mrs. Jones. Bell failed to satisfy the mortgage and Jarvis, as trustee, brought suit. Bell's deposition was read to the jury yesterday and today a verdict was returned for the plaintiff.

FRANCE ARRESTS HEARST WRITER

under grill as to where I obtained the information and documents leading to the disclosure of the Franco-British naval agreement.

Fortunately Carlisle MacDonald, correspondent of the New York Times in Paris, had been on the street corner in front of his office when my arrest took place. Not allowed to reach me by the cordon of police on bicycles, he immediately communicated with Frederick K. Abbott, Paris correspondent of International News Service.

Abbott tried vainly for seven hours to get in touch with me. He telephoned the foreign office, the prefecture of police and the Paris secret service. All refused to give him any information as to where I was, declaring that they knew nothing of me.

All this time I was in a little room watched by half a dozen police gendarmes who were deaf to my appeals to communicate with friends. During the evening I was visited by Police Commisar M. Robin. He proceeded to question me.

GRILLED OVER HOUR

For one hour and a half I was grilled as to the means by which the secret documents came into my hands. I repeatedly asserted that they were not stolen and produced a message from William Randolph Hearst showing he approved my sending the text of the treaty.

Nevertheless, the commissar continued to grill me, declaring that I was responsible and liable under the French law to five years' imprisonment for stealing state documents. Finally he said he was not satisfied with my story and that I would be held indefinitely.

Finding that protest was useless I asked whether I would be allowed to communicate with anybody during the time I was held. To this he again replied in the negative and continued questioning me.

The interview was suddenly interrupted by M. Robin's being called to the telephone in another room. In about 15 minutes he returned and stated that he had been talking to the prefecture of police, and the latter told him I was to be allowed my freedom on one condition.

That condition was that I sign a document to explain the fashion by which the text of the secret agreement had fallen into my hands, and also that I would abide by the order of expulsion which the French government had already made out against me.

Unable to communicate with anybody and breaking under the strain of seven hours' detention I finally consented to sign. No sooner had I done so, however, than I was also forced to make verbal agreement that I would leave France Thursday.

At my protest the commissar said he would use his influence to make it a temporary expulsion only. He phoned the prefecture of police, who also pledged himself to intervene with the minstry of foreign affairs.

No specific length of time was given as to when I might be allowed to return. "Indefinite" was the only answer of the commissar.

At 8 p. m., seven hours after my arrest, I was allowed my freedom. Returning to my office I found a delegation of American newspapermen awaiting me. I am now hiding in Paris, afraid to go home for fear that I will be escorted out of the country.

N. S. RAKED IN GRAFT

tion, which was inspired by the vice charges of John J. Verona, the Republican rebel of the Hill district, to promise the public that at least 100 "little fellows" would be recommended for indictment—"fellows" who couldn't remember vital things when they testified before the grand jury.

"GROUNDWORK LAID"

When the "little fellows" slated for indictment will be joined by the higherups, Gardner would not say, but he said he was certain high police officials would be called before the jury, since testimony definitely linking them with graft had been given.

"They will be called only when and if I have very good reasons to call them," Gardner said. "I'm not going out to 'get' anyone in this investigation. We've laid the groundwork, and we've found several trails of guilt. Wherever trails lead subpenas will follow. But I'll do nothing for the mere sake of exciting the pubic.

WANTS "SURE THINGS"

"I not so much interested in securing quantity indictments as I am in getting quality indictments —indictments that will stick. Too many grand juries pile up indictments on evidence that never would give a prosecutor a basis for conviction."

With the calling yesterday of the Rev. A. V. B. Hightower, Negro preacher, it became likely that the grand jury may be called upon to play Hercules and clean up what the Rev. Hightower regards as an Augean stable of vice, the Hill district.

The Rev. Mr. Hightower spent 30 minutes answering questions before the jurors, and when he left the room handed Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Parks a pint bottle containing a dark fluid. This appeared to be some more of the same evidence he gave Director of Public Safety James M. Clark a month ago in an effort to bring about police action against alleged Hill vice.

vised by the banking department to keep the bank assets in a liquid condition against such a contingency."

Nelson also was recalled. He testified he had never spoken to Charles E. Knapp, alleged go-between in the bond deal, or Frank T. Redman, alleged broker. He drew up the check for $102,500.75, the bank's share in the pool, he said, "because McCrady told me to."

John Simmons, 715 Noblestown road, Carnegie, a director of the bank, on the witness stand, was asked if there was any intimation at directors' meetings that the title to the bonds, to be purchased, might not be good.

"Yes, we talked that over," admitted Simmons.

Similar testimony was given by J. M. Stull and David J. Davis, also directors.

"NO FRAUD INTENDED"

In their pleas to the jury Attorneys Homer N. Young and Benjamin Lencher, for the defense, stressed that there was no evidence to show intent on the part of the defendants to defraud the bank, and cited the fact that the late Charles A. Dinkey, prominent steel man, and others had gone into the pool as proof that "business men sometimes make mistakes."

Of the $320,000 placed in the pool, testimony at the trial which began yesterday disclosed, $290,000 was recovered in the back yard of Edward A. Goodfellow, in Perrysville road. McCrady had made up part of the deficit from his personal funds.

HOOVER WANTS SHOALS LEFT IN U. S. HANDS

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Herbert Hoover stood committed today to governmental operation of the $100,000,000 Muscle Shoals project for agricultural research purposes and the manufacture of fertilizer.

Hoover specifically declared he approved the Coolidge administration's recommendation that the project be dedicated to agriculture. He declared the power developed at the project, over and above that necessary for manufacturing fertilizer, should be "disposed of on such terms and conditions as will safeguard and protect all public interest."

MAKES POSITION CLEAR

The Republican nominee made his position on Muscle Shoals clear after an hour's conference with members of his "board of strategy." He declared he stood for governmental ownership and operation of Muscle Shoals. In effect, Hoover approved the so-called Jardine plan, which dedicated the project to agriculture, but which was rejected by Congress last spring.

By stating he favored use of the project "for research purposes and development of fertilizers," Hoover left much doubt as to whether he approved the Norris bill, which Congress enacted at the last session but which was killed by President Coolidge's pocket veto.

One member of his board of advisers indicated Hoover did not approve the Norris plan, which would have given the government authority to operate the project as a "power plant" but turning over all proceeds from the sale of power to be used in fertilizer experiments there and elsewhere throughout the country.

In his statement, Hoover first repeated the declaration he made at Elizabethton last Saturday, when he said:

"I do not favor any general extension of the federal government into the operation of business in competition with its citizens. . . . There are local instances where the government must enter the business field as a by-product of some great major purpose, such as improvement in navigation, flood control, scientific research or national defense, but they do not vitiate the general policy to which we should adhere."

GOVERNMENT OWNED

"There is no question of government ownership about Muscle Shoals," Hoover added, "as the government already owns both the power and the nitrate plants. The major purposes which were advanced for its construction were navigation, scientific research and national defense. The Republican administration has recommended that it be dedicated to agriculture for research purposes and development of fertilizers in addition to its national defense reserve.

"After these purposes are satisfied there is a by-product of surplus power. That by-product should be disposed of on such terms and conditions as will safeguard and protect all public interest. I entirely agree with these proposals."

The Hoover organization meanwhile was highly pleased with the action of Gabrielle Greeley Clendenin, daughter of Horace Greeley, in endorsing the Republican nominee. Mrs. Clendenin wrote a public letter to southern women, reminding them that her father had helped to bail Jefferson Davis out of a federal prison at the end of the Civil War, and urging them to vote for Hoover.

ZEPPELIN IS POISED day to make various tests. The take-off was at 1:30, with a load approximating that with which we expect to start for Lakehurst.

"It was an unusually perfect take-off," exclaimed Commander Rosendahl, of the Los Angeles, in admiration, as we stood together watching the great ship soar.

Commodore Eckener and Staff Capt. Lehmann were so snowed under with office details on the eve of departure for America that both remained on the ground and sent the Graf Zeppelin up under Capts. Flemming, Von Schiller and Wittemann.

As though conscious of her freedom in the air and the power of her wings the air leviathan seemed unwilling to come down when dusk fell. Three times Capt. Flemming brought the airship above the landing field in the early twilight before he could get her down where the landing force could reach the landing lines with which she was pulled in as if reluctant.

The air data on the ground had suddenly become very cold and Capt. Flemming did not want to waste hydrogen gas by pulling the valves.

MORE FUEL LOADED

This morning some additional gas and fuel were put in and in the afternoon all baggage goes on board. The end of the day will find her ready for Commodore Eckener's command:

"Hoch for America."

Dr. Eckener is not planning on a daylight start. He explains:

"I want the officers and crew to have a good sleep the last night before we start. I'm not figuring on getting off before 8 o'clock in the morning."

Eckener has his troubles. Several champagne firms are fighting among themselves as to who may furnish the Graf Zeppelin free with champagne for the American flight.

Enough beer has been offered to fill all of the benzine and benzol tanks aboard the ship.

GANG BOMB OBLITERATES HOME

CHICAGO RACKETEERS' REVENGE

GIRL SHOT; SUITOR HUNTED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 9.—Peppered with shot as she ate a lunch last night, Mrs. Catherine Dennis, 18, of Masontown, is believed dying today in Uniontown Hospital, while state police and county detectives scour the mountains for her assailant, described as a rejected suitor.

The would-be murderer stood on a road, rested a shotgun on a fence and fired through a window at the woman. Some of the shot struck Joseph Boyer and his wife, seated at the table with Mrs. Dennis. Police say they are searching for Joseph Hughes, 24, of Masontown.

According to Boyer and his wife, they were eating lunch at 11 o'clock last night with Mrs. Dennis, when there was a shot, a crash of glass and the charge of shot struck Mrs. Dennis in the head and chest.

SUITOR SPURNED

Neighbors told the Boyers and police that Hughes had crept up to the house, rested his gun on the fence and fired.

From the Boyers, with whom Mrs. Dennis resided, the police learned that Hughes had tried to persuade Mrs. Dennis to elope with him. They said he had taken some of her clothing away Sunday night and when Mrs. Dennis refused to go with him he returned the clothing last night at 7 o'clock and a quarrel followed.

He left the house and several hours later the shooting occurred. Mrs. Dennis, whose maiden name was Pringle, was married to Dennis about two years ago, police learned. Later they moved to Fairmont, but after only a short residence there Mrs. Dennis returned and has been residing with the Boyers.

Neighbors told police that after the shooting Hughes started in the direction of Fairchance, and a search of that district was begun. Posses scoured the section all night without finding a clue.

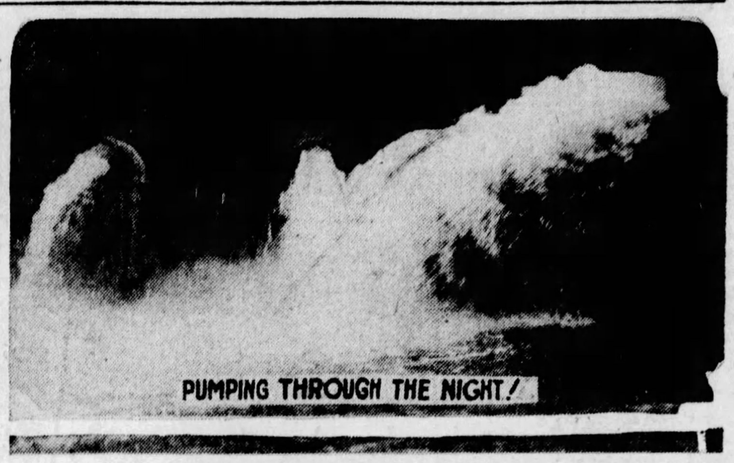
River's "Trivial" Waters :-: Fought Night and Day!



FLOOD PUMPS AT WORK HERE

Though the waters are only "trivial," as Councilman Robert Garland says, when the rivers in Pittsburgh pass flood stage (and they do, annually), these giant flood pumps are permanent equipment in riverside Pittsburgh buildings. Here, the pumps are working at capacity, in the last high water stage, to relieve downtown buildings of "trivial" water pressure that could do great damage.

THEY PUMP 24 HOURS DAILY

Twenty-four hours a day these pumps operated during the high water stage last year. This flashlight photograph shows the "trivial" water pouring from outlet pipes scarcely large enough to handle the flow. This fight is waged several times annually by business houses in the downtown section, some of them spending thousands each year to avoid more thousands of dollars' damage to stocks and property.

183,000 QUALIFY TO VOTE HERE

More than 183,000 Pittsburgh men and women are qualified to vote for Herbert Hoover or Alfred E. Smith on November 6, according to a tabulation made at the office of the Board of Registration Commissioners.

The total establishes a new record here, exceeding by about 27,000 the previous record of 153,356 established in 1927 and being about 56,000 more than were qualified here in the last presidential fight of 1924.

The bulk of the registration here is in the independent wards, the Fourteenth, home ward of the Mellons, second with an unprecedented Nineteenth, first with 13,215. The Thirteenth, another independent ward, is third with 8,498. The Second, an organization stronghold which is torn by factional strife and which is likely to swing to Smith, has only 1,868 qualified voters.

SEE HOOVER STRENGTH

While both Republican and and Democratic leaders claimed the advantage in the record registration the prevailing opinion in political circles was that it gave the edge in Pittsburgh to Hoover. The registration was high in sections regarded as friendly to Hoover and comparatively low in districts expected to support Smith. Most Smith strength lies in what formerly were known as organization strongholds.

Several precincts, during the three-day registration period, crossed the 600 mark, two being in the Fourteenth, one in the Nineteenth and one in the Twenty-seventh. With only the First district of the Eighth Ward missing, the total is 182,957. The vast majority registered as Republicans, only 16,349 men and 13,900 women—a total of 30,349—registering as Democrats.

TOTAL BY WARDS

The total by wards follows:

First, 2,613; Second, 1,868; Third, 3,105; Fourth, 8,330; Fifth, 6,217; Sixth, 4,332; Seventh, 6,269; Eighth, 6,464; Ninth, 5,610; Tenth, 7,592; Eleventh, 7,940; Twelfth 6,679; Thirteenth, 8,498; Fourteenth, 13,131; Fifteenth, 7,597; Sixteenth, 5,995; Seventeenth, 5,388; Eighteenth, 6,799; Nineteenth, 13,215; Twentieth, 7,433; Twenty-first, 5,085; Twenty-second, 4,226; Twenty-third, 4,160; Twenty-fourth, 3,818; Twenty-fifth, 4,797; Twenty-sixth, 7,496; Twenty-seventh, 7,534; Twenty-eighth, 2,482; Twenty-ninth, 4,975; Thirtieth, 3,309.

COUNTY ASKS REDUCTION OF NEVILLE FARM PRICE

County commissioners yesterday asked members of the poor board to reduce the price of $500 an acre placed on 25 acres of land on Bower Hill road, sought by the Historical Society of Allegheny County for a memorial to the Whisky Insurrection of 130 years ago. U. S. Blimp May Fly Here

The giant United States Navy dirigible, the Los Angeles, may pass over Pittsburgh late tomorrow, en route to its home station at Lakehurst, N. J. The ship left Lakehurst last Saturday evening and arrived at Fort Worth, Tex., last night.

Its return route will be as follows: Denton, Tex., and Ada and Tulsa, Okla., Erie and Paola, Kan.; Kansas City; Burlington, Ia.; Chicago; South Bend, Ind.; Toledo and Cleveland, O., and Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Lieut. Commander H. V. Wiley is in command of the ship. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, who usually is in charge, is in Germany to take passage to America on the dirigible Graf Zeppelin.

The return to Lakehurst will mark the completion of a 5,000-mile cruise, the dirigible's first trip into the heart of the United States.

HOMEWARD BOUND

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The giant Navy dirigible Los Angeles took off from the mooring mast at the United States helium plant here at 9 o'clock this morning on its return flight to Lakehurst, N. J. Several thousand persons were on hand to bid the craft adieu.

The great airship circled over the residential section of the North Side and then turned its silver nose northward, bound for its home hangar.

Chemist Burned in Blast

Burned on the face, hands and legs by the explosion of chemicals, Allen Cullen, 40, chemist for the National Research Corporation, 1409 Reedsdale street, ran three squares to summon firemen to extinguish the flames in the plant at noon today. Then he ran back to the scene of the fire before he had his injuries dressed.

A short circuit in a motor furnished the spark to set off the chemicals with which Cullen, who resides at 338 East North avenue, was working. He was blown across the room. He retained his presence of mind and dashed for the nearest engine house, three squares away on Fulton street, to summon aid. Firemen extinguished the burning plant after $1,500 damage had been caused.

Weather Conditions.

Light showers, of the thunderstorm type, were quite general over the Ohio Valley states, the Lake region and the Northeast, but only a few localities received sufficient rain to soak the ground. The showery condition resulted from the low pressure area that covered the central states yesterday morning. The disturbance is centered over Eastern Ontario this morning, moving rapidly down the St. Lawrence valley.

It is generally cloudy over the Northeast this morning, but over the Ohio Valley states and elsewhere over the West and South the skies are clear, generally, due to relatively high barometer. The Atlantic coast high shifted into the Southeast, with diminished pressure, while the western high spread over the Plains states and the Central valleys. Low pressure covers the Northwest, but with little precipitation. There are no freezing temperatures except in Northern Alberta and Saskatchewan.

WEST PENN MEN GET LIFE SAVING MEDALS

This award is given through the National Electric Light Association to those who by the use of the prone pressure method of artificial resuscitation are able to save human life. W. S. Finlay, Jr., president of the West Penn Electric Company, presented the medals to Arthur R. McLain, of Clarion; William Gallentine, of Normalville, and Joseph A. Cobbett, of McDonald.

WAGONMAN FINED AFTER HE QUOTES LAW TO STALEY

As he quoted the law to Magistrate John A. Staley in Traffic Court today, Wagonman William Walsh, driver of the North Side automobile patrol, was arrested on orders of the magistrate and later was fined $25 on charges of contempt of court and conduct unbecoming an officer.

Walsh, police reported, was appearing against Timothy W. O'Brien, 519 South Graham street, clerk in the mercantile appraiser's office, charged with reckless driving and was quoting the law relative to motor vehicles drivers heeding fire and police sirens, when Magistrate Staley reached for the book from which Walsh was reading. Walsh retained possession of it in a short struggle. Then the magistrate ordered Walsh's arrest. He was taken into the detention rooms, and reporters who sought to interview him were ordered out by Magistrate Staley. Later Walsh was taken before Staley, and says he was fined on two charges.

O'Brien was arrested Sunday, September 30, following a collision between his auto and the patrol at East Diamond street and Park way.

Put Prison Fire Dead At 20

JUNCTION CITY, O., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—With a total of 20 prisoners missing, all of them believed dead, and 27 injured, work of recovering charred bits of bodies from the smoking ruins of the dormitory of the Ohio penitentiary brick plant continued today.

Identification of the mutilated remains was practically impossible, so completely had the flames done their work yesterday. Officials in charge, however, believed they had portions of 15 bodies and had identified three as those of John Duncan, Toledo Negro; Moses Broncho, Franklin county Negro, and Ray Cooper, of Fairfield county.

The injured men were taken to Ohio Penitentiary hospital, in Columbus.

Meanwhile investigation of the blaze proceeded under direction of State Welfare Director John E. Harper and C. H. Sisson, personal investigator of Gov. Donahey.

It seemed fairly well established that defective electric wiring started the fire.

Three Die By Auto Mishaps

A man was killed and his wife and sister were injured last midnight when an automobile he was driving collided head on with a Butler interurban car in East Ohio street near Troy Hill road. The motorist was Ralph Arbuckle, 40, of 1207 Allegheny avenue. His wife, Minnie, 32, and his sister, Cora, 32, were cut and bruised.

Police say Arbuckle attempted to pass another machine. The street car was operated by Motorman F. M. McCandless, of Mars, Pa.

Walter Beers, 11, of Plum Creek, near Unity, was killed by an automobile in Universal road, Plum Creek, last night. County officials were trying to learn the identity of the motorist, who disappeared.

Fatally injured by a truck at Wabash avenue and Plank street, Robert Wachter, 3, of 120 Wabash avenue, died in South Side Hospital late yesterday. Police arrested Milton E. Holt, of 1408 Chelton avenue, as the driver.

Losing control of his truck while descending Wilbert street near Natchez street, late yesterday, James McCann, 19, of 88 Prospect street, fell from the vehicle and broke his leg. He was taken to South Side Hospital.

PLAN TO CHECK MINE FIRE

Representatives of the Bureau of Mines today conferred with Mifflin township commissioners and firemen as to the best means of fighting a fire in an old mine on the Neil farm near Lincoln place which has been burning for a year. Recently smoke from the burning mine has risen in greater volume than usual. Firemen from Homeville and Franklin have been summoned to check the spread of the fire.

Levine Set For Hop To Rome

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP.)Charles A. Levine's veteran monoplane Columbia was ready today for a takeoff at dawn tomorrow on its second crossing of the Atlantic—this time to Rome.

Plans for the flight were announced by Roger Q. Williams, veteran aviator, who said he would pilot the plane with Pietro Bonelli as navigator and Levine as a possible passenger.

Williams and Bonelli had been working for the last year with Cesare Sabelli on a projected flight to Rome in Sabelli's sesquiplane, Roma. Various delays held up the flight, however, and Williams said he and Bonelli had definitely severed connections with the venture.

The Columbia, which was "cracked up" in Italy after its flight of almost 4,000 miles from New York to Germany in June, 1927, has since been virtually rebuilt. Williams said mechanics had about completed a thorough tuning-up of the machine, that its motor has been checked and the huge fuel tanks that carried it on its flight to Germany have again been installed.

PENNA. SCHOOL OFFICIAL OUT

HARRISBURG, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Dr. C. Everett Myers, of New Cumberland, research secretary of the Pennsylvania State Education Association, was suspended yesterday by Dr. Joseph F. Noonan, president of the association, for insubordination. This action, according to Dr. J. Herbert Kelley, executive secretary, was the result of a letter written by Dr. Myers to the members of the departmental research committees without the authorization of Dr. Kelley.

The suspension is effective pending the report of the committee on professional ethics.

The executive council had adopted September 15, a recommendation to abandon the present research as "unsuitable and inadequate."

Two paragraphs of the published report were omitted, however. These, according to Dr. Kelley, declared the interests of the association would be best served by Dr. Myers' resignation.

The letter, basis of the insubordination charge, included the two omitted paragraphs and was sent to every member of the research committee.

OPEN WET DRIVE IN PITTSBURGH

Prohibition is sending millions of dollars of American money to Canada and other foreign countries to the detriment of business at home, declared Howard Scott, of Harrisburg, associate editor of the Anti-Prohibition News, who arrived in Pittsburgh today for a two-week campaign here in the interest of the "wet" movement in this state.

"If any state desires to be dry, then it is the right of that state to be dry," said Mr. Scott, who is advocating state rights as far as the liquor problem is concerned. "If any state wants to be wet, then it has a right to be wet."

SMITH LEAVES FOR SOUTHERN TOUR

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Gov. Smith left Albany at 12:25 o'clock this afternoon for New York on the first lap of his second campaign tour. He was accompanied by Mrs. Smith and their daughter, Mrs. John A. Warner.

The Governor will leave New York at 11 o'clock tomorrow night on his special train for Virginia, North Carolina and Kentucky. While in New York he will confer with John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and other advisers, on his future campaign plans.

YIELDS TO LEADERS

In touring the South, Gov. Smith has yielded somewhat to the importunities of Democratic sectional leaders who have been pouring their fears and their doubts into the ears of the party strategists in national headquarters in New York. They have been clamoring for speeches from the Democratic standard bearer in the border states and even in the Solid South. On this, however, the Governor has been adamant. He will make a personal appearance in Dixie to satisfy the demands of the local leaders, but his only speech of the week has been reserved for Louisville, Ky., next Saturday night.

There, on the border line between North and South, and in a state that is known for the closeness and turbulence of its political battles, Gov. Smith will speak his tariff views. The whole Southland, the border country, and in fact, the entire nation will be in his audience, via the radio.

BACK COUNTRY TOUR

The Louisville speech is to be preceded by a two-day tour of the country in back—Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee. All of Virginia and North Carolina have never given their electoral votes to a Republican presidential candidate. Tennessee strayed off the reservation once, in 1920, when Harding carried it by a narrow margin. Because of conditions peculiar to this year, the Democratic strategists want the Governor to exhibit himself to the voters of these states and the Governor has somewhat reluctantly consented.

Gov. Smith will be accompanied into the South by three Democratic notables not with him in the West, Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, ranking Democratic member of the Appropriations Committee, and one of the fiscal authorities of Congress; Norman H. Davis, under-secretary of state in the Wilson administration, and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, one of the famous Langhorne sisters of Virginia, who knows the South and Southern women. Mrs. Smith and their daughter, Mrs. Emily Warner, will comprise the other women members of the party.

MASS MEETING FOR SMITH

A mass meeting in the interest of Gov. Alfred E. Smith's candidacy for President was held last night in the auditorium of the Peabody High School. This meeting was under the auspices of the Eleventh and Twelfth Ward Alfred E. Smith headquarters and was presided over by Attorney Conrad Checco. Speeches were delivered by Miss Margreeta Minette, Attorneys John E. Laughlin, J. Howard Devlin Byron J. Finn and A. L. Wolf.

Headquarters for Smith were opened last night in Swissvale at Monongahela avenue and Washington street. A large turnout of Smith supporters heard addresses by Attorney Andrew G. Smith and John J. H. McCarty.

On Wednesday evening in the Moose Temple, Penn avenue, the Nineteenth Ward Democratic committee will hold a bridge and euchre. This affair is held to raise funds for the local Smith committee. William J. Gleason is general chairman and Mrs. Margaret Duggan vice chairman.

OWNER CLOSES ESTATE TO HUNTERS OF DOES

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—In accordance with a decision of farmers and land owners in this part of the state to combat the open season for doe deer which has been ordered by the State Game Commission, C. C. Worthington, of Shawnee-on-Delaware, has had the court appoint several special guards to patrol his property and keep hunters out. Worthington, whose lands comprise some 15,000 acres, has always taken a keen interest in hunting conditions.

UTICA SCHOOL GIRL FINDS HAVEN WITH MOTHER HERE

The little Utica (N. Y.) schoolgirl, Evelyn Roedel, who strayed from the home of her grandparents in that city about 10 days ago, is back in Pittsburgh with her mother today.

She is shunning further publicity and couldn't be seen, although it was admitted that she is staying with her mother, Mrs. Pearl Roedel, Avalon High School teacher, in a rooming house at 519 Dawson street, Bellevue.

Mother and daughter, it was stated, wish to forget the entire affair. It was explained that there was no mystery to the matter at all, as the girl, upon leaving her grandparents' home, wrote her mother a letter telling all about her plans. The girl, it was said, tiring of the quiet home life of her aged grandparents, and lonesome, decided to go to work and earn enough money to transport herself to her mother here. But before the letter reached the mother, she had learned of her daughter's disappearance and was on her way to Albany to help in the search.

The report that the girl had left her suitcase lying under a Mohawk river dike at Frankfort was explained by the fact that it became too heavy for her to carry and she had hidden it there, expecting to return for it at a later time.

HOMESICK VETERAN TO GET BACK HOME

CARNEGIE POLICE HIS HOSTS

Martin Ulman, 32, veteran of the armies of four nations and the cosmopolite who deserted a tramp steamer, bound from Balboa, Spain, to Buenos Aires via the Great Lakes, at Detroit because he was homesick, will get back home. He arrived in Pittsburgh "broke" and found friends in Carnegie police. His papers show he served in the British Army in Russia, the Latvian Army, the Russian Army and the French Foreign Legion. Here, Officer Christ H. Keisling (left), one of his hosts, and Herman R. Bauer (right), government immigration agent, look over his papers.

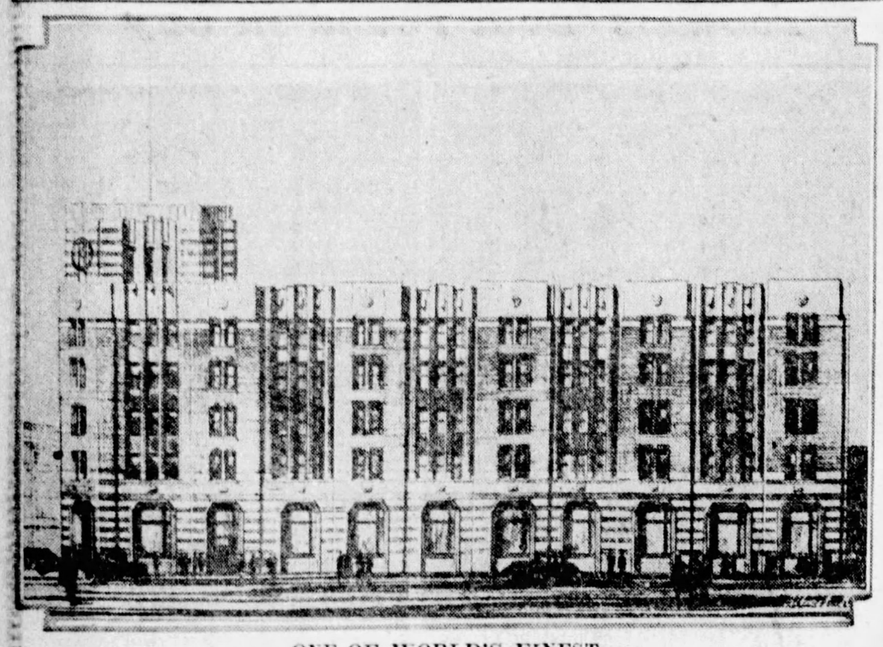
BALLOT LAW CHANGE UP

THE NEW TIMES BUILDING IN DETROIT



ONE OF WORLD'S FINEST

Within eight months, the Detroit Times will occupy this magnificent newspaper plant, a six-story structure that architects say will have few equals in the world for beauty and newspaper operating efficiency. Almost unbelievable leaps in circulation and business since the paper was bought by William Randolph Hearst six years ago compel immediate construction.

SEEK REPEAL OF 250 VOTES AS ZONE LIMIT

One of the 14 proposed constitutional amendments that will be voted upon by the citizens of Pennsylvania on November 6 is designed to abolish a mandate that for years has been generally disregarded in Pittsburgh and other cities of the state.

That mandate directs that when more than 250 votes are polled in an election precinct in any city of a population of 100,000 or more, the precinct shall be divided.

The recent registration in Pittsburgh shows clearly the manner in which this constitutional provision, which the amendment would abolish, is being disregarded. Hundreds of districts registered more than 250 voters. Several exceeded 600. The same situation prevails in Philadelphia and other cities.

The amendment, if approved, also would make possible consolidation of small districts. In Pittsburgh there are districts where the registration, even in this record year, is under 100. According to reports from Philadelphia, two precincts there have fewer than 10 registered voters.

"Every district eliminated means a material saving of public money," says a statement issued by the Pennsylvania Elections Association.

This amendment, which is No. 6 on the ballot, is designed to fit in with the voting machine amendment, which is No. 13, although neither one is dependent upon the other.

According to proponents of voting machines, their use would speed up the voting and simplify the work of the election boards in such a way as to make the division of large precincts unnecessary.

CITY EMPLOYES ASK RAISES

The medical inspectors in the Bureau of Child Welfare, Department of Health, made another effort to secure salary increases yesterday. They proposed to Council that salaries of the 12 inspectors be raised from $2,280 to $3,000 a year and that 26 employed for 10 months at $190 to $250 a month.

The International Union of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Helpers sent a letter to Council asking increases for members of that union employed by the city.

William Young, assistant mechanical foreman at Schenley Conservatory, asked an increase from $4.75 to $5.75 a day.

ELECTRICAL DEALERS HEAR COMMITTEES

Business sessions, with reports of committees, comprised the second day's program of the Pennsylvania Association of Electrical Contractors and Dealers, who opened their sixteenth annual convention yesterday at Hotel Schenley. One hundred and twenty delegates registered. An address of welcome was made at the opening session by President of Council James F. Malone, and a response was made by W. V. Pangborne, of Philadelphia, president of the association.

MAIL ROBBERY SUSPECT BROUGHT HERE FOR TRIAL

George F. Aberth, 28, a former railway mail clerk, yesterday was brought from Buffalo to stand trial in Federal District Court on a charge of stealing $13,000 from a railway mail pouch on the Allegheny Valley Railroad in August, 1927. In default of $10,000 bond he was committed to jail. Aberth was arrested two weeks ago in Buffalo by Postoffice Inspectors George V. Craighead and E. J. Gallagher, after extensive investigation. Aberth, according to authorities, confessed.

FIXES $150,000 AS SUM TO REHABILITATE CITY ZOO

About $150,000 will be required to rehabilitate the Highland Park zoo, director of Public Works Edward G. Lang informed Council yesterday in response to a request that he survey the institution.

He listed the principal needs as follows: $25,000 for additional cages for small animals; $30,000 for new bear dens and cages on the hillside near the Zoo; a large aviary, with a pond for water fowl, which would cost $15,000; additional runways for large animals to cost $15,000; better accomodations for buffalo, deer, antelope at a cost of $20,000 and $30,000 for new animals.

If the new bear dens are constructed, he reported, it will be possible to use the present one as outdoor runways for lions, tigers, leopards and other animals of the cat family.

STARTS REPLEVIN SUIT TO REGAIN LOST DOG

J. Remmen has filed a writ of replevin in the prothonotary's office against Franklin Muntz and his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Muntz, to obtain possession of a greyhound. On that date he was in Duquesne Garden attending a show of the Kennel Club and, he charges, Muntz, who lives at 134 Bascom street, had the dog.

DETROIT TIMES BEGINS NEW BUILDING

DETROIT, Oct. 9.—The Detroit Times will, within eight months, be housed in one of the most modern and complete newspaper buildings in the country.

Ground was broken this morning for the new six-story building on Times Square and Cass avenue, to occupy half of the three-street property owned by the Times.

An additional investment of two and a half million dollars in Detroit will be made by William Randolph Hearst, owner of the newspaper, and of this amount approximately one million dollars will go into the building, a half million into new equipment and the remainder into other betterments of the Times Publishing Company.

Plans for this great newspaper building have been prepared by Albert Kahn, the well-known architect, who has contributed so many outstanding structures to Detroit's skyline.

The Detroit Times has had one of the most remarkable growths in the history of American newspapers. From a daily circulation of 20,000 in 1921, when purchased by Mr. Hearst, it has reached a daily paid total exceeding 300,000, with the exception of Saturday, and has developed, from a standing start in 1922, the Detroit Sunday Times with close to 350,000 paid circulation.

The Detroit Times has led all American newspapers thus far in 1928 with an advertising gain exceeding one million agate lines.

Roger M. Andrews is president and publisher of the Times, one of the 28 great American daily newspapers owned by William Randolph Hearst.

PIKE ST. SHIFTS UP IN COUNCIL

Several ordinances dealing with the improvement of Pike street and the construction of the new produce yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad in that district appeared in Council yesterday.

One was an ordinance by which the railroad would dedicate sufficient land to the city to widen Pike street from 40 to 60 feet. Others would vacate Etna street from Fourteenth street to a point 200 feet west, Twelfth street from Pike to a point 110 feet north, Thirteenth street from Etna to the Allegheny River, Fourteenth street from Pike to the Allegheny River, Twenty-second from Smallman to Railroad streets, and an unnamed way between Pike and Etna streets.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang reported that the total cost of the Pike street widening project would be about $255,700, of which $25,000 would be property damage and $50,000 reconstruction of the approaches to the Sixteenth Street Bridge.

WORKERS' PARTY BAN PROTESTED TO COUNCIL

An effort to have Council override the decision of Clifford B. Connelly against permitting the Workers Party of America to hold a meeting in North Side Carnegie Hall October 28 has been started by A. Jakira, organizer of the party for District 5, of which Pittsburgh is a part. The only reason for Connelly's refusal to permit the Workers' Party to have the hall is that "he happens to disagree with the policies and aims of our party," Jakira wrote. William Z. Foster, presidential candidate, who directed the steel strike here several years ago, is listed as the speaker at the meeting.

EXILE SEES MUSSOLINI'S FALL DUE IN REVOLUTION

"A revolution will sweep Italy," says Dr. Vincenzo Nitti, late of Rome, now of Paris, who is in Pittsburgh today. "Mussolini, the iron man, will be crushed into an abyss of his own making—by violence, perhaps—perhaps legally. Jails will be loaded with Fascist spies and military. Peace will spread over sunny Italy's vineyards and cities. Italians, proud, liberty-loving, will once more have their right to speak out whether their words be critical or friendly."

"In a word, Italy must be rid of its dictatorship; Italy must be free," said Dr. Nitti.

Dr. Nitti, exile, anti-Fascist, is one of the more famous of the younger soldiers of Italy. He arrived here this morning and in his room in the William Penn Hotel, spoke freely on Italy's ills, its burdens—its dictatorship. Once famous as an editor of Il Mundo, and as director of The Yellow Beak, his country's greatest satirical weekly, he now views both newspapers crushed, their plants reduced to scattered debris, and himself a resident of Paris—because he dared to differ poltically with the reigning power—Mussolini.

"There will be a revolution. Italy has had similar regimes, notably Caesare Borgia and Cola Di Rienzi. The revolution will take, very probably, the form of the German revolution—a comparatively bloodless one," Nitti asserted.

Dr. Nitti and F. S. McClure, founder of McClure's magazine, will debate tonight at the Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue, with the American editor defending the Mussolini regime.

Dr. Nitti's father was a former premier.

Prior to the debate, which will be judged by George Seibel, dramatic critic of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Charles H. Joseph will entertain the debaters and a small group of local writers at a dinner in the Concordia Club. The debate will start at 8:30 o'clock.

FIRE FIGHTING DEMONSTRATED

On old Exposition Park grounds at the north end of Manchester Bridge yesterday there was a fire, at which firemen smiled and somebody made a speech. It was a demonstration arranged by the Chamber of Commerce because this is Fire Prevention Week.

Besides the demonstration of some very nice flames, fire-fighting equipment and signal service were put through their prances. The speech was all about the sprinkler system.

Health is in peril when gums break down

Life without good health is bankrupt. So it's important that you provide protection against the stealthy attack of dread diseases that start in neglected gums. For they ravage health. They often cause loss of teeth. Do this:

Buy protection—the best care of modern dentistry. See your dentist every six months. Brush your teeth daily—with your favorite tooth paste if you wish. But don't forget it is equally as important to brush your gums. For this purpose, use Forhan's for the Gums—the dentifrice designed to firm gums and keep them healthy, thus warding off disease.

Use this dentifrice morning and night. The way it makes your gums look and feel will delight you. And you cannot help but notice how effectively it cleans teeth white and protects them from acids which cause decay. Get a tube of Forhan's from your druggist—today.

★ 4 out of 5 after 40 and many younger sacrifice health to grim Pyorrhea.

BALTIMORE & OHIO

"The success of a dinner is won or lost, I think, in those few minutes after the guests have left the table when the coffee is being served. If the coffee is just right—clear and fragrant and very good—the mood of the group somehow becomes genial; conversation sparkles; and one knows the evening will be happy. In my own home I always use Maxwell House Coffee. I think it is the very best."

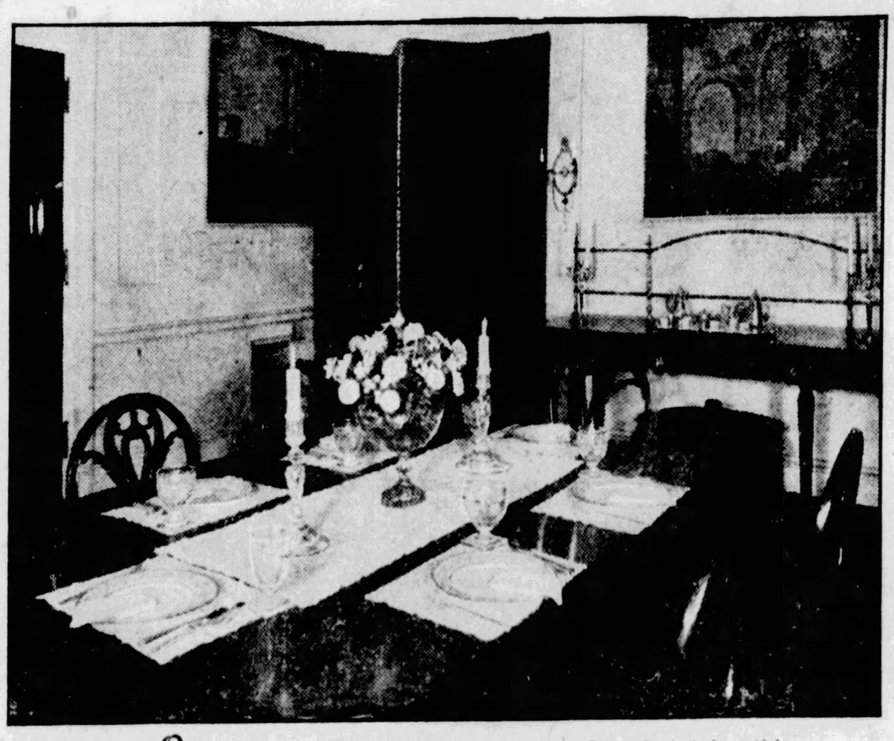
Courtney Letts Borden

MRS. JOHN BORDEN, ever since her debutante days has been a moving spirit in the smart worlds of Lake Forest and Chicago. Before her marriage she was Miss Courtney Letts.

ON AN INTIMATE OCCASION Mrs. Borden herself pours Maxwell House Coffee for her guests in the study—which is a fascinating room—crowded with mementos of the truly heroic explorations of the Arctic which Mrs. Borden has made with her husband.

MRS. JOHN BORDEN

whose sparkling hospitality is making social history in Chicago



ONE OF THE MOST MAGNIFICENT ROOMS in Mrs. Borden's beautiful Chicago home is the dining room, with its striking murals by Abram Poole. The Sheraton table is decorated for a formal dinner with choice Waterford glass.

MRS. JOHN BORDEN is like the fortunate princess in a modern fairy tale—young, beautiful, charming, talented.

Her lovely Georgian house in Chicago's most delightful residence district is not only a real home, but a center of warm hospitality and stirring ideas.

The most distinguished scientists and men of letters find a congenial atmosphere there, for both Mrs. Borden and her husband are experienced explorers of the Arctic and Mrs. Borden herself is a writer of considerable ability. Her new book, "The Cruise of the Northern Light," will appear this Fall.

A woman of Mrs. Borden's social finesse understands almost by instinct the importance of certain seemingly small details in entertaining.

Invariably she pays particularly close attention to the coffee that is offered to her guests. She insists that it be made with the utmost care; she has it served with distinction. And, like Mrs. Borden herself, she chooses Maxwell House.

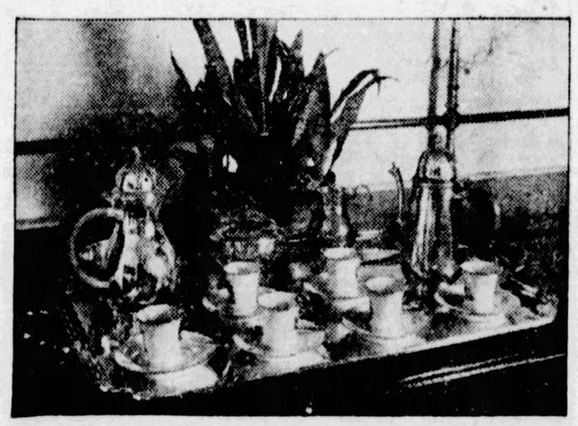
It is the flavor of Maxwell House Coffee, of course, that makes it the favorite wherever tastes in food are cultivated.

That flavor has a special shade of richness, a depth of mellowness, that no other coffee can approach. It is blended from many choice coffees,—selected and combined after long and patient experimenting by an expert in coffees who grew to manhood in the Old South, where living well was an art.

As time went on, travelers from all over the country—many of them people of distinction—were drawn to the old Maxwell House in Nashville by the fame of Maxwell House Coffee. Then they wanted to taste its delicious flavor in their own homes.

And now, wherever you live, you can enjoy this celebrated coffee at your own table. Your grocer has Maxwell House Coffee.

MRS. BORDEN'S COFFEE SERVICE is of silver, in Queen Anne design. After a formal dinner, Maxwell House Coffee is served in the drawing room in these charming little cups which Mrs. Borden brought from France.



"WHY DID HE HIDE HIS NAME?" A charming drawing of an incident in the history of the famous old Maxwell House in Nashville. This guest wrote to the newspapers about the delicious coffee they served to him there. Distinguished visitors at the old hotel told all over the country the story of Maxwel House Coffee and its matchless flavor.

MUSICAL PROGRAM BROADCAST EVERY THURSDAY

Weekly radio program of delightful music by the famous Maxwell House Coffee Concert Orchestra, is broadcast from WJZ, WBZ, WBZA, WHAM, KDKA, WJR, KYW, WTMJ, WOC, WHO, WOW, KOA, WCCO, KSD, WDAF, KVOO, WBAP, KPRC, WSB, WSM, WMC, WHAS, WLW, WBAL, WBT, WJAX, WEBC, KGO, KPO, KFI, KGW, KOMO, KHQ. SECOND CHANCE AT ZAIN CASH OFFERED

Did you see in The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph yesterday specimens of the advertisements to which prizes were awarded in the first weekly period of the Zain Ad-Writing Test for amateurs?

Pretty good, weren't they?

Don't you suppose you could write something equally good, or better?

If you can, you stand a good chance to win the grand prize of $1,000, or, if you miss that, one of the five prizes of $100 each; or, if not that, one of the other prizes, totaling nearly $1,000, that are still to be awarded.

Besides the prizes of aggregate value of $15,000 to be given by The Sun-Telegraph, a number of special prizes are offered by the participating advertisers. It is announced that W. W. Ross, 1411 East street, North Side, who wrote, during the first period, the ad about Pickering's that was adjudged best, won, in addition to the regular prize, a special prize, consisting of a Cogswell chair, given by Pickering's. This was his ad:

Listen!
Before those Wedding Bells ring ting-a-ling,
Have your New Home furnished by Pick-er-ing!
Pickering's Furniture Store
Is Located at Tenth and Penn—
"Nuf-Ced."

You noticed that some of the prize-winning ads of last week consisted of just a few words. It was the idea that counted, and it is the idea that will count in the selection of the other prize-winners.

Professional advertising men and newspaper employes are barred from the contest, and you don't have to know anything about the technical side of ad writing.

To b eligible for the second prize of $100 cash, your ads must be in the office of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph not later than midnight on Wednesday night, October 10, that is, tomorrow midnight.

Ads coming in after that hour will be automatically entered for the third period, and so on.

Read carefully the rules and the list of concerns about whom the ads must be written. They will be found on this page.

To be eligible for the $1,000 grand prize you must write an advertisement some time during the campaign about each of the 39 participating firms. Visit their shops. Buy their products. Utilize their service. There is no better way in which to get ideas for your ads.

You will find Sam's Umbrella Shop at 635 Penn avenue an interesting place. It is "Pittsburgh's Only Exclusive Shop" for umbrellas and walking sticks. Umbrellas in gloria and silk, with metal or wooden rods, for men and women, in a variety of colors, with handles in numerous designs, covering a wide price range—this is a mere suggestion of what you will see at Sam's.

It is surprising what you can get at Sully's, Inc., dealers in auto accessories, with stores at 420 Wood street and 5900 Penn avenue. Motorists find their shop windows fascinating. There is such a diversified array of things to add to the efficiency and comfort of the car—and at such low prices, too. And there are many other kinds of worth-while things that are not on display.

What is your time worth, What, your comfort? The value you place on them may serve to measure the worth to you of Yellow Cab Company service. Yellow Cabs save a lot of money for Pittsburghers by enabling them to catch trains and make necessary trips around the city and suburbs in a fraction of the time required by other kinds of conveyance. Yellow Cabs are superior.

"Bennett Means Best." There is keen satisfaction for every man in wearing the kind of apparel that the J. G. Bennett Company, 443 Wood street, sells. There is satisfaction for every woman in giving Bennett articles to her men relatives and friends as Christmas or birthday presents. There are no misgivings when you buy the best.

Write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, which should be at least as large as a postal card and preferably commercial letter size. Write your name and address on the back of each sheet and also on the flap of the envelope in which you mail them. SEND THE ADS TO THE ZAIN AD-WRITING TEST, CARE OF THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, PITTSBURGH, PA.

Seeing the Shows of the Day as Viewed and Reviewed by Critics Whose Opinions Are Here Broadcast

Alfred Lunt as a Guardsmen, Lynn Fontanne as an Actress, Delightful in Molnar Play

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

WHAT perfect acting can make out of a play that is no more solid than a chocolate drop was shown last night at the Nixon Theater when "The Guardsman" was presented—the third week of the Guild season. Molnar is the author—Molnar the Hungarian who can take one part of marzipan and two parts of Jamaica ginger, and roll them out into three acts of piquant comedy. He has rolled them out very thin in "The Guardsman"—and all the more do the actors shine through the mixture—for the comedy is perfectly cast, perfectly played. It is little more than atmosphere, but it is the atmosphere of rarified art.

There is a book by Alphonse Daudet called "Femmes d'Artistes," from which Molnar might have got the inspiration for his dramatic soap-bubble. The vanities and jealousies of professional people are the theme of Daudet's stories and of Molnar's comedy. The artistic temperment with its effervescence and exaggeration, its laughable tragedies and its tearful farces, is not material for great passion or stirring romance—and Molnar asks nothing more than the indulgent humor of his audience. It is a play for the sophisticated—rousing neither sympathy nor terror; it has no lesson to teach—it doesn't even challenge the censor. But it gives a wonderful opportunity to a wonderful acting company, for with less wonderful acting there wouldn't be any play.

Seven people are in it. Only seven! But one of these seven is Alfred Lunt, and another is Lynn Fontanne. They are not presented as stars, but as two figures in a perfect ensemble. Yet there have been few stars in our time whose work had the finish, the life, the artistic and human qualities put by these two players into their characterizations. Every detail is thought out with consistency, and every moment has the ring of sincerity. Alfred Lunt has to play the part of a great actor, and he plays it convincingly for the simple reason that he is a great actor. Lynn Fontanne has to play the romantic and temperamental actress—and she too convinces us that she is real, and could play Camille if she were cast for it.

But there are five other people in the cast. One of them is Ernest Cossart as the Critic, a figure full of sly satiric bonhomie which he portrays with real relish. Another of them is Jane Wheatley as "Mama," a grotesque mixture of duenna and parasite which she endows with the breath of life. Hortense Alden plays a slatternly slavey with amusing drollness, and Hannan Clark has two brief scenes which his skill saves from caricature. Geneva Harrison as an usher has nothing to do, but she is the seventh member of a perfect cast.

And if anybody wishes to see what a perfect cast can do for a comedy that is really nothing more than a bonbon or a chocolate drop, he should see "The Guardsman," in which Molnar has given another twist to the idea used in "The Play's the Thing."

And if anybody wishes to see acting of exquisite finish, let him go and watch Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne at the Nixon.

COLLEEN MOORE OLD SELF IN GRAND FILM

Colleen Moore is her old self again—the comedienne in her new picture, "Oh Kay," current in the Grand and Liberty. It is based on the successful stage comedy. As a young English heiress, Colleen Moore finds herself in a seemingly deserted mansion, which rum-runners use for a storage house unknown to the owner. And it so happens that about the time Colleen nears the house, the owner, a handsome young man, returns and prepares for his wedding on the morrow. Many hilarious situations come with the morning. Colleen, forced to masquerade as a maid for a time, and Ford Sterling, rum-runner, turned butler through necessity, cause many laughs. Short screen entertainment is on the bill.

LENDING AID :-: IN CREATING ILLUSION :-: IN PLAYBILL

Lynn Fontanne, leading feminine player in "The Guardsman," Guild play in Nixon.

Al Jolson, singing comedian, plays chief role in "The Singing Fool," in Stanley.

Winifred Barry is prominent in cast of "The Skull," mystery thriller in the Pitt.

William Haines has the stellar role in "Excess Baggage," shown on Penn screen.

Remodeled Pitt Is Opened With "The Skull," Mystery Drama of Spooks and Crooks

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

THE Pitt, with lower floor remodeled, the entire house repainted, with new decorations, draperies and red plush seats in evidence, presented what seemed like a new theater at the opening last night, although the work is not entirely completed. It will be carried on throughout the next two weeks with the promise that it will be as cozy a playhouse as there is in town. Alterations, however, had progressed to such an extent that there was nothing to interfere with the opening of the house and a good sized audience was in attendance last night at the presentation of the first play of the Pitt's regular season, "The Skull."

"The Skull," mystery melodrama by Bernard J. McOwen and Harry E. Humphrey, is about the spookiest play of the thriller type that has come along yet. It is a combination of all the weird drama from "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" to "The Spider," and, like most of the modern plays of the type, it has a certain mysterious character whose identity is hidden until the final moments of the play.

The action takes place in an old church that has not been in use for 10 years following the murder of its organist. A mysterious master criminal known as The Skull is to visit it on a certain night for the purpose of obtaining jewels stolen by another person, proving that there really is no honor among thieves, and a detective who has been informed of the proposed visit, arrives to circumvent the dirty crook. By a coincidence there also arrives the son of the supposed thief, eager to regain the jewels and establish the innocence of his father. There also come, his friend, a reporter, and his sweetheart, to warn him that he may be done away with, her aunt, who had built the church, a professor of psychic phenomena, and a rival for the hand of the young man's fiancee.

There are three acts, but each is a continuance of the preceding one, with action beginning just where it had left off, so in reality it is all just one long act, halted at times to give everybody a rest. And they need it, for there is plenty of the kind of stuff of which mystery plays are made, shadowy figures that seem to walk through walls, a lady spook that moans out directions about this and that, thunder and lightning and funny acting doors, with everybody nervous but the audience, the comedy reporter especially. And in the end The Skull proves to be, strange to relate, one of the five or six persons you suspect might be that sneaking individual.

Quite well played, it gave special opportunity to Sidney Riggs, who played an unusual character role with considerable emotional power. Winifred Barry was the young woman in whom two young men were interested, pleasing in appearance and capable in her acting. Well drawn characters were those played by C. W. VanVoorhis, Reginald Carrington and Victor Beecroft. Allan Davis took care of the comedy as a timid reporter. Frances Brandt, Carola Parson and Harry Nelson also helped.

RAY SHANNON IN HARRIS

Ray Shannon & Co. bring a lot of laughs to the Harris in a headline capacity on the new three-day vaudeville bill. Ray, as a theater prop boy, hands out a barrage of witty and snappy chatter. He's supported by three other players, including a large lass who does a specialty song act that makes a hit. Shriner and Gregory offer a lot of funny talk and some musical bits. One is a blackface comedian. Both know their business—which is to amuse. O'Brien and Josephine present a rather lively act of song and nonsense. Their jokes could be newer. O'Brien does well with that "That's My Weakness Now" song. The Sub Deb Dancers are three attractive steppers. And step they can. This act is presented by Eugenie La Blanc, who contributes quite a big share of the entertainment. Bill Druitt, cowboy singer, gives a novel vocal arrangement of "Irish Eyes Are Smiling." A shadowgraph presentation opens the stage show. The photoplay is "Thanks for the Buggy Ride," a comedy of Tin Pan Alley, starring Laura La Plante.

EAST END STOCK STAGES COHAN FILM

The George M. Cohan satire, "So This Is London," is being presented in the East End Theater this week by the Lillian Desmonde Players. The plot concerns an American and an English family and shows each as it is viewed by the other. Lillian Desmonde plays the feminine lead and John Vossburg is the leading man. "So This Is London" is a comedy.

HAINES LIKED IN PENN

William Haines, in "Excess Baggage," on the Penn screen, has laid aside his freshness and becomes again a real human being. Of course a singer might not call an acrobatic clown human, and that's what Haines is in "Excess Baggage," but, leaving out back-stage professional opinions, his part can be called that of a human. "Excess Baggage" is a real pleasing little story, one of the kind you like very well without finding anything particularly to rave about. Haines, as stated, appears as vaudeville performer. His wife merely lends atmosphere to his act—considers herself excess baggage—so when she has a chance to go into the movies her husband does not stand in her way. She seems of little use in his act, but when she is gone he finds that her mere presence had been a benefit and that he is not a success, although she becomes one in the films. Josephine Dunn is the charming feminine lead. On the stage "Blossoms" presents various song and dance specialties by Sammy Lewis, Patti Moore, George Dewey Washington and the Foster Dancing Girls, all introduced by the peppy Teddy Joyce.

ACADEMY BURLESQUE IS "MOULIN ROUGE"

In "Moulin Rouge Girls," this week's burlesque in the Academy, the scenes are mainly comedy, with several dramatic bits. "Argonne Memories" is a sketch dealing with wartime incidents. Benny (Wop) Moore is the featured comic. Belle Moore is seen in vocal and dance diversions and in a specialty. Pauline Lee is featured in "Here Comes the Show Boat," aided by a number of dancers. Nannette Dailey, Grace Tremont, Abe Gore and William Berning are prominent in the vocal and comedy scenes. An Oriental scene presents LaBelle Zaza in dancing specialties.

LIFE, MELODY OF SCHUBERT IN ALVIN

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

A year ago, almost to the day, "Blossom Time" was with us for the tenth—or was it the eleventh?—time in the Alvin. Now once more it is the current attraction in that theater. And old friend that it is, it deserved all the acclaim that marked its latest "premiere" here.

There were surprises for last night's audience, too. Chief of which was the Franz Schubert that John Charles Gilbert gave. We remembered Mr. Gilbert as a talented actor—one who made a good Schubert and who had a pleasing voice. But his latest effort in the role struck a deeper emotional note than he has ever before attained. There were moments when he caused Franz Schubert to be very real. Such a one came at the close of the second act, when, after love's disappointment, song gave way to sobs.

Again the Mitzi of the operetta was portrayed by that talented loveliness—Genevieve Naegele. Robert Lee Allen did a repeat on his comedy antics as Kranz, the court jeweler. Herbert Lyle was his usual

The Busiest Railroad in the United States

A message to employees of the P. & L. E. Railroad

ALTHOUGH the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad operates only 231 miles of road, it has acquired the unique position of being the "busiest little railroad in the whole United States". All four tracks of its main line from Pittsburgh to Youngstown bear a constant burden of freight and passenger traffic. In its biggest year, the railroad hauled 50,712,828 tons of freight, which is an average of 41,567 tons per mile of track. No other railroad can boast of a traffic density equal to that of the P & L. E. Pittsburgh is proud of this busy little railroad because it is one of the main avenues of transportation to and from the city.

The beginning of financial relations between the railroad and this bank dates back to 1913 when the P. & L. E. account first came to the Mellon National Bank. To each of the 10,000 employees of the railroad, we extend a cordial invitation to open an account at the Mellon National Bank. No matter how modest, your account is welcome. The facilities of the bank are yours to use at your convenience.

success as the Baron Von Schober—attractive to the eye and attractive to the ear. But the entire cast of principals, which as you know, is a large one, was of worth. The chorus did quite well, too, considering many of them are new and the performance marked the beginning of a new tour. The girls need to pay more attention to rhythm—that's all.

The big lure of the operetta, of course, is the music, "Song of Love," the tender "Serenade," "Lonely Heart," and the rest of them.

The action of the piece takes place in the spring, summer and autumn of 1826—two years before Schubert's death.

"Blossom Time" is deserving of this perennial attention. Well can it scoff at time passing, for it is a beautiful thing, and beauty never grows old or irksome.

PLEASING BILL IN DAVIS

There is freshness and quality to the vaudeville program in the Davis Theater this week, from the voice of Walt Burke, which goes right to the heart, to the prodigious memory of Paxton, who is walking gazetteer of these United States. And there is charm, too, for the act called "Enchantment" is not just an ordinary dancing spectacle, but has the elusive quality of poetry and imagination. "Jungleland" reveals some acrobatics that would appal an osteopath, and Ned Norworth is adept in guying the audience without creating offense. A bit of roadside comedy, put across by Marie Walsh and Frank Ellis, bubbled over with fun—H. D. Symington adding to the merriment by his English accent and manner. But most of all, Walt and Mary Burke proved pleasing with their songs and patter. Was the act short, or did it only seem short? The photoplay this week is a somewhat disconnected extravaganza, 'None but the Brave,' in which Charles Morton furnishes the romantic, Sally Phipps the demure, and Billy Butts the freckles.

HANDSAW MUSICIANS FEATURE IN SHERIDAN

Comedy and handsaw music were presented by Meyers and Hanford, "The Arkansas Valentinos," as a feature of the vaudeville which opened Monday for three days in the Sheridan Square. Scotty Friedell and Sid Gould presented a comedy skit, "Remembre My Operations," in which they had the assistance of five singing lasses. Frances Kennedy appeared in character and story songs. Florence and Arnold introduced comedy and dancing in their balancing act. A Chinese magic act was offered by a group of performers under the title of "Shanghai Mysteries." The photoplay, "Thanks for the Buggy Ride," featured Laura La Plante and Glenn Tryon. Music and short scene numbers also were part of the bill.

JOLSON GREAT IN STANLEY

"The Singing Fool," in the Stanley, is the best talkie to date. It is the best talkie that will be seen for many days for it is not the kind of a picture they make every day—or month—or year. It is Al Jolson's triumph of the screen. For in "The Singing Fool" Jolson's songs are part of the drama—the effective and affecting part of the drama. They belong—not being inserted just as an "effect." He sings with hope and happiness in his tone. He sings with a tear in his throat and anguish in words which as words express happiness. He voices song sobs that bring moisture to the eyes. And it is all part of the drama. He is a waiter. He sings his way into marriage with a girl who cares nothing for him and the songs he writes for her make her the hit of Broadway. And he sings to their child the theme song of the piece, "Sonny Boy," crooning him to sleep in health and in illness—forever. An unfaithful woman sends him downhill but he rises again, never again to be a quitter, always to sing as long as anybody will listen to him. Jolson is wonderful. Betty Bronson and Josephine Dunn score as the two women in his life. David Lee, as Sonny Boy, impresses as a child actor. You will like everything about "The Singing Fool."

AVIATION PICTURE IS ALDINE FEATURE

The feature in the Aldine, "The Air Circus," is an aviation photoplay of peace times. It concerns two small town boys who have been bitten by the aviation bug and who can hardly wait until they reach an aviation school in California. But one of the lads, whose brother was a great ace in the war, doesn't go over so good at first. But before the final fadeout everything turns out nicely, with our hero whirling away to the rescue of his pal. There are quite a few comedy moments and some thrills in the production, which doesn't soar higher than an average film. Sue Carol, David Collins and Arthur Lake are in the cast. Louise Dresser has a mother role, which, as usual, she handles well. Other sound features include Leo Beers, whistling songster, and Marion Harris, singing comedienne. A number of interesting news events are recorded with sound in theFox Movietone News Reel.

"WINGS," WITH SOUND, SHOWN IN REGENT

The popular film drama of war in the air, "Wings," is in the Regent, presented with sound effects. It's story of the two aviator-buddies has been screened many times. The work of the leading players also has been praised time and again and it is only a formality that their names be given again. They are Richard Arlen, Charles Rogers and Clara Bow. "Wings" is a great picture.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

WE ALL NEED APPLESAUCE

I LOVE APPLESAUCE!

You can feed it to me straight or diluted, cooked or raw, in large quantities or homeopathic doses, and I will swallow it without blinking. You can lay it on delicately with a palette knife or thick with a trowel—and some of it is bound to stick.

I love to be told how clever I am, how lovable I am, how pretty I am, and how beautiful I can write! I don't care whether you mean it or not—fill me with self-admiration, and all that spills over is YOURS!

HELEN ROWLAND

Show me a man who says that he doesn't like to be flattered and I'll show you one who is fooling himself—or trying to fool YOU.

Everybody needs, wants and loves a cheerleader! Every man (or woman) would find it worth the price if he could hire a professional booster to give him his daily dose of "banana oil." To tell him, every morning, how brilliant he is, how original and remarkable he is! To fill him with a superiority complex!

In order to do his best work, a man MUST feel pleased with himself! There may be a few egoists whose vanity requires deflating; but most of us are filled with a subconscious inferiority complex, underneath all our cockiness, which has to be fought like a bad liver.

The worst enemy you have in the world is not the man or woman who robs you of your money, but the one who tries to rob you of your SELF-ESTEEM. Your most dangerous enemy is the man or woman who drops little grains of self-doubt into your mind and stirs up your sleeping inferiority complex.

Never listen to the man who tells you all your little failings "because he's your honest friend." Find a nice DIShonest friend who will lie like a gentleman or a lady rather than depreciate you.

When we marry, we always do so in the fond expectation of getting a permanent cheer-leader and unqualified admirer. Love dies when we discover that we have acquired only a life-critic. Love seldom dies from a big wound in the heart, but nearly always from a thousand little stabs in the vanity and pin-pricks in the self-esteem.

Nothing so takes the heart out of a man as to be told that he's made a fool of himself when he knows that he HASN'T—except to be told that he's made a fool of himself when he knows that he Has!

The wife who can find a new way to tell her husband every day how brilliant and wise and capable he is, need never fear a rival. And the husband who can find a new way, every day, to tell his wife how sweet and charming and lovable and wonderful she is, need never worry for fear he'll have to pay alimony.

Just a lot of APPLESAUCE freely and thickly spread over any average marriage would make it one long sweet dream, from the altar to the grave!

Aniseed Biscuits (Russian)

Beat four eggs with a pound and a half of sifted powdered sugar, stirring for 15 minutes. Sift in slowly a pound and a half of flour, stirring steadily until all is smoothly blended. Roll the dough thin and cut in round cakes. Butter and dust with flour an iron baking sheet and lay in the cakes. Sprinkle them with aniseed, then set away and let stand overnight. In the morning bake in a very slow oven.

Soak a piece of cotton well with paraffin and place it in the bottom of a clock that has not been cleaned for some time. The fumes of the paraffin penetrate the works and clean them.

How to Keep Well

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

Great Increase in Ringworm Disease.

A SHORT time ago the United States Public Health Service issued a startling statement regarding the prevalence of ringworm. I am sure you will agree with me when you read the following quotations from that report:

"The disease is remarkably frequent, and it is probable that at least one-half of all adults suffer from it at some time. In the University of Pennsylvania a careful survey of all students showed that over 60 per cent were affected with the ringworm organism.

"Almost everyone who uses a swimming pool, a golf clubhouse, an athletic club, or any place where there is a common dressing room, gets the infection on his feet. It is highly probable that the development of club life, the great increase in the number of swimming pools, and probably the general tendency of the American public to spend a certain amount of time in hotels, is largely responsible for the increase in this disease."

Now I beg of you not to get scared. I am not telling you about something as terrible as smallpox, or even the old-fashioned itch. The disease in question is annoying, but not of long standing, nor serious in effects. It is a disagreeable, but happily a quickly healing, eruption of the skin.

Ringworm is a purely local infectious disease of the skin, hair or nails. There are several varieties.

When it attacks the fingernails or toenails it is a stubborn condition and results in considerable deformity. Sometimes it attacks the scalp, leaving bald patches.

But what the U. S. Public Health Service is discussing is a rather slight involvement of the hands and feet. "In its moldest form," the report states, "the disease exists as either a little cracking or a little scaling between the toes. In many instances the so-called 'soft corn' is really due entirely to infection with ringworm parasites. . . Any portion of the hands or feet may show one of these eruptions. Rarely they may extend as high as the elbows or knees. When the blisters break, fluid always escapes to the surface and there is a wet oozing surface that usually becomes covered with scabs. Itching is frequently intense."

The family doctor will have no difficulty in giving relief. He will apply hyposulphite of soda solution, followed by a tartaric acid solution, or will prescribe ammoniated mercury salve, or some other preparation which has proven successful in his practice.

But it is not in the cure of the disease I am interested today; it is in the prevention. Everybody must observe great care in all matters relating to the personal toilt in public places.

Never run around a public bathroom or dressing-room in bare feet. Always use slippers, or else stand on a clean towel or newspaper.

I doubt if the water of swimming pools is likely to carry the infection, but the contaminated floors adjoining might do so. The watchful care of public health officials and the cordial co-operation of the owners of bathing places have made such establishments safe.

Do not neglect any such eruption as we have considered today. This is important, not so much so far as your welfare is concerned, but because of the danger of infecting others.

Answer to Health Query

C. W. Q.—Will poor eye sight cause dizziness and spots before the eyes?

A.—Yes. It would be wise to have your eyes examined. However, billiousness will often cause these symptoms.

K. C. Q.—My 5-year-old son has symptoms of what may be hay fever whenever he is near hay, coughing, sneezing, etc. What can be done, and is it dangerous if he gets it often?

A.—Have his nose and throat examined—he may have an obstruction or growth in the nasal passage which interferes with his breathing, thus causing the symptoms you describe. Your doctor will advise you.

When Autumn Winds Blow

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

GLORIOUS October when the tang of Winter seeps into the lovely Indian Summer days and makes one almost wish—for what? It's hard to say, especially when one thinks of the lovely hikes to be had for nothing. That is, for nothing but the sheer joy of feeling the Autumn winds blow one every which way and see the lovely paintings which Mother Nature stretches across her canvas to cheer our hearts and recompense us for the dear delights of the balmy Summer which has gone to rest for another year.

And, too, these days are the days when Daniel is more on the job than ever. For the romances which he started in the Summer, invariably find a happy ending in the glory of the Autumn. Not always, I'll grant you, for he couldn't do everything at once, so he has to drag some along until the sparkly Winter days.

'Twould never do to let him be idle for one second!

So, plan your hikes and go hand in hand with Daniel to find the Romance to which he will lead you. And he will, never doubt that. For Autumn days are dear to his mischievous heart, and when the cool little breezes blow roses into your cheeks and give a sparkle to your eyes, be sure he has had a hand in it, for then it is that Love finds a way—and who can deny that the Autumn winds haven't a hand in it?

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Revelations Depend on Ability to Decipher Code

LILLIAN looked at me oddly as I asked her if she supposed the Transvanians in the shack could have seen my father and Mr. Drake in their furtive arrival at the farmhouse. I understood the look, for I had seen it before when she was approaching the crisis of some secret service investigation.

It meant that she was debating how much to tell me. From long experience I knew that her reticence at such times was not due to any distrust of either my fidelity or my discretion, and I also knew that at any moment she might confide in me fully. But it is one of her idiosyncrasies that she wishes to have all embroidery of a pattern completed before she shows any part of it.

"Allah only knows," she said, and I saw that she had retreated behind her always ready barrier of flippancy. "It all depends upon whether they were sleeping the sleep of the unjust, which, I believe is a lot sounder than that of the righteous—for they're not worrying over anyone else's troubles—or whether they elected to spend the night reconnoitering either The Larches or the farmhouse. You see, you have three guesses. Take your choice."

With an effort I swallowed my chagrin at her non-committal attitude.

"I'll take the first hypothesis," I said. "I'd rather believe they were asleep."

She made an impetuous movement toward me, took my chin firmly in her cupped palm and turned her face up to mine.

"I know I'm an awful thing," she said, "but honestly, Madge, you shall know every last detail of this business in a day or two. If I should tell you now what Allen confided to me while we were getting that car safely hidden, it might seriously complicate your translation of that code. And I want you absolutely open-minded with no previous ideas of what it may contain. Then if it clicks afterward, we've got the whole thing just where we want it.

"There are two things I can tell you, however. One is that your father and Allen have just completed a hair-raising journey. In disguises which completely transformed them, they have spent months in a country which it is better not to name aloud. They escaped with their lives with only an inch or so to spare and were trailed to this country by people clever enough to figure out the second and even the third transformations which Allen's genius at make-up made in their appearance.

"But at last, with the aid of a man sent to them from Washington, they were able to throw off their trackers, resume their own personalities and start for home. It is of the utmost importance, however, that they do not appear here until a week, at least, has passed, for they wish no possible comparison with the time of their arrival here and the hour of their disappearance from the city where they eluded their trackers. Later they will drive into the yard and we will give them an effusive and ostentatious welcome home. In the meantime, mum's the word, and Junior must not know they are here. Katie will be all right if she realizes your father's life may depend upon her silence. It's only when there's nothing at stake that her tongue runs away with her."

I nodded my agreement with her statement, and she hurried on:

"It's a big thing they're after, Madge, and in some ways it fits in—"

She broke off and clapped me on the shoulder.

"I'm banking on that code, Madge. I know you're going to get it, and that pronto. But you can't do anything more tonight, or rather this morning. You have been working all night, haven't you?"

"Nearly," I returned, feeling at last the effects of my vigil.

"Then tumble into bed now. I'll give orders that you are not to be called until you awaken yourself. I will see to everything. Remember that more than you think may stand or fall with the deciphering of that code."

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are overstimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade-Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

"How do you get such Gleaming Floors"

"All of my friends ask the same question. You would think I used magic, but the whole secret lies in just a small can of Old English Wax that only costs a few cents.

"It not only gives the floor a real high polish but also removes dirt better than soap and water. And it takes but a jiffy to make ALL the floors in the house clean and fresh looking—whether they are wood, linoleum, varnished, shellaced or painted. Besides, you protect the surface against scratches and wear.

"You too, can have rich looking floors by stopping at your hardware, paint, housefurnishing or dept. store and getting a can of genuine Old English Wax. Made by The A. S. Boyle Co., Cincinnati, O., U. S. A."

"Awkward to talk about, but girls must learn this"

Says the head of a smart school

A delicate thing for women to discuss, yet they should learn of this new process* which neutralizes odor in sanitary pads. It ends all possibility of offending others.

THERE is one serious social offense most women do not talk about. Much embarrassment is now spared as they learn of the latest discovery in Kotex Laboratories. A way has been found to banish all odor and each Kotex sanitary pad is treated by this patented* process. No miserable self-consciousness now, no fear of offending in this way. The one remaining problem in connection with sanitary pads is solved!

Shaped to fit, too

Because corners of the pad are rounded and tapered, it may be worn without evidence under the most clinging gown. There is none of that conspicuous bulkiness so often associated with old-fashioned methods. And you can adjust the filler, make it thinner, thicker, narrower—to suit your own special needs. It is easily disposed of, no laundering is necessary. A new process makes it softer than ever before.

Buy a box today . . . 45c for a box of twelve. On sale at all drug, dry goods and department stores; also, through vending cabinets in restrooms.

*Kotex is the only sanitary pad that deodorizes by patented process. (Patent No. 1,670,587, granted May 22, 1928.)

Deodorizes . . . and 4 other important features:

1—Softer gauze ends chafing; pliable filler absorbs as no other substance can;

2—Corners are rounded and tapered; no evidence of sanitary protection under any gown;

3—Deodorizes—safely, thoroughly, by a new and exclusive patented process;

4—Adjust it to your needs; filler may be made thinner, thicker, narrower as required;

Penn. Child Wouldn't Eat

"Everybody in the neighborhood was crazy about Walter. He was the happiest, brightest little thing you ever saw," says his mother, Mrs. Mary Nye, 221 South Ithan St., Philadelphia. "He looked so healthy we thought he'd never have any trouble. But he began to be constipated. It made him fretful, cross and feverish. His breath got to be terrible and his tongue was nearly always coated. He didn't want to do anything but lie around. He wouldn't eat and was losing weight fast.

"Then I began giving him California Fig Syrup. It brightened him up right away. He began to eat heartily and his stomach and bowels started acting perfectly. Soon he commenced gaining weight again and he's been perfectly well, strong and happy ever since."

California Fig Syrup is made from two of Nature's greatest laxatives—ripe California Figs and First Quality Senna Leaves. Children like its rich, fruity taste. It regulates their stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

The genuine, endorsed by physicians for over 50 years, always bears the word "California." All drug stores have it.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Western Pa. Hunt Clubs to Hold Race Meeting Friday

Tea Planned After Meet

OCTOBER'S bright blue weather is going to see still another event of importance in the equine world, it seems. These delightful days, just cool enough to be "seasonable" and warm enough for comfort, appear to be made to order for such affairs, don't they?

No doubt you know already about the autumn race meeting of all the Western Pennsylvania hunts, which is scheduled for Friday afternoon (Columbus Day). It is to be held, you may remember, on the McNary farm, along the New Alexandria road. And now I hear that after the meeting there is going to be a tea for the exhibitors, members of the hunts and their guests, in the log cabin of Henry W. Coulter, near Greensburg. These guests will be entertained by a committee comprising George R. McNary, Malcolm McGiffin, John W. Lawrence, Richard K. Mellon, James C. Hamilton, Torrence Miller, George Paull, Harvey N. VanVoorhis, James M. Bovard, Henry C. Bughman, Jr., Henry W. Coulter, John O. Burgwin, L. W. Robinson, Jr., and A. C. Martin.

IT IS really very kind in the weather man to provide these sunshiny days, not just for race meetings but for the many weddings set for the month. One wedding of interest took place yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the home of the Charles Monro Thorps in Maple avenue, Edgewood, when their daughter, Jessie Marianne, was married to Edwin Williams Fiske, Jr., son of Mrs. Edwin Williams Fiske, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Pittsburgh is losing another of its attractive girls in Jessie, too, since she and her husband are planning to live in Mt. Vernon.

The Rev. Ralph Waldo Lloyd, pastor of the Edgewood Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony yesterday, before an altar composed of greens and fall flowers. Jessie was given away by her father, and she wore a lovely gown of white wedding-ring velvet with a long train falling from the waistline. Her tulle veil, which was held in place with a tulle cap, fell over a train of duchesse and rose point lace, and she carried gardenias and white orchids. She had just one attendant, her sister, Mrs. William Forker Whitla, of Sharon, who was Eleanor Thorp, you know, before she was married not long ago. Mrs. Whitla's frock was of apricot moire and with it she wore a brown velvet hat. Her flowers were dahlias in colors to match her costume. Eugene S. Fiske was his brother's best man.

After the service there was a small reception and buffet supper, and later, the young Fiskes left for a motor trip through New England. They will be at home in Mt. Vernon after November 1.

Mr. Fiske's mother came on, of course, for the wedding, and so did his sister, Ruth. Miss Louise Dewees, of Mt. Vernon, and Miss Dorinda Rogers, of East Orange, N. J., were other out-of-town guests.

ANOTHER important wedding of the month took place just this morning in St. Paul's Cathedral. Katherine Mary Reilly, daughter of the Eugene S. Reillys, of Wightman street, was the bride, and she married B. Meredith Reid, son of Judge and Mrs. Ambrose B. Reid, of the Darlington Apartments. The hour was 11 o'clock, and the ceremony was performed before an altar banked with cibotiums and bamboos, with huge vases of yellow chrysanthemums.

Katherine wore a model of a French gown, "Cherult," in cream Callot satin, with a long train of lier lace, an heirloom in the family. Her tulle veil was caught with a cap of rose point and lier lace, and she carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her sister, Ursula, as maid of honor, wore a Doucillet model in toltec georgette velvet, while the bridesmaids, Camilla Reilly, another sister, and Ursula Hart, wore cognac georgette velvet. These frocks were made with princess effect bodices and skirts short in front and drooping long in back. The girls wore velvet hats to match their dresses and carried cactus dahlias in the fall shades.

Alfred D. Reid was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Loeffler Hopkins, of Atlanta, Ga.; Gerald Phillamore, of Montreal; P. C. Lauinger, Dr. Louis Ignelzie and John C. Reilly and Aloysius Reilly, Katherine's brothers; H. Allen Machesney, Jr., and Alwin Oliver, all of Pittsburgh.

A reception and breakfast followed the ceremony in the Pittsburgh Country Club. Forty guests were seated at the bridal table, which was decorated with cactus dahlias. Mr. and Mrs. Reid will take a trip to Bermuda for their honeymoon, and after December 1 will be at home in Dover Gables, South Negley avenue.

ONE of the parties being given for Martha Brooks is a dinner dance, which Mary Oliver, daughter of the Henry Olivers, of Woodland road, Sewickley, will hold in her home Friday night. There will be about 100 guests. I understand. Martha will marry Alexander Laughlin Robinson next Monday, you know.

A SEWICKLEY engagement of interest has just been announced by Dr. Katherine Lydia Shaw, of Glenshaw and Sewickley. Dr. Shaw has just made known the betrothal of her sister, Elizabeth Arbuthnot Shaw, daughter of the late Henry Clay Shaw and Fannie Patchin Shaw, of Glenshaw, to William Boone Groves, of Pittsburgh and New Bern, N. C., son of Mrs. Henry McDowell Groves, of New Bern.

MISS MARGARET LOUISE ECKHARDT, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Henry P. Eckhardt, of Morewood avenue, whose marriage to Carl H. Reker, son of Fred Reker, of Cleveland, will be solemnized Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, with Dr. Eckhardt officiating, will have her sister, Miss Ruth Eckhardt, for her maid of honor. Elmer E. Reker, of Harrington, Wash., will be his brother's best man, and the ushers will include Robert G. Eckhardt, Earl S. Bromeir, and Edgar C. Eckhardt, all of Pittsburgh, and Harold E. Reker, of Cleveland. The bride will be given away by her brother, Henry Eckhardt, of New York. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Eckhardt, of the Loutellus Apartments, will give the rehersal dinner Friday night in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. Miss Margaret Riesmeyer, of Aylesboro avenue, and Mrs. Robert G. Eckhardt, of Shady avenue, entertained last week for the prospective bride.

THOMAS R. CHARLES, of Brookside Farms, announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Katharine Aiken Charles, and O. P. Brysch, of Montreal, which was solemnized yesterday at 2:30 o'clock in the parsonage of the Bethel Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Murray C. Reiter. Mr. and Mrs. Brysch will make their home in Montreal.

MRS. EDNA MACKRELL BLACK, of Wightman street, entertained with a bridge tea in her home Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Margaret Isabel Seitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Seitz, of the East End, whose marriage to Lawrence Smith will be solemnized October 17. Eight tables were in play. A dinner in the home of the hostess followed the tea.

Twice between 1923 and 1926 he visited the dread Sargasso Sea. He shows pictures he took on his sailing ship, the Blossom, perhaps the last of the blue-water windjammers; of his whaleboat wreck on Pirate's Beach, Treasure Island; of Napoleon's lonely home on St. Helena; of scenes on many other islands of high adventure; of the albatross pursuing the Blossom, and Mother Carey's chickens dancing on the sea, and a chart to millions in buried treasure.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture.

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

3 Death Toll in Air Crash Here

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1928

3 TOLL IN AIRPLANE CRASH HERE

Death claimed two more victims, a total of three, who were injured Sunday when their airplane crashed 200 feet to the ground near Bettis Field. One victim died yesterday afternoon and his companions succumbed last night. The plane was operated by John J. Feery, 38, of 215 North Fairmont avenue, a local aviator.

The dead are Feery, Ralph Fulton, 25, of 3612 Woodland avenue, McKeesport, and William Bertha, 21, of 1032 Jenny Lind street, McKeesport. Feery and Bertha died in the Homestead Hospital and Fulton in the McKeesport Hospital. Fulton was a chemist for the National Tube Company.

The crash occurred a few minutes after the plane had taken off from Bettis Field. Flying at a low altitude, Feery is believed to have lost control of the plane while attempting to make a turn. The ship crashed on the estate of F. T. Nason, along the Pittsburgh-McKeesport boulevard, pinning all three victims beneath the wreckage.

Feery was a lieutenant in the Army Air Corps and had spent much time as an instructor at Ellington Field, Texas. He recently had been promoted to captain of Flight C, Three Hundred and Twenty-fourth Observation Squadron, Army Air Corps Reserve. He had lived here six years. He leaves his widow and three daughters in this city and his parents and several brothers and sisters in Hartford, Conn.

Members of the Three Hundred and Twenty-fourth Observation Squadron, in uniform, will form an honorary escort at the funeral services for Capt. Feery. The body will be taken Wednesday morning at 9:30 from the funeral parlors of J. J. Flannery, 374 South Negley avenue, to St. Lawrence's Catholic Church, Penn and Atlantic avenues, where a solemn high requiem mass will be held at 10 a. m. The body will be taken to Hartford, Conn., where it will be interred beside that of his mother.

N. J. BUSES PROFIT ON 5-CENT FARE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

Busses are being operated at a profit in New Jersey by the organization which also runs the street car lines. The Public Service Corporation of New Jersey is the owner of the largest bus system in existence. Its operations cover practically all of the important cities and towns in the state.

In 1927 the Public Service Transportation Company, the bus subsidiary of the Public Service Corporation, carried 266,079,948 passengers at a profit of $519,671. The profit was shown after charging off depreciation of $1,617,070.

The busses charge a fare of five cents within each zone of operation, which keeps the charges in proportion to the distance traveled by passengers.

GROWTH TAKES CASH

Bus operations of the company have undergone rapid expansion in recent years. As a result of opening new lines, which required time to develop traffic, 1927 was the first year of satisfactory profits. In 1926 net profit was $85,595 after charging off depreciation of $1,094,962. In previous years a loss was shown, but this may be attributed entirely to the cost of growth.

The number of passengers carried in 1923 was only 1,952,059, compared with 266,079,948 in 1927. Profits until last year were continually held down by development costs.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company announced in posters in its street cars yesterday that the Cleveland Railways Company had "lost over $200,000 exclusive of depreciation in the two-year period 1926 to 1928."

These bus lines started in operation in August, 1925. The years 1926 and 1927 were the first two full years of operation. The same condition—the necessity for developing traffic on new lines—had an adverse effect on earnings. What these lines will earn after they have passed through the development stage is the important factor.

KANSAS CITY CITED

The Pittsburgh Railways also stated, "Kansas City Railways lost over $500,000 in three years on its bus operation."

Bus operation has also undergone rapid expansion in that city, which undoubtedly reduced earnings until the new lines had been placed on a well-established basis.

Passengers carried on Kansas City busses totaled 1,629,195 in 1924 and increased to 5,571,003 in 1926. Detailed figures of bus operations by years have not yet been received by the Sun-Telegraph, but the available statistics indicate that the bus lines have not "been maintained at large expense by the car riders" as is charged by the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The Kansas City Railways reported a deficit of $646,758 from both street car and bus operations in 1924. This was replaced by a profit of $854,540 in 1927.

URGES CREDIT MEN TO BOOST PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh business men were urged to push Pittsburgh to the forefront in an address made last night by Mitchell DeGroot, well-known advertising man, before the members of the Retail Credit Men's Association at their annual assembly in the William Penn Hotel.

Mr. DeGroot wanted to know what the Mayor and the Chamber of Commerce are doing to push Pittsburgh's importance so as to meet the competition of other cities. He declared that it was time that the business interests of the city start something. He also advocated pushing the nation's own products. He contended that too much emphasis is being placed on foreign importations. He pleaded that we make the consciousness of our styles American styles instead of those from across the sea, asserting that it is up to the merchants to do it. Col. Franklin Blackstone, who introduced the speaker, whose subject was "Advertising—a Community Service," also pleaded for more Americanism. Retiring President Leon Michaels turned the gavel over to the newly elected president, Harry E. Wilson, declaring he assumes control of 1,001 members, the largest retail credit body in the United States.

ALIEN BEATS DEPORTATION AS U. S. DELAYS TOO LONG

Salvatore Galla, a McKeesport miner, will be allowed to remain in this country—just because Uncle Sam was lax in sending him back to Italy.

In an opinion handed down today Federal Judge Nelson McVicar overruled Secretary of Labor James J. Davis' order that Galla be deported. Galla's counsel contended, and was upheld by Judge McVicar, that the deportation order should have been carried out within five years after Galla landed. Galla has been in the states five years and seven months at least.

Galla sneaked in, immigration authorities charged, and was arrested at Tampa, Fla., in 1923. He posted bond for hearing. Then he moved to this territory. He wasn't rearrested until September.

2 ANNEXATION HEARINGS SET

Another step in the annexation progress of Pittsburgh will be reached on Friday, October 19, when hearings will be held in Quarter Sessions Court in the plans to annex part of Baldwin township and the borough of Overbrook. Judge James B. Drew yesterday set the date on which opponents and proponents of these annexation movements will be heard. In each case petitions, bearing the names of 20 per cent of the taxable citizens in favor of annexation, have been presented to the court.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

BILL PEET, a former sports writer of Pittsburgh, who left here to take a sport writing job in Hawaii, came back to the states to see the world series. He paid a visit to Pittsburgh, visiting old friends. He reports Hawaii healthful and pleasant, but so far, he says, he has not taken up the ukulele, although he passes Waikiki Beach every day of his life.

This paragraph shows, once more, how time heals all wounds. When contemporaries in sports here, Mr. Peet, quite disheartened over the way this writer attached umpires, took his pen in hand and gave us a good talking to. At the moment we saw red and as we recall it now wrote four pages by way of a hot answer, but fortunately tore them up before they were published. After a few days of wrath, which diminished slightly with the passing of every 24 hours, we forgot all about Mr. Peet's criticism. And now, after several years have passed, we are certain that we were wrong and Mr. Peet was right.

THAT was during the time when we believed that nothing was more important than the daily doings of the ball players.

At a meeting the other night of the Veterans' Association of the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery we were asked, as a neutral, to make a drawing to see which member should win a prize for perfect attendance. It developed that the man who won the prize for perfect attendance was not on hand that night. It recalled the young lady, who was scheduled to talk on how she attained perfect health, could not appear owing to a very bad cold.

THERE is a new book out which will interest many persons, especially newspapermen and politicians. The name of the book is "Dear Senator." It was written by McCready Huston, a former editorial writer of the old Gazette Times. He left here to work in Indiana, which is the locale of his novel. Since leaving here he has written a number of first-rate magazine stories and his present novel will be voted by the experts as one of the year's best, unless the experts don't like books that we like. The book is written in a style that makes the reader imagine writing a novel would not be so difficult. That is a tribute to the ease with which Mr. Huston develops his plot. Mr. Huston is in his early thirties. We never knew him personally, although we have a very clear recollection of his walking to the copy-carrier with his daily contribution to the editorial page. We mention this so we won't be accused of any log-rolling.

A well-known Pittsburgher on his way home from a European trip found himself a little short of funds. He cabled to a friend here for $100. There was some sort of delay and the Pittsburgher at once cabled six other friends to send him $100. The result was that for about four days he was receiving money, an unusual occurrence which started a legend on the ship that among the passengers was a wealthy and eccentric Pittsburgh millionaire who received $100 every day from his bankers in America. The legend made the "eccentric" Pittsburgher one of the most popular men on the boat. His fellow-passengers had no idea that the Pittsburgher in question had to do without a drink for one long afternoon because his purse was so low.

ARREST FLEEING AUTO DRIVER

Fleeing from police after his automobile is said to have struck a street car in Wylie avenue near Fullerton street, early today, Richard Lynch, 22, of 2317 Manor street, Swissvale, leaped from his car in Center avenue, near Dinwiddie street.

His ankle twisted, throwing him to the street, but he was limping away when Patrolman Florence Watt and John Coghill caught up in a commandeered machine.

Police say that Lynch was driving a car stolen in Braddock.

AGENTS SEIZE STILLS, AUTOS

Two liquor-laden automobiles, two stills and whisky valued at $3,000 were seized by prohibition agents yesterday.

A whisky cutting plant, reported found in the basement garage of a dwelling at 426 South Winebiddle avenue, included whisky valued at $2,000, whisky strip stamps and other paraphernalia, agents declared. Dan Aiello, 20, who said he lived there, and Ralph Scanga, 20, of 472 Pearl street, were arrested.

The hidden raiders had waited first until they saw an automobile drive into the garage and leave, they said. They followed the machine, then seized it, finding, they reported, four cases of whisky. Frank Miller, 26, of 254 Lombard street, was arrested as the driver.

Cornelius P. Wurzel, 41, of 220 Sixth street, Braddock, and Anthony Kubeldzis, 29, of 515 Washington avenue, Braddock, were arrested in Eighth street, Braddock, agents say, delivering home brew to a saloon. The automobile was seized.

Raiding a two-story frame house in Transit way, the officers reported arresting Mike Rizzi, 36, and seizing whisky worth $1,000. A 50-gallon still was found in a house in Crockett way and a 15-gallon outfit in a dwelling on Mackintosh Hill, Etna.

DESTRUCTIVE HALLOWE'EN PRANKS BANNED BY POLICE

Puncturing of automobile tires and other Halloween stunts that involve destruction of property will be regarded not as "innocent pranks" but as crimes, Public Safety Director James M. Clark announced today.

From the harmless Halloween tricks of former years young America has turned to practices not so inoffensive, police point out. There are few gates nowadays to be removed from their hinges; so the youngsters are turning to automobile tires. Defacing of autos with paint and with chalk that scores the polish is another costly prank.

The director said he recognized the right of the youngsters to observe Halloween with mischievous capers that harmed no one, and that he sympathized with them in their desire to celebrate in this way, provided they stayed within reasonable bounds.

"But I am opposed," he said, "to the destruction of property. Malicious mischief such as the puncturing of automobile tires is in violation of the law. It is a crime, and we will not stand for it. The police are being instructed to be on the alert to prevent that sort of thing. Steps will be taken to punish those who may be guilty."

Will Rogers Says

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 9.

Seven people were killed in the whole of America over the week end in airplanes, and the way the newspapers headlined it you would have thought Nicaragua had invaded us.

Yet in New York City alone 15 was killed and 70 wounded with bad liquor, to say nothing about Chicago.

So it's safer to take a flight than a drink.

So much money is being spent on the campaigns, that I doubt if either man, as good as they are, are worth what it will cost to elect them.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

Joan Is Thrilled as She Writes Her First Love Letter to Bill

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Joan Hastings, 17 and beautiful, lives a secluded life with her two old maiden aunts in a house long run to seed. Aunt Evvie, discovering that Joan has visited a dance hall, angrily reveals to her the story of her unmarried mother's tragic love affair and death. Joan, alone in her room, clasps to her heart a miniature of her mother and refuses to believe she was anything but good. Aunt Evvie buys a cheap automobile and engages Bill Martin, a garage worker, one day a week to care for it. Bill, looking up from his work, sees Joan waching him from her window. Later Bill and Joan meet and fall in love with each other. Meanwhile, the aunts plan to send Joan away to school. Bill tells the girl that he is very poor and it may be years before he can think of marrying, but she vows she will wait for him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"OH, Aunt Evvie!" she cried—and flung eager arms around her—"Oh, I can't tell you—it's the most wonderful day in my whole life!"

"She can't go East in that outfit!" Babe put in sharply. "She's got to have clothes. You're so smart thinking of everything, Evelyn Van Fleet—I suppose you didn't think of that? I knew it would cost more than just carfare, and where're you going to get the money?"

"I'm going to take her over to the city tomorrow and get her some things," Evvie said grandly. "Belle sent $50 over the price of the ticket. Ten dollars will be oceans for meals on the train—that leaves $40 for clothes."

That night, with the door locked, and her heart beating painfully and hotly, she wrote her first love letter. But the words that slipped so naturally and warmly from her lips when Bill's tanned cheek was close to hers, looked strange and lonely on the white paper. "Oh, I can't write it!" she whispered. "I can't—"

The hands on the battered alarm clock pointed to 9. And she wanted to post it that night! So discarding the pen, and the few sheets of Christmas notepaper that were left, she grabbed her stubby lead pencil and school tablet, and wrote firmly and quickly in her round schoolgirl hand:

"Dear Bill:

"Can you be on the hill, you know where, about 4 tomorrow afternoon? I am not going to school; I am going to the city with Aunt Evvie, but we will be back by then. Be sure to come, it is important. I must see you; I have lots to tell you. Don't forget, I've just got to see you.

"Your always loving Joan."

Gerwin brought it to him when he came back from lunch the next day. "Letter for you, Bill. Lady friend?"

Dolores, Gerwin's pretty wife, who had stopped in the garage to rest after her day's shopping, laughed loudly. "Let's see, I dare you. Come on—scared, eh? I knew—a woman. Why don't you tell us? You're the quiet one. Still waters—"

"Aw, it's nothing!" Bill jammed it into his pocket. "Guess I'll go on over to Murphy's and see about those tires."

In the shelter of Murphy's shed, half hidden by some empty barrels and a pile of old tires, he ripped the envelope open, read the hastily penciled words.

His heart sank. Something important had happened. It couldn't be anything good. The old ladies had found out, and warned her not to see him again most likely. Still it didn't sound very blue. It didn't sound just like Joan, either—"Dear Bill"—somehow he expected something more than "Dear Bill." Oh well, he'd know at 4 o'clock. He got to work with a will.

Across the bay Joan was eating banana shortcake and hot chocolate with whipped cream, in a restaurant!

She beamed across at stolid Evvie, consuming chicken pie and green tea, with evident relish. At their feet was a big paste board box containing a sturdy tweed suit, two cotton blouses, and a little round straw hat with a ribbon bow. And on her feet—oh wonder of wonders—brown oxfords with high heels!

From the blissful whipped cream and high-heeled dream in which Aunt Evvie's unexpected generosity had submerged her, Joan came back to earth to hear the familiar bass voice saying:

"Now we'll have to hurry for the boat!"

Of course, the boat—to take her back to Sausalito, and Bill. Still smiling vaguely, Joan gathered up the packages, and followed Evvie out of the restaurant into the street.

It was still early—there would be plenty of time to slip up to the hill and be waiting for him when he came up the road. She sighed happily.

"Joan, for heaven's sake, pay attention!" Evvie was getting sick of Joan's dreaming. "I said, isn't it too bad we didn't bring flowers from home!"

"What for?"

"What for?"

"What for? Joan Hastings, have you been asleep? To bring to the cemetery of course—"

"The cemetery—but's it's in Oakland?"

"Of course—and we're on the Oakland boat."

"Not the Sausalito boat—we're not going home now—we're going to the cemetery instead of home? Oh—why didn't you tell me—why didn't you tell me?"

The tragic face Joan turned to her startled Evvie out of her habitual calm. A moment passed before she gathered herself together sufficiently to answer. "Well, I should certainly think you'd want to visit your own mother's grave on your last day! Especially when we didn't on Easter on account of Babe's cold—the first Easter I ever missed taking flowers out to Mamma and Papa—"

Four o'clock. Joan and Evvie had left the musty-smelling vault with its big letters, VAN FLEET, carved in granite above the door, and were hurrying past the pansy beds, and the flat green with the cannon balls where the Civil War veterans slept. "I knew we'd miss the car!" Aunt Evvie snapped. Joan didn't answer. What did it matter? It was too late now. Bill would be looking for her on the hill. And she wouldn't be there.

It was dark when Bill came down from the hill. Joan's scribbled note, torn into a dozen pieces, had gone fluttering off on the wind.

He swaggered a little as he walked. Swaggered, because he had to do something to ease the intolerable hurt. "She didn't come—she didn't come." That was as far as his thoughts would take him.

He passed Gerwin's Garage. Closed. "Maybe I'll lose my job for this," he thought without much interest.

A boat had just come in from the city. Commuters were swarming into the waiting trains for Larkspur and Manor and Sonora and Ross. . . . Clang of bells, grinding of brakes . . . rumble of steel wheels. Wheels . . . Good Lord . . . suppose there had been an accident?

And then he saw her, standing with her arms full of bundles outside of the drug store on the corner.

Bundles. She had been shopping. Delayed. That was all! Relief and anger surged over him in a great red wave. "Joan!" he said in a flat thin voice that echoed strangely in his own ears.

"Aunt Evvie kept me—I couldn't get back. I've been nearly crazy worrying that you'd think—that you'd think—"

They groped for each other's hands. He was conscious of her chalky face in the half light from the drug store window, of the tremor in her voice, the tenseness of her slender body.

A trembling seized him. He gripped her cramped little hand holding the packages. "I worried so," he said huskily. "I was so afraid something had happened to you—"

"Bill—dear!" Her heart was full. "Bill, I want to tell you—"

But before she had time for another word Aunt Evvie was coming out of the store with Aunt Babe's mustard plaster, and Bill had stepped back into the shadows.

As she plodded up the hill by Evvie's side his last whispered words kept ringing in her ears—

"Tonight—I'll be at the hedge!"

There was dinner to be got over, and a long family confab over Joan's ticket and the gray tweed suit.

Babe thought they should have got an upper berth. "It's safer!"

"Safer! Nonsense — why is it safer?" Evvie was all ready for the argument.

"I've read stories about young girls traveling alone"—Babe began darkly.

Joan wriggled nervously in her chair. Evvie picked up the paper and read the stock reports. In the middle of Babe's, "Now, let me see—did we have the dressmaker for that, or was that one we bought in the city?" Evvie yawned, and went to bed. After a long time Babe's pauses grew longer. She nodded, roused herself, creaked upstairs, too.

The tall French windows struck under Joan's trembling fingers. The long, red velveteen curtains kept getting in her way. She pushed them furiously back, and with a faint, rusty squeak the latch gave. The sweet night air came in with a rush.

All her nervousness was gone now. She was going to Bill, and he loved her. With a little sigh of perfect happiness she stepped down into the garden, ran lightly and swiftly toward the south hedge.

"Bill!" she whispered. "I'm here—where are you?"

He stepped out of the darkness. "I was afraid you wouldn't come," he cried. "Oh, Johnnie—if you wouldn't come," he cried. "Oh, Johnnie—if you hadn't—"

They clung to each other silently. The wind made a little rustling sound in the leaves, some birds stirred sleepily in the trees. He kissed her soft hair shining palely in the moonlight, the little hollow in her neck, her soft, red mouth.

"I love you—don't you know I love you, Johnnie? I couldn't live without you now. When I thought you wern't coming this afternoon oh, I can't tell you how I felt—I guess you wouldn't believe me—"

"I'll always believe you, and I'll always love you, too, Bill," she said gravely. A little pucker of pain gathered between her brows. How could she leave him, even for a little while? How could she have been glad, even for a minute, to think of going away?

She shivered in his arms. "Joan! What's wrong—something's wrong—I can feel it—"

She held his big, freckled hand soothingly against her cheek. "No—no—" How could she tell him? How could she begin? And all of a sudden she burst out breathlessly: "I'm going away day after tomorrow! To Philadelphia—to boarding school!"

There—it was out.

She was crying a little now, the tears were splashing miserably down her cheeks. A century passed. The trees cast ominous shadows on the grass. Long, reaching shadows. Like skinny hands.

"I was thinking," she said after a long time, "that maybe you could come East, too. You have to go somewhere—and we could see each other—"

He laughed shortly. "It's no use, Joan. Let's not pretend. It's all right—I don't blame you. I—I might have known I'd lose you. Well, it's all right, I guess. It would be years before I'd be any good—maybe never—"

He gulped—brushed his sleeve furiously across his eyes. "I've been an awful fool! I swallowed it whole when you said—well—when you said—you loved me—"

"Oh, but I do!" she cried. "I do! Oh, Bill—won't you believe me—"

He was gently disentangling her clinging hands. "It's all right, honey, don't cry. It isn't your fault . . ."

"Bill, oh don't look at me that way . . . it isn't goodby! BILL! Please—please—or won't you believe me—you've got to—"

He wouldn't understand. She couldn't make him understand . . . he was moving away . . . another minute and he'd be gone . . . her love . . . gone . . . for always . . .

She held out her arms beseechingly—"If it is goodby—won't you even—kiss me? Not even—goodby?"

"It'd only make it harder," his voice came chokingly from the shadows that had swallowed him up.

But he couldn't go away like that—like a cur! He turned his head, saw her slim white figure glimmering in the enchanted moonlight, saw her arms outstretched—for him.

"Joan—I don't dare come back—you don't know—you're only making it harder—you don't love me as I love you . . . Oh Joan . . .—I can't go!"

And he came back, and took her into his arms.

The scent of the roses lay over them like a presence. The moon was lost behind the eucalyptus trees. The stars paled, and there came the small chill breeze that comes before the dawn. But Joan was lost to time, lost to all the world, but Bill.

Appreciation of Finer Arts Heightened by Study, Fay King Says

By FAY KING

YOUNG people are not so eager to try their hand at painting, poetry and music as they once were. And it is a pity!

They do not take up such pretty accomplishments unless they think they really excel in them, and gain fame and make lots of money.

But no matter how modest their attempts at these things be, it will afford them a means to better enjoy the artists in those lines!

Those who sing a little, realize better than others what it means to master opera. Those who play a little, get more out of a concert than those who do not realize the study and application that went into the score being played.

Those who try to do the things they love, gain valuable appreciation of the masters!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, October 10

THE general trend of affairs this day may be presaged as propitious, yet it is probable that there may arise stubborn obstacles, accompanied by delays or postponements regarding constructive work. Nevertheless it is an auspicious time for making contracts as well as for negotiating deals in connection with future activities and projects. The judgment should be sound and the prospect is for substantial results. Personal matters also should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of generally propitious circumstances, despite stubborn obstacles and possible delays. New projects and contracts are encouraged, with promise of substantial financial returns. Home matters should flourish.

A child born on this day may be well equipped to carve its fortune and reach good position in life, largely by its cleverness and power to surmount difficulties and trials. Its personal life may be happy.

Husband's Rheumatism and Wife's Indigestion Ended by Ten Herbs, She States.

"I feel a hundred per cent better in every respect, since taking Ten Herbs," was the recent statement of Mrs. Anna Jeffries, 1844 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store,

MRS. ANNA JEFFRIES

529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this popular medicine. "My husband claims that your medicine relieved his terrible rheumatism and made him feel a great deal better in general," continued Mrs. Jeffries, whose husband is an iron worker.

"My worst trouble was nervous indigestion. I always felt sick at my stomach in the morning and never could eat any breakfast. I was troubled with sourness during the day, because of food not digesting properly. Terrible sick headaches came on me, and I would get so dizzy that I feared I would fall. I had blurring of the eyes and everything would turn black in front of me. Constipation made it necessary for me to take physics often.

"I first learned about Ten Herbs in the newspapers. My husband and I started using your medicine, and it was not long until we were both feeling better. His rheumatic pains are now entirely gone. My condition has been improved so much that I am able to eat a hearty breakfast. I have been entirely relieved of nervous indigestion. Headaches, dizzy spells, and blurring of the eyes no longer trouble me, and I do not have to use physics any more. Ten Herbs surely is a wonderful medicine, and we both gladly recommend it to the public."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. He will be glad to tell you how to take it to get the best results.

PASTOR'S RETURN MARKS VICTORY OVER BIBLE CLASS

Bishop Herbert Welch, of the Pittsburgh conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has stood behind the Rev. Dr. Sheridan Watson Bell in the pastor's fight with members of the Callender Men's Bible Class of the South Avenue Church, Wilkinsburg, by returning Dr. Bell to the South Avenue pastorate for another term.

The return of Dr. Bell to the same church was noted in the assignment list of Methodist Episcopal ministers given out yesterday at the conclusion of the one hundred and fifth session of the Pittsburgh conference held at McKeesport. It was understood that many persons had asked for the removal of Mr. Bell as a means of ending the trouble at the Wilkinsburg church.

The end of the conference was marked by a heated debate over criticism of President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg, which was contained in the report of the Social Service Commission. The report censured the two for allowing marines to remain in Nicaragua and thus "permitting interference with a nation with which we are not at war and maintaining a government there for some time by force of arms and not by consent of those governed."

The Rev. N. B. Tannehill, and others, asking that the paragraph referring to the Nicaraguan subject be sliced from the report, were stormed under by Drs. A. E. Day and Ralph B. Urmy, who, supporting the report in full, won its ultimate recognition. The report, as well, criticized "Pennsylvania as the only state to have in its jails those incarcerated for their opinions, despite the fact that war hysteria has passed on." This phase included a comment that "sedition is often used as an industrial weapon."

The power interests, coal mining industry and "Wall street" came in for less severe criticism. Of the candidate who "favors the return of the liquor traffic" the report suggested that he merits defeat.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild, gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or this coupon brings a bottle for free trial:

TEAR GAS BOMBS ROUT OHIO POLITICAL RALLY

MARTINS FERRY, O., Oct. 9.—Israel Anter and Carl Hacker, both of Cleveland, candidates of the Workers party respectively for United States Senator and Lieut. Governor, were arrested last night and are being held today without bond for assailing Martins Ferry police in breaking up a Sacco-Vansetti memorial meeting in August.

Anter and Hacker were ordered to cease speaking but refused. The crowd also refused to leave. Then the police hurled tear gas bombs, dispersing the meeting.

The candidates and a local man, who protested, were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and inciting to riot. They may resort to injunction proceedings to obtain their release.

Need a new golf stick?

Let your tooth paste pay for it

There are a number of articles you can buy with the money you save by using Listerine Tooth Paste at 25¢ instead of 50¢ dentifrices that accomplish no more. A golf stick for example, or hosiery or razor blades. The average saving is $3 per year per person. Think how that multiplies when the family is large!

A dentifrice as good as its name—and costing but 25¢

Large Tube 25¢

THERE are many excellent dentifrices on the market selling at a trifle above or below 50¢—but is it necessary to pay that much? Why not a first class dentifrice at 25¢—scientifically correct for all types of teeth?

Believing this to be a sound price, we created Listerine Tooth Paste at 25¢ for a large tube. It is the result of more than fifty years' study of tooth and mouth troubles. Now it is sweeping the country. Everywhere it is supplanting older and costlier dentifrices that accomplish no more.

Due to the presence of an amazing new and gentle polishing agent, it keeps teeth gleaming white with almost no brushing. Included in it are certain ingredients we have found most ideal in keeping the mouth and gums fresh and healthy.

We ask you to try this paste not only for the marked saving (quite substantial in a large family) but for its delightful and speedy cleansing. Get a tube at your druggist today. Try it for a month. See how it makes teeth gleam. Note how good your mouth feels after using it. Compare it with any paste you have ever used and judge by results alone. And then reflect that these results are costing you about half of what you would ordinarily pay. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Staff Correspondent.

Commissioner Landis Justified in Postponing Game Yesterday—Excessive Dampening Of Base Paths Suspected of Yankees—McKechnie Confident of Comeback—Dugan Not Slipping—Guessing on New Managers For '29 Continues.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8.—It's tough to be the commissioner of organized baseball when it comes to guessing on the weather during the world series and deciding in time to satisfy everybody whether or not a game ought to be postponed.

Commissioner Landis

Three years ago in Pittsburgh, after a capacity crowd had assembled at Forbes Field for the seventh and deciding game of the series between the Pirates and Senators, Commissioner K. M. Landis was severely criticized because, in the hope that a fall of rain would cease in time to make possible the playing of the contest, he waited until the fans in the open seats had been drenched before he called off the scheduled encounter.

THE commissioner yesterday took the opposite tack and early as 10:10 o'clock in the morning, without leaving his hotel, he ordered the postponement of the fourth number in the Yankee-Cardinal engagement because it had rained hard since midnight and a drizzle was still falling.

Within an hour, however, the rain ceased and the sun shone so brightly and warmly during the remainder of the day as to provide ideal overhead conditions. The result was that Landis came in for criticism again. Many fans contended that he had been too hasty in postponing the game and should have waited for a clearing.

AS a matter of fact, the commissioner was absolutely right in deciding upon a postponement at the time he did. As he explained when he visited Sportman's Park shortly before 1 o'clock he called off the game, not because he thought that the showers might continue during the afternoon, but because he felt sure that the grounds would not dry out before game-time. His judgment was correct. The canvas cover had protected the greater part of the infield, but the outfield, particularly the left side of it, was a swamp and it was clear that hours of sunshine would be required to put it in passable shape.

"Left field here is a wet field and I knew that the general condition of the grounds would render a game impossible," said Landis, as he surveyed the park surface from one of the temporary boxes in front of the grandstand. "I came out only to see what possibility there might be of the field's drying out in time for a game on Tuesday." Others who inspected the field at 1 o'clock and later, concurred in the commissioner's decision that a game would have been out of the question.

SPEAKING of wet fields, close observers who attended the two world series games played in New York last week strongly suspect that someone connected with Miller Huggins' club dampened the base paths a whole lot more than was necessary.

That something had been done to make the going slower, first became evident in the opening game, when the Yankee shortstop fielded a grounder from Frankie Frisch's bat that had gone through the third baseman, and from that deep position threw out the "Fordham Flash" at Lou Gehrig's corner. Never before had veteran fans seen the fleet-footed Frisch, batting left-handed, fail to beat out a throw of that length by a couple of steps.

Miller Huggins

NATURALLY slow base paths would benefit the Yankees in competition with a club like the Redbirds, for whereas the Cards depend largely upon speed in their run-getting, the Hugmen have no players in their present lineup who could be called overly fast with the exception of Mark Koenig.

Another thing that attracted the attention of more than one spectator was the height of the pitching mound on the Yankees' grounds. The maximum height allowed under the rules is 15 inches with a gradual slope to the base-lines, but the Yankee knoll appeared to be several inches above that limit. The Yanks play 77 games at home during a regular season and each visiting club plays there only 11 times.

SUCH unsportsmanlike conditions on the playing field of the Hugmen, and on the grounds of perhaps more than one other club in the big show, suggest that it might be a good move to create in connection with the commissioner's office the post of general supervisor of ground-keeping.

That is, to appoint a man experienced in the laying-out and care-taking of ball fields, whose duty it would be to make regular inspections of all parks in the major circuits and to see to it that the groundkeeper at each field stayed within the rules in every detail of the playing lay-out and resorted to no trickery calculated to help the home club during the long course of a season.

MANAGER BILL M'KECHNIE, still hoping against hope as he made his plans for the resumption of the world series with the Yankees after the weather man's interference, confided one of the reasons why he felt so confident that his team would turn on the New Yorkers and win the fourth game and perhaps others to follow.

"You may call it only a hunch," said the Wilkinsburg pilot, "but it is a fact that never during the regular season of 1928 did the Cardinals lose more than three games of any importance in succession. Invariably they braced after the third straight defeat and turned right in and won several games in a row, sometimes as many as six. That's one reason why I feel confident that we are going to beat the Yankees in the fourth game and take a brace that will change the complexion of the series."

Benny Bengough

ONE member of the Yankee outfit who has not been given his full share of credit in the present series is Catcher Benny Bengough. So much attention is attracted by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig that Bengough often is overlooked, but it is a fact that he is one of the most important cogs in the New York machine.

The splendid pitching done by Waite Hoyt, George Pipgras and Tom Zachary in the first three games was due in no small measure to the clever handling of Bengough. He is an in-and-out hitter, but in all branches of a catcher's work he deserves to be ranked among the best backstops in the country.

THOUGH Joe Dugan, regular third-sacker of the Yankees, has not been as prominent as usual in this series and has been taken out in favor of Gene Robert-

Pretty Good Yankees for The Shape They're In

SHERDEL TO TEST YANKS AGAIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The Yankees were stopped yesterday in their rush toward a second successive world championship—but not by the Cardinals. A downpour of rain early yesterday morning swamped the playing field at Sportsman's Park to such an extent that Commissioner Landis authorized postponement of the fourth game. The weather prospects favor resumption of the series today and playing prospects indicate its abrupt end unless the National League champions show a remarkable reversal of form.

The decision to postpone the game, made at 10:15 a. m., more than three hours before the scheduled starting time, not only disappointed thousands of fans, but aroused considerable protest.

FIELD TOO WET

At the time, after virtually three hours of steady rain, Sportsman's Park was a morass, with big pools of water in the outfield and the stretches along the foul lines slippery with mud. But the infield proper was fairly well protected by heavy tarpaulin, carrying off most of the downpour, and the field dried quickly when the sun came out and a brisk breeze blew up.

The ground was still a bit soft in spots at 1:15 p. m., but it seemed to the small cluster of disappointed fans and experts who gathered to inspect the situation that an emergency corps could have put the field in condition.

Cardinal enthusiasts figure the law of averages is bound to operate in favor of the home team and that they will win today but not even the most optimistic has any hope of a St. Louis victory in the series.

It would be a miracle for the Cardinals to stage a winning comeback after the way they not only have been out-pitched and out-hit, but also out-smarted in the first three games. But Bill McKechnie, their manager, is still clinging to what slim hope is left.

SKIPPER BILL CONFIDENT

Billy led one of the biggest comebacks of world series history with the 1925 Pirates, who beat Washington after losing three of the first four games. He feels that if the Cardinals regain their batting sights there will be a lot more to write about, despite the unanimous conviction of the experts that a speedy conclusion is in sight, if the weather permits.

Miller Huggins is standing pat on his lineup and will start Tony Lazzeri again at second base, in spite of the obvious handicap of the second baseman's bad throwing arm. Huggins has been making some shifts, as situations have offered, but regards Lazzeri as the infield keystone, even in disabled condition. Earle Combs' injured wrist has mended rapidly, but Huggins intends to start Ben Paschal in centerfield, if Sherdel pitches, or Cedric Durst, if a right-hander takes the mound for the Cardinals.

TO USE FULL FORCE

The Cardinals, who must win today to engage in any further competition this year, are expected to throw their entire resources into the game. If Sherdel fails to come through, Clarence Mitchell, whose southpaw spitballs baffled the Yankees last Friday after Alexander retired, may be called on. Old Alex also is anxious for another shot at the Yankees, but he is less likely to get it than Flint Rhem, big right-hander, who did well enough for two innings Sunday.

"Our men are in a fighting mood, and I look for them to snap out of their slump tomorrow," said McKechnie yesterday. "We have had other setbacks as bad as this and overcome them. This isn't over until the last man is out."

"We're out to make it four straight, but doing it is something else," remarked the taciturn Huggins, who seldom, if ever, permits optimism to flavor his comment on the Yankees.

CUBS-SOX PLAY FINALE TODAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(AP.)—Each victorious in three games, the Cubs and White Sox were to determine the city baseball championship at Comiskey Park today.

The White Sox, who have fought an uphill battle most of the way during the traditional series, forced it into a seventh game yesterday by defeating their National League rivals, 7 to 1, for their second straight triumph.

With Grady, Adkins limiting the Cubs to six hits, the White Sox pounded Guy Bush and Hal Carlson for 14 safeties, piling up their runs in the first three innings.

Sheriff Fred Blake, who pitched the Bruins to one victory over the South Siders, was Manager Joe McCarthy's choice in today's finale, while Ted Lyons was expected to toil for the White Sox.

For which Artist John Wetzel makes apologies to the old masterpiece, "Spirit of '76."

STALWART AMERICANS ROUT CARDINAL REDCOATS IN WORLD SERIES PLAY

Before the world series opened everybody was feeling sorry for the poor American League champions, the crippled Yankees. Gosh, what those tough St. Louis Cardinals wouldn't do to the poor fellers in their demoralized condition! But you can depend on the Yankee spirit in any sort of a fight. Even as the Yanks stood off the British Redcoats in the world series (or was it the Revolutionary War?) of 1776, the Yanks under Commander Huggins rose to the occasion this time, and just how valiantly they fought is apparent by the fact that they now are leading the Cards, 3 games to 0, and stand a fine chance of polishing 'em off four straight if the weather man does not interfere again today, as he did yesterday, to give the repulsed Cardinals a much-needed respite.

CHILLY SAUCE BY CHILLY DOYLE

Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—One bad play should not change the status of a fixed star, but in the case of Frank Frisch, his failure to complete a double play Sunday apparently has dimmed his brilliance to some extent. To fail as he did in an ordinary contest of the diamond would be overlooked, but the followers of the sport use the microscope on athletes when they are engaged in games of such vast importance.

More than one baseball man has picked glaring weaknesses in the second base play of Frisch, just as they have in the keystone performances of Rogers Hornsby. Hughey Critz, Fresco Thompson and perhaps Freddie Maguire are in front of the celebrated Fordham flash in the art of staying on one's feet to execute fast plays.

A lot of minor league second-sackers would have made the double play on Bob Meusel's grounder of the sixth inning, that led to three runs after the side should have been retired. Frisch's timing on the pivot end of the attempted double shuffle was faulty. Ruth was on second, Gehrig on first with one out and the score tied. High made a fast pick-up of Meusel's grounder and let fly to Frisch, who raced towards the bag. The throw was too low to be ideal, but it was above Frisch's knees and he had little trouble catching it. Instead of stepping out in front of the bag for a clear shot at first base, Frisch stood at the cushion long enough to allow Gehrig to nick him. If the play had been doubtful through Meusel being a speed merchant or for any other reason, the figure might have been executed. As it was, Frisch stands like a bad second sacker on plays of this sort.

If the Redbirds had come through the sixth with the game deadlocked they would have been as good as the enemy on the outlook for a winning marker. But the three big tallies that followed the failures of Frisch and Jim Wilson took the starch out of the National Leaguers. Wilson's slip, although he was charged with an error, was not as glaring as the fall-down of Frisch as Ruth came into him with terrific force.

Babe Ruth picked Taylor Douthit on his all-star team, but he probably made his choice mostly from hearsay. If the Bambino arrived at a conclusion for center while watching Douthit in the present series he doubtless would seek elsewhere, perhaps Pittsburgh.

Hazen Cuyler, if he were played in the middle pasture, might outshine all rivals, owing to his speed, his wonderful arm and his general ball-hawk tendencies. But Ki has done most of his fly-chasing in right field.

Lloyd Waner should be classed as the best centerfielder in the National League. Better on the offense than Douthit, Sprout is a wonderful defensive player. The fact that Douthit established a new record for the sport in making putouts may have helped him to the honor, and, of course, the position of the Redbirds was an influencing factor.

John McGraw, in naming his mythical team, placed Lloyd and Paul in his outfield. McGraw has had a case on the Oklahoma kids from the first day he saw them in uniform. And just to think, his scouts passed up Brother Paul and Pie Traynor.

BURKE IS LOST; NEW STARS PROMISED

By CARL W. SHATTO.

THE most powerful hockey club ever to represent Pittsburgh is practically assured local ice enthusiasts for the 1928-29 National Professional League campaign.

After conferring with Benny Leonard, new owner of the local ice franchise, at the latter's headquarters in the William Penn Hotel last night, Manager Odie Cleghorn, who has just agreed to pilot the Pirates for the fourth year, intimated that he had been given free rein in the matter of signing talent and that he was prepared to give the Steel City a combination that would be a championship contender from start to finish. Odie, assured of the unqualified support of the retired undefeated lightweight champion of the world, now treasurer of the Pirates, left late last night for Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and other Canadian hockey hotbeds, where he will line up new talent of the highest caliber available.

The signing of a new defense ace is Cleghorn's first aim. While discussing the prospects of the local skaters, Manager Odie released the sad news that Marty Burke, capable and aggressive defender, would not be in the Pirate fold this season. Burke came to Pittsburgh last season under a trade-for-one-year agreement. Charley Langlois, veteran and rotound guardian, was shipped to Les Canadiens in exchange for the youthful Marty, whose pep, dash and fight won him an army of friends here. The understanding was that Burke merely was loaned to Pittsburgh and that the Canadiens might recall him at the start of another campaign should they see fit to do so.

MAY LOSE BURKE

About a month ago, Herb Gardiner, defense ace of Les Canadiens in recent campaigns, signed as non-playing manager of the Chicago Black Hawks. Burke, Cleghorn says, is to be recalled to take Gar-

HELEN WILLS' MOTHER FLAYS CRITICISM

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. C. A. Wills, mother of Helen Wills, world's champion woman tennis player, has deplored publicity given her daughter's cancellation of a widely-advertised exhibition match at the Los Angeles Tennis Club last week.

Mrs. Wills declared that her daughter played a trial set at the Berkeley Club Friday afternoon and found that blistered feet, caused by playing on hard courts after a season on soft grass courts still gave her trouble and made it impossible for her to play in the programmed Los Angeles games.

Miss Wills telegraphed the club Friday morning, canceling her engagement, Mrs. Wills said, and that afternoon's trial on the Berkeley courts proved conclusively that it would be inadvisable for her to appear.

ALGER BEATS FINLEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Billy Alger of Phoenix, Ariz., outpointed Jimmy Finley of Louisville in a 10-round bout at the Broadway arena last night. Alger weighed 152½ and Finley 143.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BENNY LEONARD, retired lightweight boxing champion of the world, was sitting with newspapermen in his suite in the William Penn Hotel last evening, just fanning. He was here to close the deal whereby the local club of the National Professional Hockey League passed under his control.

Benny Leonard.

"Tell us about your hardest fight, Benny," someone suggested.

"Well, you'll laugh when I tell you about it, for you'll hardly believe it," he replied. "Most folks think my bout with Richie Mitchell in Madison Square Garden, in which he floored me after I had dumped him three times in the first round, was my hardest, but it wasn't. The hardest bout I ever had was with a second-rate lightweight, Ever Hammer, a tough Battling Nelson type Dane of Chicago. We fought in Kansas City before I won the title. We were scheduled for 15 rounds. I was a frail kid then, but a good, speedy boxer son when the New York club was facing right-hand pitching, it does not follow, by any means, that the Holy Cross product is slipping.

On the contrary, Dugan himself predicts that next year will find him going better than ever. He bases this prediction on the fact that an injury to one of his knees, suffered a couple of years ago, is finally yielding to treatment. The knee was hurt again a few weeks ago, which accounts for his occasional absence from his post, but Dugan says that he has about recovered from this latest injury and that the old hurt is mending so steadily he feels sure he will be as right as the traditional trivet next spring.

Joe Dugan

INCIDENTALLY, if Miller Huggins is willing to talk trade for Dugan during the off-season there will be no lack of opportunity for him to make a deal.

Several other big league clubs believe that Joe still ranks among the best third basemen in the game, and it will not be surprising if one or more of them makes a fancy offer for the third-sacker before the winter is over.

GUESSING on new managerial appointments for 1929 in the big leagues continues. The latest rumor in connection with the Washington vacancy is that if the post is not given to Walter Johnson, or if the latter declines to accept it, the job will be tendered to Clyde Milan, former outfielder of the Senators, who has been steadily successful as a minor league pilot since he left the big show.

and got by because the other fellows couldn't catch me in the ring.

"I MUST have caught cold in my hotel before the bout, for, when I entered the ring, I was all stiffened up and couldn't get going. This young Hammer came tearing at me and laying all over me, pounding me to the head and body, and I couldn't get away from him. Before the end of the first round he had my face beaten black and blue and had me cut and bleeding. It looked like curtains for Benny, but I kept trying, and, after absorbing the worst beating of my career for six rounds, I finally began to warm up, and, in the seventh, felt the stiffness leaving my muscles. I began to move around, and, in the eighth, I shot a right over the heart and Hammer grunted and began to double up. I knew I had him then, and kept right after him and in the twelfth round I knocked him out. I was glad when that bout was over of the way.

"A FUNNY incident occurred in connection with that battle. My manager, Billy Gibson, had been telling the newspaper boys what a clean liver and fine little gentleman I was. Said I never touched liquor or smoked, which was a fact. After that bout, however, I was in such bad shape that they stuck me in a steam room, and, while I was there, George Engel, formerly of Pittsburgh, who was my trainer and second, and a good one, ordered the boys to give me a glass of ale. They told me to drink it because it would be good for me, and I did. Well, sir, it turned the trick. Working with that steam, it had me groggy and when I left the steam room I reeled before the gathered newspapermen like a drunken man. I heard at least one of them remark in whispered fashion:

"'So that's the nice little total abstainer, eh?'"

BENNY, who is sincerely anxious to make a go of the hockey situation here and will spend much of his time in Pittsburgh this winter, was asked what he thought of the heavyweight situation, now that Gene Tunney has retired as champion. He replied that Knute Hansen, the Dane, shaped up as the best of the crop of contenders for the title, but it was questionable if he would stand up to the good things that were being said about him.

"He can box and he can fight and punch," Benny said, "but his record to date has been too erratic to risk a prediction that he will beat the field to the crowns. Of the old guard, Jack Sharkey is the best man, if he can control his moods. Tommy Loughran, a good friend of mine, whom I admire greatly for his style, I am afraid is a bit too light to wade through the heavyweight division."

"There's one fighter before the public today whom I cannot praise too highly," Benny said. "He is little Sammy Mandell, who now holds my old lightweight title. He was a revelation the night he boxed Jimmy McLarnin. Perfect. A champion from his toes up, and it will take a great man to beat him."

"SAY, do you want to know why we do not have as many great fighters or boxers in all of the classes nowadays as we did when I was fighting?" Benny suddenly asked. "It's because the promoters and the boxers' own friends do not give them a chance to develop. The boys win a half-dozen fights and everybody goes wild about them and they are thrown in with champions or near-champions and subjected to bruising beatings—and that's the last you ever hear of them. They've got all of the fight and ambition knocked out of them almost before they have had a chance to get started. Why, when I was fighting, I had to have at least 50 fights before my manager would even point out the champion on the other side of the street, and 50 more before he would let me shake hands with him and 50 more before I could challenge him. Now every promising kid is posting a forfeit with a boxing commission for a crack at the title. Look at what happened to Firpo against Dempsey, McLarnin against Mandell and Bilitman against Bass. There's your answer."

NOTES of the BOXERS

MATCHMAKER JULES BECK is at work on his preliminary card for his double windup show in Motor Square Garden next Monday night and hopes to be able to announce it completely tomorrow. Phil Goldstein meets Johnny Mellow, of Detroit, and Rudy Ceder boxes Tony LaRose, of Cincinnati, in the two eight-round battles. Tug Phillips and Jimmy Belmont are paired for the feature preliminary.

Promoter Jim McGirr today completed his program for his show at McKeesport Thursday night with the signing of Johnny Brown, of Pittsburgh, and Larry Marsilli, of Carrick, for the six-round opening bout. They are 140-pounders. Al Waldeck, of Tarentum, meets Battling Gizzy, of Donora, in the second bout, and Linn Jordan and Bobby Holmes, Negro middleweights, meet in the semi-final. The windup will be the return engagement between Joe Packo and Ike McFowler, heavies, who recently fought a slashing battle in the same ring.

Ray Alvis, manager of Chick Wiggins, has purchased from Eddie Sears the contract of Mushy Callahan, Coast welterweight.

Tommy Crowley, local junior-lightweight, boxes Eddie Anderson, at Indianapolis, tonight.

Frankie Porto and Jacinto Valdez box a 10-round bout at Alliance, O., tonight. George Tomosky and Jackie Powers, meet in the semi-final.

VIC KEEN, MONAHAN TRADED TO HOUSTON

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Vic Keen, pitcher, and Pete Monahan, first baseman, of the Rochester club of the International League have been traded to the Houston club of the Texas League for George Watkins, outfielder. The trade was announced last night by Warren C. Giles, president of the Rochester club. The deal was completed in St. Louis.

Two more Rochester players will go to Houston in the trade after the conclusion of spring training. Keen pitched for the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals in the National League. He won 11 and lost 10 games this season.

Frisch Is Given Assist on Weird Series Play

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—An assist has been credited to Frank Frisch for his part in the weird play which helped the Yankees sew up the third world series game with three unearned runs in the sixth inning, the board of official scorers announced today. With Ruth on second, Gehrig on first and one out, Meusel rolled to High, who tossed to Frisch, forcing Gehrig. The Fordham flash then made a poor throw to Bottomley in a vain attempt to double Meusel.

Ruth, noticing the wide toss, dashed for the plate, but would have been out had Wilson held Bottomley's relay. The Cardinal first baseman, of course, received an assist for his part in the play, but none was credited immediately to Frisch. The St. Louis second baseman was exempt from an error on his poor toss unless either Meusel or Ruth gained an extra base thereon, and since he would have had an assist if Wilson had completed the double play, the scorers decided to credit him on the play as made.

Cooper Ties For Second

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Eddie Williams, Westwood Golf Club, Cleveland, led a field of 61 professional golfers of Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York at the end of the first 36 holes of the annual invitation pro tournament played over the Riverside Golf Club course here yesterday. He turned in cards of 70-72-142, to hold a four-shot margin over Light Horse Harry Cooper, Buffalo; Albert Alcroft, Youngstown, and Vincent Eldred, Olean, N. Y., who tied for second place with cards of 146.

Riverside's difficult par of 69, made even more exacting by stretching the layout about 100 yards, defied the efforts of the professionels. Williams had a 12-foot putt for a par on his afternoon round, but the ball stopped a few inches short of the mark.

The first 10 in rank at the end of the first 36 holes were: Eddie Williams, Cleveland, 142; Harry Cooper, Buffalo, 146; Albert Alcroft, Youngstown, 146; Vincent Eldred, Olean, N. Y., 146; Jack Gordon, Buffalo, 148; Perry Delvecchio, Greensburg, 149; Lloyd Gullickson, Cleveland, 149; Bob Shave, Cleveland, 149; Tom Rackletts, Girard, O., 150; Jack Smith, Cleveland, 150; Frank Presby, Youngstown, 150.

The final 36 holes will be played today, with $500 in prize money to be divided among the first 10 players.

McNary's horse, Red Fire, winner in the last two meets, of the Western Pennsylvania Hunts cup, will be chief competitor again this year, the cup becoming the permanent possession of Mrs. McNary if her horse again comes in first.

MAJOR LEAGUE STARS TO HUNT IN N. B. WOODS

FREDERICTON, N. B., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Trying to get as far as possible from the storm and strife of the big leagues, a party of Major League baseball players, led by Eddie Collins, of the Atheletics, will make a hunting trip to the New Brunswick woods after the world series. Collins will replace Bob Shawkey, pilot of baseball hunting parties for several years, who is giving up hunting in favor of a trip to Japan this season.

The party will include Mickey Cochrane, Athletics' catcher, and Joe Bush, of the same team, Benny Bengough, Yankees' receiver, Sam Jones, Washington pitching ace, and Fred Hofmann, of the Red Sox.

The players are expected to reach Fredericton October 15. After a reception that night they will go to Doaktown, on the Miramichi river, then 12 miles south into the woods to Hopewell Lodge, one of the finest hunting camps in New Brunswick, which has been placed at their disposal.

A LOCAL derby will be played up the Allegheny River Sunday when the Summit Hose Club, of Tarentum, travels down to Oakmont to meet Roger Patrizio's club, the Oakmont A. C. The Oakmonters are out to make a reputation this fall, and the Summit boys, after playing a tie game with the much-touted Oakleafs last Sunday, will give them a tussle. Manager Weber is all pepped up since the Hose boys nearly put the Soho boys out of the picture, and he feels that with a large following coming down the river, a big crowd should watch the battle. Coach Restizelli, of Oakmont, is holding three practice sessions this week and all players should be out.

Pleasant Valley Smilers will be the attraction at New Kensington on Sunday, opposing the Burns club. Manager Grafton Sullivan booked the North Siders last evening, and from rumors, it seems as though the Smilers are popular around the Allegheny river town. One of the best crowds of the season in the district is expected, and capable officials will work the game Gannon of Wilmerding, the popular central board man, will be the referee.

One of the most interesting independent football games of the district, will be played Sunday afternoon when the Dormont Odds stack up against the Soho Oakleafs at Moultrie park. The kickoff is called for 2:30 p. m. The Odds are anxious to book games with any team in the light-first class division. For games call Lehigh 2713-M and ask for Tony Peckes.

Wright May Be Traded

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—Rumors are persistent during the world series that the acquisition of First Baseman Earl Sheely from Sacramento has so completely changed the status of Shortstop Glenn Wright on the Pittsburgh baseball club that it is practically certain Wright will be traded during the coming winter.

It has been planned to take Wright out of the short field position next year and put him on first base, but now that Sheely has been obtained for the initial corner, it is reported that Wright will not fit into the Pirate management's scheme of things for 1929, and that Glenn has played his last game in a Pirate uniform.

Reports that Wright was to be traded were denied by Pittsburgh club officials a few weeks ago, and it is understood that at that time they really intended to keep him, but with Sheely now available for the first base job it is rumored that Wright's case has been reconsidered. From seemingly reliable sources, it is reported that the Pittsburgh club has now decided that it can get along without Wright's services next year and that, accordingly, the big shortstop will figure in a trade during the winter, probably for another shortstop. It is also said that, with Sheely booked for the first base job, another effort may be made to turn George Grantham into an outfielder.

Pitt, Tech Work Hard

By JESS CARVER.

NINETEEN points to the good for the two games played so far and with nothing in the red, the Dukes of Duquesne have begun preparations for their entry into Big Four football which takes place when they square off with Andy Kerr's Presidents of W. and J. Saturday.

The Dukes came out of their battle at Scranton Saturday with St. Thomas College in fine trim, both as to their morale and their physical condition. The 10-0 victory boosted their stock both as an offensive and a defensive threat. None of the players were banged up, which means that Coach Layden will be able to play out his full string against Wash-Jeff.

TO GET LIGHT WORK

One or two light scrimmage sessions and further drill on both the offense and defense as it relates to the aerial game will fill up the Dukes' working hours this week. The Dukes are not over-confident. Coaches Layden and Reagan yesterday pointed out several glaring weaknesses that cropped up in the St. Thomas clash and warned the boys that these faults will have to be corrected before the team can hope to cope with Wash-Jeff. A victory or a good showing in the W.-J. game means everything to the Dukes.

Pitt, exulting over the form displayed by the boys against Bethany, began work for the first major game of the schedule. This battle is on the books for Saturday and will toss the locals into the pit with the West Virginia Mountaineers, otherwise known as the Men of Rodgers.

West Virginia has already tasted defeat, but has also chalked up two victories, one over Wesleyan and the other over the Haskell Indians, since they were spilled by Davis-Elkins in the opening tussle of the season.

PITT NEEDS POLISHING

Despite the fine general showing on Saturday, the Panthers were still a bit weak in their aerial defense department, and it is this feature of their game that the coaches aim to bolster this week.

Carnegie Tech isn't taking Thiel, the opponent of the week, lightly, and the Plaid, with the exception of one or two injured and banged up members of the squad, will get some heavy work during the week.

The Tartans ran wild and wilder against Ashland. Coach Bob Waddell is certain, however, that the club will have a much harder time against the smart and fairly heavy Thiel eleven. The Lutheran defense is conceded to be much more to be feared than was Ashland's. On the attack, with Stan Berkman, Mitchell and Schilling in the backfield, Thiel is certain to offer trouble. They scored on Tech last year when Mitchell recovered a fumble and dashed 36 yards for a touchdown.

A special train will be run to Little Washington for the convenience of Duquesne students Saturday, according to Graduate Manager Holahan. It is expected that at least 800 will make the trip. The train will leave the Pennsylvania Railroad's Fourth Ave. station at 12:45 p. m., returning immediately after the game.

TIGHTEN CONFERENCE CODE

The eligibility code of the Tri-State Collegiate Conference was tightened at a special meeting of the league in the Fort Pitt Hotel here yesterday. Students enrolling at conference schools from teachers' colleges granting degrees, such as Slippery Rock and Edinboro, are barred from competing in varsity sports in the future. Normal school athletes are still eligible.

Migrants who have played freshman ball at one school, whether in the conference or out, and enroll in a conference institution must maintain a year's residence before becoming eligible for varsity competition.

Students in the Duquesne University pharmacy school who have been granted their three-year course diploma and return for a fourth year of work will be eligible for varsity teams.

GRAYS WIN SECOND

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Oct. 9.—The Homestead Grays of Pittsburgh scored their second victory over the American League All-Stars here yesterday afternoon, 9-5.

HOCKEY

diner's place in the Montreal sextet's lineup.

While entertaining slight hope, Cleghorn said that there was a possibility that Burke might return to the Pittsburgh team at the start of the race in the event that the Canadiens find they can safely dispense with his services. Cleghorn at one time was one of the Canadiens' brightest stars, and the relations between the Pittsburgh and Montreal managements are most cordial.

Langlois will be back in Pittsburgh at the start of the training grind, but the Pirate pilot intimated that Charley probably would be used as trading material at the first opportunity.

In the event that he is unable to sign a star defender before the start of the race, Cleghorn said Bert McCaffery and Johnny McKinnon probably would be awarded the regular defense berth. McCaffery showed fair promise as a wingman late last season, but Odie seems to be convinced that Bert will achieve the greatest heights as a defense man.

CLEGHORN SHAPES PLANS

While discussing the probable 1928-29 lineup, Manager Odie also set at rest reports current last season that Hib Milks might be transferred from center to a wing position. Regarded as one of the most valuable players in the league and one of the circuit's leading scorers, Milks probably would prove a star at wing, but, because the Pirates are without a man capable of filling his place at center, Cleghorn has decided to keep him at the pivot position.

When asked whether or not Roger Smith and Duke McCurry would be back this year, Cleghorn said every man who wore Pirate livery last season would be back in the field at the start of the training campaign, but that certain faltering performers might be used as trading material before the race is more than a few weeks old.

Cleghorn is faced with a peculiar situation in that not a single Pirate as yet has signed a 1928-29 contract. This is no fault of Cleghorn's in that he was not authorized to sign any players until today. He anticipates little or no difficulty in getting the Pirates back into the fold, for the new management appears to realize that satisfied players are essential to a winning team, and it is reported that many of the local skaters are to receive liberal salary increases.

BEGIN PRACTICE EARLY

Practice sessions are to be inaugurated at Duquesne Garden on October 25, about two weeks earlier than last season, when the local skaters had to jump into the fray right after practicing for only five days. The result of the cut-down-expenses policy practiced here last season still is fresh in the memory of local fans. The Pirates failed to garner a single victory in their first 11 starts, and their showing in the last half of the race, when they outplayed every other club in the circuit and drove through to a money berth, indicated that lack of training was directly responsible for their disastrous start.

Leonard, the new owner, is determined that no such deplorable situation shall prevail this season, and when the lid is lifted on November 15, with Boston appearing at Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh representatives will be found primed and ready for the fight.

That this training campaign shall produce every possible benefit, the new management, too, has arranged to bring an expert trainer and conditioner of men to Pittsburgh to get the players in shape. It is rumored that Artie McGovern, renowned conditioner of Babe Ruth and other notables, may be the man selected for the job.

Cleghorn, who is to serve his fourth year as manager here, repeatedly has proved himself a pilot of ability second to none, and even the most pessimistic safely can predict that the Pittsburgh hockey outlook for 1928-29 is roseate.

BUCKY HARRIS KEEPS DETROIT VISIT SECRET

DETROIT, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Stanley (Bucky) Harris, former manager of the Washington Senators, who, it has been rumored, may succeed George Moriarty as pilot of the Detroit baseball club, was in Detroit for a few hours yesterday but declined to reveal the purpose of his visit.

Frank Navin, president of the Detroit club, denied he had conferred with Harris and refused to discuss the report that Moriarity may be removed.

Harris checked out of his hotel last night and was thought to have left Detroit.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 9. — William Southworth, Jr., 12-year-old son of Billy Southworth, manager of the Rochester Redbirds, International League champions, is recovering here from a gunshot wound accidentally inflicted by a playmate. The youths were shooting at sparrows near their homes when the gun carried by the playmate was discharged, striking young Southworth in the side.

JOIE RAY TURNS PROFESSIONAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Joie Ray has turned away from amateur athletics with its rewards of medals, cups, and watches and set about earning his living as a professional marathon star. Chesty Joie has signed a contract with Tex Rickard to race El Ouafi, the Algerian Arab Olympic champion, in Madison Square Garden, October 21.

Ray, American mile champion for many years, has run only four marathons and those at the close of his spectacular amateur career. He raced third in his first start at Boston last April, won the Long Beach grind, was fifth in the Olympics and first in Ireland's Tailteen games.

Hagen's Winnings In P. G. A. Play Are Attached

BALTIMORE, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—All earnings of Walter Hagen, dethroned champion of the Professional Golf Association, in the title tournament which ended here Saturday, were attached yesterday by a court order served on the Baltimore Country Club, over whose course the tournament was held.

The attachment was obtained by B. H. Hartogensis, Baltimore attorney, on behalf of two New York firms which claim debt of $790.45 and $288.37, said to be owed them by the former pro champion.

Hagen was dethroned in the quarter-final round by Leo Diegel, who won the title in the final against Al Espinosa, of Chicago.

Series Swat Feats

The club holding the highest record in batting in a world series is the American League Club of Philadelphia when, in 1910, Cubs vs. A's, they hit .317. The next best record was made by the Giants in the series of 1922, when that team had a mark of .309 made against the hurlers of the Yanks.

The low mark in batting is charged to the A's when that team batted .162 against the hurling of Matty and McGinnity in the series of 1905. Again in 1914, the A's held the next low record when Messrs. Rudolph, James and Tyler held the team to a mark of .172.

In the fifth game of the series of 1923, Yanks vs. Giants, the Giants were credited with three hits. These were made by Dutch Meusel, a triple, double and a single. Dutch and brother Robert did the brother stunt and made a bet who would have the best batting average in that game. Bob made three, with a total of five, while Emil had a total of six. This explains why Dutch made all the hits of that game.

Players who hold a record of having a perfect day at bat in these classics are Steinfeldt, of the Cubs, in 1906; Harry Davis, of the A's, in 1910; Dan Murphy, of the A's, in 1911, who made four hits, four runs to four times up; Mark Hall, hurling for Boston in the series of 1912, made three hits to three up; Eddie Collins, in the series of 1913; Hank Gowdy, in the series of 1914; Joe Jackson, in 1917; Holacher, of the Cubs, in 1918; Reuther, hurling for the Cincinnati Reds in 1919, helped to win the series by swell hurling, also by batting 1.000; Frisch, in 1922, four hits to four up; Goslin, in 1924, with four hits to four up; Reul, in 1925, with three hits to three up; Ruth, in 1927, with three hits to three up, but they were homers; he also scored four runs.

In the 32 series held since 1884, there were 106 homers made. In the years prior to 1905, there were 30 homers made by the boys of that period. Since 1905, and inclusive, 76 home runs were made and of that number 50 were registered since 1920. In the series of 1925, there were 12 home runs made which is the record for one series. In 1923 there were 10 homers made.

Since 1905 and up to 1908, inclusive, there were no home runs made in these big meets. The first homer was made by Fred Clarke, former great manager of the Pittsburgh club. In the first game between the Pirates and Tigers, in the fourth inning, he tied the score by a terrific drive into the right field bleachers that started Maumee George Mullen going bad and was the cause of landing the first game for Pittsburgh. Later in the series Clarke hit out homer No. 2, then Sam Crawford and Davy Jones hit out round trippers, making four in that series, which was breaking the ice aplenty.

It is remarkable how hurlers hit while participating in these swell affairs of the pastime. Out of the 114 players who hold a batting average of .300 or better for their entire work in the big events, 27 hurlers are included in the list.

Of the players since 1905 who played six or more games in world series contests and batted .300 or better, Dave Robertson with the Giants in the series of 1917, leads all with a mark of .500. Max Carey, with the Pirates, played seven games in the big events and came through with a batting average of .480. Casey Stengel, of the Giants, batted .393; Charlie Pick with .389. Of the players in active service today Frankie Frisch stands out as the most successful batsman in these classics. With a mark of .362 in the 102 times he stepped to the plate gives him the palm.

Babe Ruth, in the 98 times he stepped to the plate in the eight series he had the pleasure of taking part in, holds a record of .278.

Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford, Honus Wagner never were at their best with the bat in the big events.

Ruth is the champion home run hitter of these classics, with 10 to his credit. No other batsman has this approached.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Although not going so far as to restrict the dribble to a single bounce, the new basketball rules announced for 1928-29 have considerable to say about regulating this feature of the game. A new clause is added (Rule 15, Section 9, under the head of personal fouls) which reads:

"A player shall not hold, trip, charge or push an opponent; whether or not either player has possession of the ball. If a dribbler charges into an opponent, or makes personal contact with an opponent, without an apparent effort to avoid such contact, a personal foul shall be called on the dribbler.

"If, despite the dribbler's effort to avoid contact, personal contact ensues, either player, or both, may be guilty; but the greater responsibility is on the dribbler if he tries to dribble by an opponent who is in his path."

This is designed to "emphasize the responsibility of the dribbler in connection with the fouls resulting from the dribble," says Oswald Tower, Andover (Mass.) official interpreter of the rules.

Among other changes are provisions designed to penalize "guarding from the rear" by a personal foul, making it illegal for a player to capitalize his great height by tapping the ball and then catching it on two successive jump balls, and stating that "an ungarded player may hold the ball indefinitely in the court, but as soon as an opponent takes a position close by (say within a yard of) the player with the ball, the latter must get the ball into play."

The new code also makes it clear that a ball striking an official does not become a dead ball.

KILEY RESIGNS AS GRID COACH AT LOYOLA U.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Roger Kiley, former Notre Dame star, has resigned as head football coach at Loyola University, Chicago, to return to the practice of law.

Daniel Lamont, who has been his assistant, will have charge of the Loyola eleven until a successor is chosen.

TURFMAN PLANS BENEFIT RACES

SAN BRUNO, Cal., Oct. 13.—James W. Coffroth, president of the Tanforan Jockey Club, has announced that Saturday, October 20, will be "Charity Day" at the race meeting which starts at the peninsular track on October 13 for a 20-day run. He has requested Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, and the San Mateo county public officials to designate what charity or charities shall be the beneficiary.

The entire receipts of the day—100 per cent—will be turned over to the fund which the Mayor selects. This is following in the footsteps of the "big war benefit" boxing shows that "Sunny Jim" ran all over the country in 1918. They were all "100 per cent" benefits. The Tanforan "Charity Day" will be the same. Every dollar taken in at the gates; every penny of the purses, which will probably run on that day around $5,000; all of the salaries of the employes, from the presiding steward down to the lowliest stable boy, will be donated to whatever cause may be selected.

Coffroth announced that this "Charity Day" will be a regular fixture at the spring and fall meetings of the Tanforan Jockey Club. Before making this announcement, Coffroth called all of the horsemen who are now here, into a conference, and sent wires to the ones who have not yet arrived, and asked if they were willing to donate their share of the purses to the cause. To a man they said "YES" in capital letters. Then he took it up with the jockeys regarding their fees. They also readily gave their consent to waiving their fees for riding.

It is the fond hope of President Coffroth that the "Charity Day" will realize a sum way up in the "five-figure" column.

THE VARSITY COLUMN

by JESS M. CARVER

AMONG the mourners at the Notre Dame bier following the Wisconsin setback was Judge Wally Steffen, former head coach and present advisory mentor at Carnegie Tech. Prior to his leaving for Chicago following the Tech-Ashland contest Saturday, the Judge dropped into the office to get a line on some of the scores of the day. When he heard the Notre Dame-Badger result, he declared:

"That's our first tough break."

The Judge was hoping the Irish would remain undefeated until November 17, when the Plaid invades South Bend. Then, he thinks, the psychology would all have been in favor of the Tartans. The Rocknemen would be bound to have been a bit cocky, which would have been to the advantage of Tech. As matters are now, it may be Tech that will be over-confident, not the Irish.

THOUGH they are spending a lot of time in perfecting their mechanics, the coaches at West Virginia are seeking ardently to build up the right sort of a morale for the game with Pitt here in Pittsburgh this Saturday.

"We have one heck of a time getting these birds here in the right sort of a mood each fall for the Pitt game," Ira Rodgers told me while I was in Morgantown during preseason training. "We can get the boys worked up for any game except for Pitt. We never look good in Pittsburgh. No one seems to know why."

Coach Ira has steered his boys past three games so far this fall. He has lost one and won two. The two victories, coming in a row, may serve to bolster the team's morale. The setback may be the means of cautioning against the perils of over-confidence. It can hardly be said, however, that West Virginia ever came to Pittsburgh in that condition.

WITH Joe Donchess and Honey Guarino hitting along at their fine clip, Pitt followers are losing sight of the Panther reserve wingmen. It is a fact, nevertheless, that in Scanlon and Loehr, Coach Sutherland has a pair of ends that would cheer the heart of most any coach. This pair have come along so well this year that their insertion into the lineup is scarcely noticeable, and it is not detracting from the class of either Joe or Honey, to say that their presence in the lineup does not weaken the team.

Loehr and Scanlon played bang-up football against Bethany. Of the two, Loehr, who is a bit the faster, seems to be the best, though Scanlon leaves little to be desired on his defensive play. He not only turns the plays in, but he smears up the interference. The fine work of these boys, together with the form shown by Jesse Crissinger, has made the Pitt reserve situation much brighter.

CRISSINGER, a plucky chap and a hard worker, paid the penalty of inexperience in the Bethany game when he was forced to see his team penalized two or three times on his account. Criss, I understand, was nailed for holding once and was offsides a time or two. He will get over that, and when he does, he will be as valuable a man as Pitt will have on defense. He's valuable now and he'll be more valuable when he is cooler.

But unless the Cardinals start to play like the club that trimmed the Pirates in 15 out of 22, Maranville may contrast his second world series in a most striking manner. Fourteen years ago, Rabbit was a big figure in the winning of four games in a row over the famed Athletics.

Big Grid Games Listed Saturday

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Chicago will be the football metropolis of the nation Saturday with three important games, among them the Notre Dame-Navy spectacle at Soldier Field, on its program.

At the University of Chicago, Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg's rejuvenated Maroons will clash with Iowa and Ohio State will invade Northwestern. Almost 200,000 spectators are expected to watch the contests.

For the Notre Dame-Navy duel, which will go a long way toward re-establishing the prestige each team lost in their defeats last week, new stands have been constructed at Soldier Field, making room for 115,000 fans and a new football attendance record.

Somewhat shell shocked by Saturday's games, Big Ten teams went through light workouts yesterday. In many camps, promotions and demotions from the second team to the varsity and vice versa were made.

Chicago began work on a defensive against Iowa and its line plunging fullback, Mayes McClain. Four thousand Iowa fans plan to accompany their team to the game. Capt. Soj Weislow was still out with injuries, but expects to play.

Although no one was seriously in the Bradley game, the medicine chest was wide open and in use at Illinois. Chuck Hall, sophomore halfback, was still on crutches with a twisted knee and will be out for 10 days. Schumacher, center on the B team, was promoted to end on the varsity.

Coaches Tad Wieman and Fielding Yost worked their faltering Michigan eleven mostly on tackle practice until rain drove them indoors. Williams, tackle; Smith, end; Totzke, kicker and halfback; Dahlen, half, and Whittle, quarterback, all members of Saturday's B team, were shifted to the varsity.

EASTERNERS DRILL

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The football East nursed its bruises, mourned its shattered hopes or dwelt pleasantly on its success. Most coaches gave their squads nothing but easy workouts after last Saturday's competitive struggles and so there was little for the footballers to do but think.

With Johnny Hoben, veteran quarterback, on the sidelines, Yale spent the day throwing forward passes and punting. Hoben pulled a tendon in his leg against Maine and probably will see no action against Georgia, only team to defeat the Eli eleven last year. Hoot Ellis probably will be in Hoben's place.

Arnold Horween let Harvard off easy, but plans scrimmages today and tomorrow for the forthcoming battle with North Carolina, which downed Maryland, 26 to 19, in its last start.

Bill Roper replaced Mestres and Levine with Caldwell and Byles at the guard positions and Lou Young at Pennsylvania pulled something of a surprise when he set Al Ratowsky, a back, into one of the wings, the Red and Blue's chief weak spot. This change may be made permanent if it works in the Swarthmore game this Saturday.

Gil Doble paid little attention to his Cornell varsity, devoting his time to the reserves. What work the varsity did was confined largely to perfecting a forward passing attack for use against Hampden-Sidney.

Coach Earl Abell told his Colgate squad to forget its defeat by Vanderbilt and concentrate on the fray with Virginia Poly. Colgate has an old score to settle with the Virginians. They came up last year to give the Maroon the first defeat it ever suffered at home.

Big Crowd to See Dukes-W.&J. Game

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 9.—Having requested 8,000 seats, the Duquesne University student body and alumni is preparing to invade Washington Saturday and help provide a fitting finale to the home season of the Washington and Jefferson College eleven.

It also will be "homecoming day" for Washington and Jefferson College alumni and followers, a special program having been prepared by Graduate Manager William G. Theurer, which promises to attract one of the greatest crowds that ever witnessed a gridiron spectacle at College Field.

FROSH MEET KISKI

Preliminary to the varsity clash, Bill Amos' Washington and Jefferson College Freshman eleven, which gives promise of proving the most formidable in the school's history, will meet the fast Kiskiminetas eleven, of Saltsburg. It will be a real test for the Vice Presidents, as the decisive defeat handed the Carnegie Tech Plebes by the Saltsburg athletes shows that the Saltsburg school has the usual fine group of gridders.

Duquesne University showed a lot of improvement last Saturday in its struggle at Scranton, according to W. & J. scouts, and Head Coach Andy Kerr anticipates that Elmer Layden, a member of the famous "Four Horsemen" at Notre Dame University, will have his players pointed to the minute for the Presidents.

BIG CHANCE FOR DUKES

It will be the first time that Duquesne University has ever met a member of the district "Big Four" in football and is being heralded as one of the great events in the history of that school.

Special trains will be operated to carry the Duquesne rooters to Washington for Saturday's struggle.

In addition to the two gridiron struggles, Supt. W. F. Penn, of the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza, has accepted an invitation to bring the famous cadet band of that institution, one of the most remarkable of the kind in the state, and a drill corps to give an exhibition between games.

The gridiron spectacle here promises to be of especial interest at this time as football is being revived as a sport at the institution.

OLDFIELD AUTO IN SCRAP HEAP

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Barney Oldfield's "Golden Egg," once pride of the speedway and dirt track, and considered the auto race car supreme, is now a junk auto in a neighborhood garage here.

The race creation, which was the pride of Harry Miller, of Los Angeles, its builder, and a money-maker for Oldfield, has been unused for three years, but many race followers hold that "the egg" can still make fast enough time to win over any modern day race cars.

As a pioneer speed driver, Oldfield raced the Golden Egg, so named because of its color and shape, on speedway and dirt track to set up records and win many events. His final appearance was at the Independence race track near Kansas City in 1918, when he won from Ray Lampkin in a match race. That was Barney's race track farewell, but the Golden Egg went on.

The car became the property of promoters and race drivers in successive years and was a big attraction at many fairs when driven by several dirt track stars. Included in these were Paul Clancy and Wilbur Shaw, Clancy's mark for 12½ miles, recognized by the International Motor Contest Association, is still in the record books for the Golden Egg. Shaw, whose speed efforts at Daytona Beach brought him in the limelight this spring, drove the car as late as 1925. Since then the racer has been unused, but many an aspiring young driver in the Chicago section has divulged the ambition to rebuild the car and put it back into dirt track competition.

British Women Card Title Event

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

GIRL FRIEND

By LOUISE P. ARMSTRONG

AN organ-grinder stopped outside the office window. Barbaric blasts smote the air, shattering the charm of the quiet street.

"Hey, hey—I'm glad to say She's my girl friend now!"

"Close that window, please, Miss Moffitt," said Sam Nettleton.

Little Miss Moffitt arose with the intention of banging it shut. She felt she would like to crash every pane, or better still, tear it from its casement and hurl it at Sam's head, had she the strength.

He had taken her for a drive last night, the third in a week. They had discussed books, politics, men and women—even love and matrimony in an impersonal way. All had gone well until she had disagreed with Sam about married women working.

"A woman's place is in the home," Sam had said emphatically.

"Depends on the circumstances," retorted the girl. 'Some women don't like housework, and are clever at other things. A woman should not be expected to pass up a career the moment she goes to the altar."

"Women today are selling their birthright for a mess of pottage," persisted Sam.

"I think you're taking a prejudiced view," Gladys Moffit said.

She was astonished, thinking it over this morning, at how irritated she had been, how seriously Sam had taken the matter. Of course if she married she'd want to look after her home, but he really had no right to say—! But she determined to laugh it off.

Sam, however, came to work in such a mood of gloom she didn't have a chance to. He barely nodded to her, scowled over his morning mail, and his dictation was brusk to the point of rudeness.

"I don't think Urquhart & Witherspoon are going to like the tone of this letter, Mr. Nettleton," she had ventured at last.

"I think I'm the best judge of the tone of my letters."

Oh, very well, if he wanted to be nasty—none of her affair.

Sam found he had to take a hurried trip to North Carolina that night, and Tom Winston, his partner, told him not to worry, he'd manage his work in the interum. But he was worried when he left. Once, just as he was about to go, he started to speak to Miss Moffitt.

Catching the apologetic expression in his eye, she deliberately turned her back, seemed busy with filing. She saw him shrug.

Relenting then, she called to him: "Anything I can do?"

Sam turned at the door, "I believe Mr. Winston can manage."

"What's the matter with Sam?" asked Dolly Winston, Tom's wife, next evening when she came to drive her husband home. "We insisted on his coming out to dinner before he left, told him we'd ask you, too, Gladys. But he excused himself in the most evasive manner."

"I think he's developing a superiority-complex," Miss Moffitt almost snapped, tears springing into her gray eyes.

"You two have quarreled," Dolly said accusingly. "Tell me, dear—you know I've had some experience with men."

"He—he said a woman's place is in the home." One tear spilled over and slid down a rounded cheek.

"Well," gasped Dolly Winston, "I do think you have jumped rather far in the future to find a cause for grievance."

Gladys Moffitt flushed. "We were speaking impersonally," she said.

"Can't you see Sam's fallen in love with you?" asked Dolly. "And he's beginning to be jealous of your office work. He'd never object your excelling as a good cook, or efficient housewife, but in the office you're friendly rivals, and now that he loves you he wants to feel superior here. As to that old gag about a woman's place being in the home, don't worry about it. If you were married and Sam got in a financial jam, he'd be glad enough for you to help out.

"There's no use talking of our being married. Mrs. Winston! He hasn't asked me, and I'd refuse him if he did! And as to helping him out, I wouldn't lift a finger—"

Conversation was cut short by the entrance of a messenger boy who handed Miss Moffitt a telegram. She cut the envelope, spread it out on the desk, and as she read it Dolly saw her face turn white.

"Bad news?" Dolly asked anxiously.

"I should say! Mr. Nettleton wrote those New York attorneys yesterday morning when he was in a grouch. I told him the letter was hardly tactful. Now they're huffy and have cancelled all negotiations with our firm."

"It'll teach Sam a good lesson," Dolly said indignantly.

"And lose a lot of money for the firm," the girl observed.

"I'll tell Tom about it, and see what he thinks," Dolly said.

Miss Moffitt held up an entreating hand. "Don't say a word to Mr. Winston," she pleaded. "I've thought of a way."

Sam found the telegram on his desk when he returned from North Carolina. "Good grief!" he shouted. "What did I say in that letter to make them so hot?" He glanced over the carbon of the letter Miss Moffitt handed him, and smiled wryly, "I guess it serves me right," he admitted. "And we've lost the business."

"No, we haven't," Miss Moffitt said. "We've had this wire today accepting your apology."

"You apologized for me?" asked Sam, rather haughtily.

"It was the only thing to do," the girl said stiffly. "Here's the letter I wrote them, and signed your name to."

"Messrs. Urquhart & Witherspoon, Attorneys-at-Law, 66 William Street, New York City. "Gentlemen—

"I was astonished to receive your wire, and to read the carbon of a letter my stenographer handed me. She has been with us for some time, and I'm afraid has come to have too much faith in her own ability. The letter to which she signed my name was written without my knowledge in my absence from the city. I trust that you will reconsider and decide to overlook this unpardonable blunder.

"Very sincerely yours,
"Samuel Nettleton."

Sam flushed as he raised his eyes from the yellow sheet and looked at the slim figure across the desk from him. "You did that for me, Gladys?" he asked humbly.

"I did it for the firm," said the girl in a husky voice.

"I don't believe it," Sam cried, a happy look in his eyes.

The silence that followed was broken by a shrill burst of sound. The organ grinder back again—and in spite of herself Miss Moffitt smiled.

"I'll pay him a quarter to move on," she suggested. "It's very annoying!"

"I don't think so," Sam contradicted. "In fact, I like that thing he's playing now. How does it go?"

"Hey, hey, I'm glad to say—" the girl hummed provocatively.

"She's my girl friend now!" rumbled Sam's husky bass voice.

With Tire Prices at the Present Low Level

WERE we to go back to the days when common labor was 1.50, Carpenters 3.00 a day and Clerks 10.00 a week, we'd think the country was ruined. But that's how cheap good tires are now. How long can it continue?

ALCO'S COLUMN

"Good Evening, Alco Tire Company"

TUESDAY, OCT. 9, 1928

"I. T." SELLING—By "Ham"

The clerk at the hosiery counter who said to the man, "Yes, sir, silk stockings for your wife or something more expensive?" was tactless, but nevertheless she was trying to find out the buyer's NEEDS. That's what WE do, when you come in for tires.

We ask questions and find out which TYPE of tire is most economical for YOUR particular driving needs. For example, if we find that you expect to trade in your car shortly, or if you drive a car only 6,000 or 7,000 miles a year, we have a high quality Goodyear tire that is exceptionally low priced. If, however, you drive a great deal, we recommend one of the several types of Goodyear All Weathers: The standard, the heavy duty, or an oversize—depending on where and how you drive. Likewise, Goodyear Double Eagle Tires are sometimes advised. Because Goodyear builds a COMPLETE line of tires for every driving need, we are able to "fit you out" properly. You bought your car to fit your needs and your pocketbook—we sell you tires on the same basis. That's what I call Intelligent Tire Selling. ("I. T." Selling).

STOCK TRADING QUIET ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

NARROW PRICE CHANGES IN LEADING SECURITIES

Trading was quiet on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with prices holding close to the levels prevailing in yesterday's session.

Dealings in Arkansas Gas, in which a speculative movement had been concentrated the last several days, were on a small scale, and there was no change from the price level around 3½ at which it sold all day yesterday. Lone Star Gas was handled in moderate volume at a fraction under 58. A little flurry in Lone Star yesterday carried it up from 57¼ to 58, but the buying wave ended at that figure, and today's early trades were at slight concessions from the last night's final.

Standard Sanitary Manufacturing continued to sell between 38 and 39 in both markets, with the volume small both here and in New York. McKinney Manufacturing recovered the fractional loss suffered yesterday, while May Drug was a fraction under the price it reached on the little bulge yesterday afternoon.

Speculating or Investing, Which Should We Follow?

—By B. C. FORBES—

Should you try to take advantage of the dazzling advances which have been occurring in the stock market? Or, if you are not experienced in the ways of Wall street, should you avoid fliers and set about the investing of your savings in a cautious, conservative, systematic way?

Many are the evidences that millions of investors have been speculating irresponsibly in stocks, buying them solely in the hope of being able to sell out at a profit before the stock boom collapses. Because so many persons have done this successfully, there has arisen a widespread notion that to stick to sensible investments is foolish.

But is it?

J. H. PUEULICHER, president of the Marshall & Ilsley Bank of Milwaukee, impressed by the soundness of a letter written to an inquiring friend by Gertrude M. Jacobs, assistant cashier, has forwarded a copy. Here are extracts which may prevent some from being lured into the pitfalls now so prevalent—and so irresistible to many:

"The whole question of investments, especially for young people, is one that needs the most careful guiding and the minutest consideration of personal situations—responsibilities, possessions, inclinations, ambitions, etc.—especially as the dangerous nectar of easy money appeals to the sporting blood of any wide-awake young person.

"One pillar in the foundation upon which to build investments must be knowledge of the difference between stocks and bonds. When that is understood, I would advise young people if they have been employed with a company a sufficient length of time to judge of its merits, that they invest in the stock of that company. That inspires the desire for advancement, for contributing ideas, for carefulness in the use of materials and time, for ferreting out wastes and losses; it instills loyalty and stability.

"THE next step should be to lay a strong general foundation in good diversified grade A bonds—U. S. governments, municipals, public utilities and first-class railroads and industrials. Such investments do not bring a large interest return, but when young and working and earning, there is no pressing need to consider the return, while it is imperative to consider safety of principal.

"The bonds of public utilities have attracted a great deal of attention in the United States. We find our present civilization built around the use of electric light, power, transmission and telephone service, and we can not conceive of any community getting along without them. There is little danger of a public utility company that is furnishing the light and power in a community going out of business, for the need remains for its service, and if one management should prove incapable, another management no doubt would be brought in. Furthermore, many states have good laws concerning public utilities.

"WHEN a foundation of such security has been laid, then, and then only, should a little extra be invested here and a little there in good stocks, perhaps, that are bringing a little larger return, and where there is the possibility of increased earnings and extra dividends or rise in the price of the stock.

"One other investment has greatly appealed to me lately, and that is investment in the form of insurance premiums, paid on some good type of income policy. The advantage of taking on this policy while young is the lesser premium cost. Such policies usually provide for a definite monthly income for life after a retirement age of 55, 60 or 65, and for those remaining employed, a disability clause may be added which will provide an income during disability before the retirement age, and in some cases continuing through life.

"PERSONALLY, I think each investor should have a moral responsibility toward his investment. That no matter how favorable the investment may appear from the standpoint of profit, if the article produced, or the service rendered, or the treatment of employes, or methods, or standards of business are not for social good, then I, for one, do not wish to loan any of my hard-earned shekels to, nor become a part owner of, such an enterprise.

"The best I could advise any young person to do would be to consult with a reliable banker in the community, being very frank as to his or her possessions and ambitions, and then not to invest until he is convinced of the desirability of the investment; and, after investing, not to permit cobwebs to gather on his investment, but continue to watch the affairs of the concern and if not progresive, to dispose of the securities before a loss results."

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

Demand Brings Increased Coal Production. Price Levels Leave No Profit Margins, However, Operators Say.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

COAL production took an abrupt upturn in the last week of September as a result of a sudden rush of domestic demand. Prices, however, showed little change from the low levels prevailing for the past month.

PRODUCTION of bituminous coal in the United States in the week ended September 29 reached 11,059,000 tons, which was 1,000,000 tons more than the output of both the previous week and the corresponding week of 1927.

THE reduction of stocks has been an important factor in making increased coal production possible. With coal inventories at the lowest point since the beginning of the strike industry is again buying as much coal as it is burning.

WEEKLY coal production has been greater than a year ago for the past last three weeks reported. The total production for the calendar year to September 29 of 352,977,000 tons is still 39,984,000 tons less than in the same period of 1927.

THE Pittsburgh Coal Company has achieved a new high record for open shop production in this district for the third successive week. In the week ended last Saturday 240,153 tons rolled through the tipples, compared with 236,938 tons in the preceding week.

THE upturn in volume is the first good news about the coal industry for a long time. Those in the trade are still pessimistic about the price outlook. At present levels it is impossible for most properties to show any profit.

IT IS unlikely that either of the leading coal operating companies in this district will show any profits this year. On the other hand, the deficits will probably be smaller than those of 1927 when the extra cost of fighting the strike was burdening operations.

IN 1927 the Pittsburgh Coal Company lost $1,880,596 compared with $2,114,676 in 1926. Losses have been shown since 1924.

The Pittsburg Terminal Coal Corporation lost $953,640 in 1927 compared with a profit of $363,266 in 1926. This was equivalent to $1.24 a share on the common stock.

IT IS rather difficult to compare the effect on earnings of the labor policies of the two companies at the present time. Thus far Pittsburgh Terminal's policy appears to have been better for both the management and the miners.

THE Pittsburgh Coal Company broke its contract with the union and started to dig coal on an open shop basis in May, 1925. The Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation abided by the wage agreement until it expired on April 1, 1927.

PITTSBURGH Terminal showed profits during 1925 and 1926 when Pittsburgh Coal was showing losses as a result of its fight against the union. Both showed losses after the expiration of the wage agreement, but at the present time Pittsburgh Terminal appears to have made as much progress in establishing non-union operations in a year and a half as did Pittsburgh Coal in over three years.

PITTSBURGH Coal's properties are far more extensive than are Terminal's, so that a mere comparison of the operating losses last year means little. Proportionally Terminal lost more than did Pittsburgh Coal in 1927, but the cost of fighting the union was lumped within one year. It is also likely that Terminal's market in 1925 and 1926 was helped by the labor troubles of Pittsburgh Coal.

AS NEAR as can be judged at present, Pittsburgh Coal gained very little by its repudiation of its wage contracts. Operators here believe that in the long run the industry will gain by its costly strike, but it is quite likely that Pittsburgh Coal would have been as far along with its anti-union fight at present if it had waited until the agreement expired.

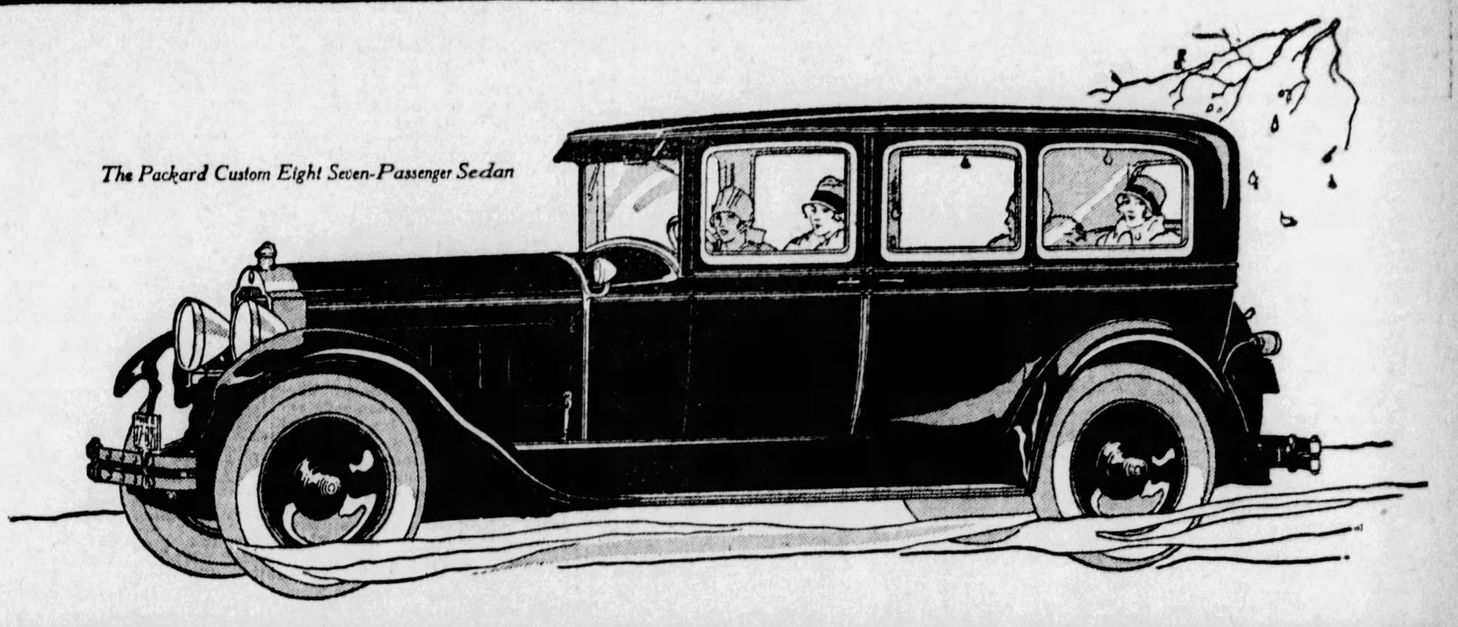
THE PACKARD CUSTOM EIGHT



The Packard Custom Eight Seven-Passenger Sedan

offering literally New Luxury - New Comfort and New Safety

WE want all lovers of fine things, all those who appreciate supreme excellence in a motor carriage—whether in the market for a new car or not—to see and ride in the new Packard Custom Eight.

It is a revelation of what modern engineering genius, with a background of 30 years' experience in the manufacture of fine cars, can achieve.

In appearance the Custom Eight discloses new refinements in the characteristic Packard design. It would be folly to attempt radical changes in the fundamental grace of Packard lines. Nor would it be quite fair to Packard owners to depreciate their cars by changes which could add nothing to Packard beauty and distinction.

The famous Packard Straight Eight powerplant remains fundamentally the same. Improved and refined, with its nine-bearing crankshaft, it continues to provide the utmost in smooth, flexible flow of power—unequaled motor car performance.

But in the new and exclusive Packard Shock Absorbing System, Packard offers the greatest recent engineering advance in the industry. This remarkable combination of inventions provides a new driving ease and riding comfort that cannot be explained in words.

To say that the Packard is now the easiest riding car in the world—as well as the safest—is a bold, but literal statement, and one which you will enthusiastically confirm after your first ride.

When will you have your demonstration? When may we appraise your present car? If it is of average value you may own a Packard Eight without a cent of down payment and with but small monthly payments you will not find bothersome.

READJUSTMENT GIVES MARKET MIXED TONE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Extensive readjustment of speculative accounts imparted an irregular trend to prices in today's stock market. Large selling orders appeared in a number of the recent pool favorites which had shown difficulty in breaking through their recent high records, losses of 2 to 4 points being distributed over a broad list. At the same time, buying operations were conducted with success in about a dozen specialties which were lifted to new high records.

Call money renewed unchanged at 6½ per cent. But the supply was again so plentiful that the official rate was shaded in the "outside market." Bankers predict that the peak of the fall commercial demands will be reached within the next two weeks after which money rates should ease moderately until the holiday demands begin to make themselves felt.

Several of the large commission houses, while agreeing that the fall and winter business outlook is favorable, urged extreme caution in the making of new commitments on the ground that many stocks were still in a weakened technical position. Selling from this source was an important factor in the morning recation.

Cushman's Bakery, which is ordinarily inactive, broke 14 points, Coty 4½, Midland Steel Products, Johns Manville and Chrysler 4 each before they received effective buying support. Extreme losses of 3 points or more were recorded by Canadian Pacific, Dupont, Curtiss, Gillette Safety Razor, Spiegel, May Stern, Jewel Tea and Detroit Edison.

Allied Chemical, which was strong yesterday, ran up 8½ points to a new high record at 223 on unconfirmed rumors of a 3 for 1 stock split up. Best & Co. and Victor Talking Machine also moved into new high ground. Hudson, in which a powerful pool was organized recently, changed hands in large volume, selling more than 2 points above yesterday's final quotation. General Motors sold down to 208¾ and then rallied.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 6 to 14 points with buying on the bullish views of yesterday's government crop figures reported by favorable reports from the cotton goods trade and relatively firm Liverpool cables. There was considerable realizing and some southern selling on the advance which may have been promoted by reports of favorable weather in the south, but it was absorbed on reactions of 8 or 10 points, and the market was steady at the end of the first half hour. Later December selling around 19.30c and March 19.11c or 19 to 21 points net higher. Private cables said the advance in Liverpool was due to covering on the bulge and to buying and that the demand for cotton cloths was broadening with good business for India pending. Reports from the goods market here indicated that there had been a decrease of 5.5 per cent in stocks of cotton standard cloths last month and an increase of 37.7 per cent in unfilled orders.

Realizing or liquidation of old long accounts continued later in the morning, while there was further southern selling and prices worked gradually lower. By midday December was selling around 19.02c and March 18.86c or about 5 to 9 points net lower.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The raw sugar market was quiet early today with no sales reported, with sugars available at last paid prices of 3.96c for spots duty paid.

There was only a small trade in the raw sugar futures market and operators were inclined to limit fresh commitments and await developments. The market opened 1 to 2 points lower under liquidation and some selling by houses with Cuban connections, but offerings were absorbed by shorts and commission houses and partial rallies followed with the list at midday about unchanged to 1 point net lower.

No refined a fair inquiry was reported but it was limited to nearby requirements only. Prices were unchanged at 5.35 to 5.40c for fine granulated.

Gallant Twelve Hundred Urge Metropolitan Plan

Called a "committee of one thousand," a group actually numbering in the neighborhood of 1,200 boosters of the consolidated city to include Pittsburgh and other municipalities of Allegheny county, has been named by Joseph T. Miller, chairman of the Metropolitan Plan Commission. It represents all parts of the county, its membership including both women and men, of all professions and callings.

If Tennyson's immortal "six hundred" were the light brigade our "twelve hundred" constitute a heavy brigade. It will rally the voters in behalf of the last amendment printed on the ballot, No. 14, in the November election. This is the amendment of the state constitution which would permit the framing of a Metropolitan Plan charter embracing all of Allegheny county as the city of Pittsburgh but permitting all the municipal units and townships to preserve their identities, names and substantially all of their present powers.

The invitation to become a member of the committee of 1,000 resulted in so many acceptances that the body could not be held to that number. This seems like a good augury for the success of amendment No. 14 at the polls.

"Blue Law" Stupidity Imposed Upon Altoona

Supporters of the blue law of 1794 go right along making new supporters for the repeal of the ancient relic, possibly useful once, but now dedicated to the purpose of permitting a small minority to regulate the morals, amusements, recreation and conduct of a large majority.

In Altoona last Sunday a few ministers of the gospel invoked the eighteenth century statute to scatter a crowd of 4,000 listening to a broadcast of a baseball game. In another state the law said it was all right for the baseball game to be played and for 40,000 persons to see it played. All over the nation, including the highly moral Pennsylvania, millions listened to details of the game as they came over the air. But in Altoona this criminal depravity was too much for some good people. So it was stopped.

What is the result?

A handful of clergymen have a clear conscience because 4,000 persons were deprived of a little innocent pleasure. Four thousand persons become more determined than ever that the blue law is nothing but a nuisance these days and should be repealed.

Very likely another result is that an important publication, the Altoona Tribune, broadcasting the game as a commendable bit of newspaper enterprise, for the benefit of its readers, will join the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in advocating the repeal of the law of 1794.

Its supporters go right along making advocates for the repeal of the law with their interference with the moral rights of others.

Some Change Completely

And Some "Stay Put."

MODERN JAPANESE GIRL. OLD STYLE FIJI ISLAND GIRL.

In some places the world changes, in some the world and its people stand still. These pictures show it.

On the left is a modern girl of Japan, whose great grandmother would shudder to see her and refuse to believe that she is really a JAPANESE.

On the right is a Fiji Island mother, dwelling on the edge of some lagoon in that far off land, carrying her baby, tied to her back, as her ancestors did centuries ago.

The Japanese lady has dropped something that can be called Oriental, except perhaps the parasol. She has on latest shoes, that make her feet look like a Shetland pony all harnessed up, she has a boyish bob, instead of the Japanese girl's strange and ponderous coiffure.

Her dress, with flowers on it and short skirt, leaves nothing to be desired. In fact, she is "up to date."

It is said that conservative Japan views with indignation modern girls that trot around the streets in short skirts, discussing Bolshevism, Socialism and everything else, as though girls had a right to think for themselves.

Here in America, however, we congratulate the modern westernized Japanese young lady, who is better for the change, even if the shoes and short skirt are rather foolish.

If you don't CHANGE, you can't IMPROVE.

If you do change, there is at least the POSSIBILITY that you will improve.

And no nation on earth in the last 50 years has gone ahead in the direction of real improvement more than the Japanese.

However, in considering any sudden, violent change bear in mind the old text: "Prove all things, HOLD FAST that which is GOOD."

That's the Idea—Keep Building Him Up!

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

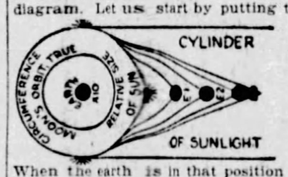
In the Sunlight

AMONG the facts of astronomy which usually greatly surprise those who have not studied the subject is this: The sun is so large that the light rays extending straight away from the edges of its disk, at a right angle to its face, and therefore parallel to the line from its center to the earth, pass by the earth on all sides at a distance of more than 430,000 miles.

Otherwise stated, if the disk of the sun be imagined as the base of a cylinder extending toward us, then the earth lies on the axis of that cylinder while its sides enclose us at a distance of about 430,000 miles, which is half the diameter of the sun. A glance at the accompanying diagram will show what is meant.

Many ask on hearing this: "Why then does not the sun appear to cover the whole sky?"

The answer is also to be found illustrated in the diagram. Let us start by putting the earth in the center of the sun—only, to make it clearly visible on the scale of the drawing we have to magnify the earth's diameter 10 times, making it nearly as large as Jupiter.



When the earth is in that position it is easy enough to see how far above, below, to right, to left, the sides of the sunlight cylinder pass by it.

But when the earth is removed to various distances from the sun the real size of the cylinder is not changed, although the apparent size of the sun as seen from the earth is greatly changed. This change is indicated by the decrease in the size of the angle formed at the earth between the lines drawn from it to opposite sides of the sun at its successive distances. Plainly this angle gets smaller as the distance increases. The angle measures the bigness of the sun as it seems to the eye. The angles shown are respectively about 80, 60 and 48 degrees, but at the actual distance of the earth from the sun the angle would be only about half of one degree. In other words, a globe 860,000 miles in actual diameter seen at the distance of the sun appears only half a degree in diameter; yet parallel lines from opposite sides of its disk are everywhere 860,000 miles apart.

One thing very rarely mentioned is the fact that the light of the sun is radiated in every direction from each of the elementary parts of its surface. The clusters of rays emanating from points on the sun at three places on the diagram are intended to illustrate this face. At every point on the sun the rays are distributed in that manner. But a light ray is not visible sideways; only rays that directly enter the eye are visible. Thus the imaginary cylinder of sunlight shown is filled with rays darting in every possible direction from the infinite number of points making up the surface of the sun. But to the eye looking at it from the earth the apparent size of the sun is limited by the rays that come from its actual edge directly to the eye. This is indicated by the conical shadow behind the earth in its third position. The rays in the "cylinder" that pass by the earth have no effect upon this shadow.

Manless Sailing

THE manless ship seems coming nearer every minute. Young Hays Hammond demonstrated one rather spectacularly during the war, directing it by wireless into surprisingly accurate maneuvers.

And now disarmed Germany has one which speeds, retards, turns, flashes signals and hides itself in a fog of gas as the pilot ashore wills.

Perhaps when all the fighting is done by machinery the thrill of combat will wane and peace will have a chance.

Isn't It So?

The poor are unique in one particular. They pay cash.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Why Wait on Others?

ARE you continually watching to see what someone else is going to do before you act?

Have you no code, no rule of action, no precedent to govern action?

Must you take your cue from another because you have no faith in your own judgment and initiative?

Why don't you step out and do things on your own once in a while?

You are old enough to vote.

You have good eyes and ears and a sense of the fitness of things.

You have been trained to observe and can interpret what you see and hear correctly if you would.

But you are just afraid to use the material you have at hand.

You don't know where to begin and you wouldn't know where to end.

At least, this is the line you give yourself when you think about doing something and doing it first.

Don't copy others when your own ideas might be better.

And you never can tell till you try.

You are too self-conscious and conceited. You want to outshine your friends and competitors. Well, then, act first.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Beach in Autumn

HERE the beach is a crescent that gleams in the light,
Here the sea is as green as a leaf,
As a leaf in the crown of young
April's delight
When the world knows no whisper of grief.

Autumn here casts no shadow of sorrow or fear,
Brings no echo of joys left behind
To be found not again in the flight of the year,
For the sands and the waters are kind.

And the beach knows no calendar's time of decay,
No wane in the glory of skies,
But, clothed in a wonder that fades not away,
Unchanging its loveliness lies.

Great Passages from the Bible

"Trust Ye in the Lord"

(Isaiah 26; 4-13)

TRUST ye in the Lord for ever: for in the Lord JEHOVAH is everlasting strength:

For he bringeth down them that dwell on high; the lofty city, he layeth it low; he layeth it low, even to the ground; he bringeth it even to the dust.

The foot shall tread it down, even the feet of the poor, and the steps of the needy.

The way of the just is uprightness: thou, most upright, dost weigh the path of the just.

Yea, in the way of thy judgments, O Lord, have we waited for thee; the desire of our soul is to thy name, and to the remembrance of thee.

With my soul have I desired thee in the night; yea, with my spirit within me will I seek thee early: for when thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness.

Let favour be shewed to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteousness: in the land of uprightness will he deal unjustly, and will not behold the majesty of the Lord.

Lord, when thy hand is lifted up, they will not see: but they shall see, and be ashamed for their envy at the people; yea, the fire of thine enemies shall devour them.

Lord, thou wilt ordain peace for us: for thou also hast wrought all our works in us.

O Lord our God, other lords beside thee have had dominion over us: but by thee only will we make mention of thy name.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

A RICH oil man took his wife to the doctor because she wasn't feeling right. The doc had a talk with him and says, "Now, Jake, you hadn't ought to let your wife eat the kind of stuff she's been boarding on. That stuff is all right for horses, but it takes altogether too long to digest. Now, here's a list of stuff that your wife ought to eat instead, and you must see that she eats it. You see, this here stuff will digest in less than half the time."

"Well," says the oil man, "as far as that's concerned, Doc, you know we're rich now, and time ain't no object to my wife. She ain't got nothing important to do ny more. She's jest as well be sittin' around digestin' grub as anything, and you needn't bother about saving her time that-away."

Tactless

THERE was a burst of applause as the pianist finished his last solo. He bowed and, after thanking his audience, was about to leave, when a man approached and presented a check.

This the pianist refused, saying he would prefer it to be used for some charitable purpose.

"In that case," said the donor, "I suppose you wouldn't mind if we added it to our special fund?"

"Not at all," said the speaker. "What is the special fund for?"

"To enable us to have better entertainers next year."

All or Nothing

GOLDBERG had suddenly come into a vast quantity of money.

One day he was passing a furniture shop when four old chairs caught and held his attention.

Goldberg entered the shop and asked the price of the chairs. On receiving a favorable quotation, he asked for a dozen to be sent to his house.

"But we've only got four," protested the assistant. "They are antiques, you see, sir."

Goldberg was not used to this sort of treatment.

"All right!" he snapped. "Cancel the order!"

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Every fashionable suburban village around New York has to face a quota of social gate crashers during the summer season. Almost invariably they are those with suddenly acquired wealth and their methods are circusey.

They buy or lease the finest estates, command the gaudiest yachts and "throw" the most expensive parties. In such centers there is only one group that "belongs," and the leader is usually one whose ancestors had something or other to do with the Mayflower. Fortunes are spent every season by those on the outside trying to reach the inside. And the futility is always obvious. Not one in a thousand makes the grade. Yet season after season the climbers return for more punishment.

The social lightweights are, however, a boon to tradesmen, for they buy extravagantly to entertain lavishly. There is the tragic story of one family that prepared a huge lawn fete this summer. Many thousands were spent upon decorations and music.

Several days before the affair the R. S. V. P.'s began to arrive. Most of them were regrets, and at the last moment the few who accepted were notified the fete had been called off. The mortified hostess is now in a sanitarium.

It is in these small communities of social strife so many "Poison Pen" episodes take place. Private detective agencies reap a harvest from those who seek to acquire "inside" salacious scandal about intimate lives of those who snubbed them.

There are times when adjoining estates reach the bitterness of the old-time "spite fence" disputes. It is a battle of gold against aristocracy. New York social warfare is bad enough, but when removed to the open spaces it is pretty terrible.

A grouchy old and myopic gentleman drew up in front of an art gallery window to inspect one of those symbolical pictures of a starfish making love to a spray of seaweed for something. He gazed awhile, adjusted his glasses and looked again. It was evidently too much, for in a snort of rage he drew back his cane and smashed the window. More gallantry such as this would be an elegant thing for art.

Each season there is a reigning "naughtiest woman in New York"—a sort of queen in the cosmopolitan but shabby world of Broadway. She is invited everywhere, shocks the blase, and for some reason or other quickly passes out of the picture. She is usually known as the Countess or Duchess of Soandso, and dresses for the part. Her bathing costume is the scantiest and her decolette frock the decolettest. Nobody seems to know where she came from and few care whither she goes, so long as she does.

A few years in New York makes one tolerant of little slights that so often offend in a smaller city. People here do not see or hear from intimate friends for months, but there is no thought of negligence. Other petty frictions of a small town are not nearly so marked. There is a fine understanding of the value of time and of distance that is pleasant. When old friends meet after a long period, their attitude is that of those who have lived in widely separated cities. No apology is necessary for the long period between meeting. A New Yorker understands.

The New Yorker is a pretty good sport in another way. He is rarely jealous of the success of his neighbor and that quality is not so pronounced in many smaller cities.

And right about here is an appropriate spot to drag in an observation of this very morning. A gentleman made a wild reach for his windblown hat as it careened into a sewer opening. As he stood there looking silly a clerk in a hat store across the street rushed to him with another hat to wear home. That is in a few inches of what the efficiency boys call "service plus."

Gentlemen Prefer Wars

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

There was a magazine article published some time ago entitled "Gentlemen Prefer Wars."

I never read the article, but I like the title.

Curiously enough men have grown eloquent depicting the horror of war, its blood, confusion and waste. The play, "What Price Glory," is in point.

But somehow or other war is always popular. In spite of all its drawbacks people go into it enthusiastically.

One latent reason, perhaps, is an economic one. They know they will be clothed, fed and taken care of when they are in the army. Nothing so frightens the ordinary man as the prospect of losing his job. He doesn't lose his job in the army if he behaves himself. As far as danger and death are concerned they are not very important in the minds of most men compared with economic security.

Another thing you find in war, in spite of all its alleged tyranny, is ideal democracy. Plutocrat and laborer fight side by side, share the same tent and eat the same chow.

As far as death is concerned most men think less of it than we suppose. It is likely to come to anyone in peace and in war.

The soldier's health is looked after, their living is secure and there is adventure aplenty.

When peace comes, trouble comes. There is no unemployment in any country during a war. After the war, in peace, there were 2,000,000 unemployed in Great Britain and nearly 6,000,000 in the United States.

The Comptroller of the Currency said that deflation in the U. S. A. had cost industry more than the war did. In 1921 trade was at its lowest for 20 years.

What's the trouble?

In war you have four things which peace has been unable to attain.

First, organization, complete and perfect.

Second, a unifying sentiment. Peace has never succeeded in making religion, or organized love, as strong as patriotism, which is, generally, organized hate.

Third, you have discipline. Everybody toes the mark. Everybody cooperates. If a man blats about personal liberty he is promptly shot.

Fourth, the uniform code is Honor. Men don't work for money, but for something better. There is no finer code of honor than among officers of the army. What would happen to us in peace if that held among officeholders?

When Boys Leave Home

PLENTY of us belong to that alleged unwashed crowd of untouchables who stand like wooden Indians in front of a piece of futurist art trying to figure out what it is all about.

"The lady of the house" and I recently visited an exhibition of futurist canvases and, after a futile attempt to make out the subject of a single painting among the several walls full, I finally suggested that we better get out of there before we got the delirium tremens.

All honor, however, to the artists! They are doubtless as conscientious as the good folk of Ghandi Land when they burned living widows with dead husbands.

But simple art holds me like the vice of Vulcan. Like that picture, "Among the Lowly," sermonizing from its Metropolitan pulpit. And who has not succumbed to the homely charm of that unpretentious picture, "Breaking Home Ties"?

It has the irresistible appeal of a classic. Like a Chopin nocturne or a piece of Rodin sculpture. It lingers in one's mind like the last great chord of a cathedral organ.

The young man is responding to the wanderlust of destiny. Wrapped in domestic love as in the warm folds of an eiderdown blanket, he sallies forth to fortune or misfortune. The mute benedictions of affection go with him and a mother's tender blessing bids him godspeed.

But only a Dore, illustrator of Inferno, could properly portray the tragic leaving of the boy lured by criminal adventure or driven out by the stinging lash of domestic jangle. We call him a runaway. Rather call him a stowaway on a doom ship sailing under sealed orders.

Pathos outdid herself in a notice I saw hanging in the postoffice of a little Mid West village. A father wanted news of his 17-year-old high school boy who had run away from home. He used as bait the sickness of the lad's mother and he added that all would be forgiven. Certain magazines bulge with such far calls to prodigal sons.

But why the exodus? Who was to blame? Who needed forgiveness? Was the high-strung lad deserving of all the censure? Are parents exempt from the amenities of friendly relationship? Does parenthood justify tyranny?

Boys are often foolish and dead wrong. Girls, too. But that should never shut the old home door upon them. When wrong, their need is greatest. God created parents for the overlooking of youthful folly.

Fathers who are as tyrannical as Legree, and mothers who are as hot-tongued as Xantippe, the shrew of Socrates, must expect their children to slip through the first breech they can find in the domestic circle. And when such parents post the notices of their lost schildren, they should postscript them with apologies.

Go to the Metropolitan and listen to that eloquent pulpiteer, "Among the Lowly."

This way out, please.

Romance or Rum?

TEN years ago this would have been a mystery of the sea. Off Cape May, a three-masted schooner was found adrift and deserted. Sails in rags, charts gone, instruments missing too. The only movable property in the cabin was a bag of women's garments. A fisherman boarded the schooner, hove a line to the bow and started to tow it to shore as a prize under the salvage laws by which he might fairly claim it. The Coast Guard halted him and took over the derelict on suspicion that it was an abandoned rum runner.

So the mystery evaporates. Privateers, pirates and even slave ships have inspired thrilling tales of high adventure, but romance draws away in disgust from a bootlegger.
